Labor Bill Poses Test For Kennedy

Committee To Start On Big Issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 14 men trying to write a compromise labor regulation bill get down to the really tough issues this week after a surprising show of agreement in their first week of work.

Presidential ambitions, the question of union support or opposition in the 1960 elections, the emotions that always seem to be stirred by labor legislation — all these are in the wings.

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass), 42-year-old front runner in several polls for the 1960 Democratic nomination, unquestionably has the most at stake in the conference committee struggle.

As chief sponsor of the Senate bill and chairman of the Senate-House Conference, Kennedy bears a heavy share of the responsibility for working out a compromise and avoiding a deadlock.

He is battling to wipe out the image created in many quarters that the bill he steered through the Senate was a relatively weak one, ineffective in meeting union abuses.

On this he has had some help from Republicans who say they agree with him the Senate bill's first six titles of legislation were stronger than the House version.

These sections largely are concerned with internal processes of unions; Kennedy calls them the antiracketeering sections. They guarantee such things as secret ballot elections and full publicity for all union financial transactions.

It is on these six sections that the conferees reported Friday they had reached full agreement after some give and take.

But the seventh and last title, dealing with changes in the Taft-Hartley Act and thus with the handling of labor - management disputes, carries the areas of bitter and deep dispute.

This is the area in which President Eisenhower put his prestige at stake, calling the Senate bill ineffective. And it is this section which is expected by many legislators to deadlock the compromise efforts, although the 14 participants are not conceding this is inevitable. They started work on the section Friday and will plunge into it in earnest Monday morning.

Kennedy says categorically he will not accept some of the House bill's Taft-Hartley provisions because he feels they would destroy legitimate rights of unions. But he holds out a hope of compromise.

Most of the House conferees, on the other hand, insist that the Taft-Hartley sections are the heart of their measure.

The Senate conferees generally divide on party lines 4-3 in favor of the Senate version. The House lineup is 5-2 for the House bill. Each side votes as a unit.

Kennedy says it will be Wednesday or Thursday at least before he will be ready to conclude whether a final agreement can be reached. Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz), senior Republican on the Labor Committee, has set a tentative deadline of Tuesday.

If there is a deadlock, both delegations could return to their respective branches for further instructions.

Fear Quake Toll Of Tourists Higher Than First Believed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Did the Montana earthquake take a far higher toll of tourists than at first believed?

Families in communities scattered from coast to coast expressed growing fear Saturday at continued silence from relatives known to have been traveling in the shock area.

In addition to nine known dead, scores of men, women and children have not been heard from since tons of rock and earth thundered down into the Hebgen River Valley last Monday.

The Red Cross at Helena, Mont., said from 1,500 to 1,800 queries had been received from anxious relatives, but many of those inquired about later had turned up safe.

Of the others, said the Red Cross, many may not have been anywhere near the area. But many of the missing were known to have been close to the quake site.

Among them are eight persons from the state of Washington, six Southern Californians, four from Massachusetts and three from Utah.

Are they buried forever under the landslide? That was the thought gnawing at those who wait for word, good or bad.

Their boy, Peter, 8, was in a group of eight from Anacortes vacationing in the area. Their trail ends at Old Faithful geyser in Yellowstone National Park.

A letter received by the Mariciches Monday, day of the quake, said the group was going out to hunt agates and pick berries—in the Hebgen River area. It also said they would telephone the Mariciches Monday night.

The call never came. And none of the eight has been seen since.

With young Peter in the group were Mrs. Maricich's parents, Mr.

Irate Valley View Man Shoots Two Police Officers

VALLEY VIEW, Ill. (AP)—Two policemen were shot, one critically, late Saturday in an attempt to arrest a resident of this Kane County community.

Deputy Police Chief Walter Peterson, 30, was reported by the Delnor hospital, St. Charles, to be in critical condition with a bullet wound in his neck, and suffering from a heavy loss of blood.

Policeman Gene Krzykowski, 30, was shot through the left leg. He was taken to the St. Joseph's hospital in Elgin.

Kane County deputy sheriffs and state police said the man who shot the policeman is Ernest W. Henningson, 58, who was held in the Kane County jail at Geneva without charge. They said he admitted the shootings.

The deputies said this is how the shooting occurred:

Henningson, an iron worker at at St. Charles works, lives alone in a house he built himself.

Because of the heat, he had removed most of his clothing.

The two policemen went to the home to investigate.

Henningson, then fired, through the screen door, with a .45 caliber automatic but only, he told the deputies, after the policemen drew their guns. The policemen were wounded.

The area was cordoned off and tear gas shells were lobbed into the Henningson home.

After about 30 minutes the deputies noted that the front door, the lone one to the home, was padlocked from the outside.

Then Henningson, fully clothed, came walking up the road. He surrendered calmly. He had been hiding, he said, down on the Fox River.

Forecasters See Chance Of Some Relief From Heat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oppressive heat continued to broil Americans east of the Rockies Saturday, but forecasters said some slightly cooling relief was on its way.

The Weather Bureau reported that cool Canadian air started to edge its way into the northern tier of states from North Dakota into New England and added that cooler temperatures are expected Sunday in an area stretching from the Great Lakes to the middle and north Atlantic states.

Midday temperatures of mid-90 degrees were reported Saturday from the central and southern plains into the middle and south Atlantic states and 90-plus readings were posted before noon in the desert Southwest. Moderate readings in the 50s and 60s were recorded in the northern portions of the Rocky Mountain states.

CANADA TO LAUNCH LARGEST ICEBREAKER

OTTAWA (AP)—Canada's largest icebreaker, to be launched at Quebec City next summer, will be named Sir John A. MacDonald for Canada's first prime minister. The 18,000-h.p., 315-ft. vessel is expected to go farther north than any previous surface ship in Canadian waters.

The largest stained glass window in Europe has been placed in the Cathedral of Nantes in the Britany region of France. Nearly 2,000 square feet in area, it is made up of 30,000 pieces of glass.

FLYING TV NETWORK—First step in an eventual chain of sky platforms to unite America and Europe via television has been taken by the Air Force. Raytheon, Inc., of Waltham, Mass., has been awarded a $90,000 contract to study methods of converting microwave energy into heat. The company had earlier announced plans for the chain of platforms. Four stations, hovering about 700 miles apart over Newfoundland, Greenland, Iceland and Scotland, would relay a TV beam across the Atlantic. WILL COLD WAR THAW?

Khrushchev To Visit Six Cities Outside Washington

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev will visit six cities outside Washington. They are New York City, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Des Moines and Ames, Iowa, and Pittsburgh.

Khrushchev's tentative itinerary during his stay in this country from Sept. 15 through Sept. 27 was announced today by White House press secretary James C. Hagerty.

Hagerty said the cities on Khrushchev's itinerary had been agreed upon in consultations between the Soviet embassy in Washington and the State Department.

He said Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and a member of the President's Cabinet will accompany Khrushchev during his travels.

Lodge, Hagerty said, will serve as the president's personal representative.

Khrushchev is expected to arrive in Washington by plane on the morning of Sept. 15. He will leave for home from Washington on the evening of Sept. 27.

The Soviet leader's schedule was announced as follows:

Sept. 15-16—Washington; Sept. 17-18—New York City; Sept. 19—Los Angeles; Sept. 20-21 — San Francisco; Sept. 22-23 — Des Moines and Ames; Sept. 24 — Pittsburgh.

He will return that evening to Washington, where he will spend Sept. 25-26-27.

Asked whether Khrushchev might visit Camp David, presidential hideaway in the Catoctin Mountains of Maryland, Hagerty replied that this is a possibility.

Khrushchev is slated to speak to the National Press Club in Washington Sept. 16 and answer reporters' questions in a nationally televised appearance.

He will address the U.N. General Assembly in New York two days later.

Other details about Khrushchev's itinerary and the official Soviet and U.S. parties will be announced later, Hagerty said.

East St. Louis Journal, Pressmen Reach Settlement

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)—The East St. Louis Evening Journal reached a contract settlement Saturday with its pressmen after dropping a demand for elimination of one job.

The settlement, reached after a two-hour negotiating session under auspices of the Federal Conciliation Service, erased the threat of a new strike by the pressmen.

The Journal was forced to suspend publication Tuesday for one day because of a strike by the seven pressmen, members of Web Pressman and Flyman's local 38. The pressmen returned to their jobs the following day.

Ed McClain, recording secretary of the local, said ratification of the new contract is a certainty at the next meeting of the local Sept. 1.

The new 30-month contract provides for weekly pay increases of $7 weekly retroactive to Nov. 1, $5 more the second year, and $3 more the last six weeks. The journeymen pressmen had been receiving $121 weekly.

The one-day strike by the pressmen was the first in the newspaper's 72-year history.

CHANGE AT U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Romania has moved its Washington legation chief, Minister Plenipotentiary Silviu Brucan, to the leadership of its U.N. mission. He succeeds Mihai Magheru, who is being reassigned. Brucan once was a social sciences professor and later an editor on the Bucharest Communist paper Scanteia.

Cold War Thaw Won't Melt U.S. Opposition To Red China

WASHINGTON (AP) — Any cold war thaw which may come from Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's visit to the United States will not melt Washington's opposition to recognition of Red China.

This is the opinion of U.S. experts, some of whom doubt that Khrushchev will even make much of a pitch for his Asian ally at this time when Peiping is in renewed bad repute here over the Communist drive in Laos.

President Eisenhower is expected to tell Khrushchev that if Moscow really wants to ease East-West tension, it should quit fostering trouble in Laos and elsewhere throughout the world.

U.S. officials had speculated on whether Khrushchev would visit Peiping soon after his U.S. tour. But the Soviet leader's itinerary as announced by the White House Saturday said he would fly back to the Soviet Union upon leaving Washington Sept. 27.

Peiping has been notably unenthusiastic about Khrushchev's U.S. visit. Vice President Richard M. Nixon, in turn, was said to have remained opposed to recognizing Red China after his recent trip to the Soviet Union.

Make 2nd Arrest In Toll Looting

CHICAGO (AP) — State police made a second arrest Saturday night in the looting of tolls from supposedly theft-proof collection devices on the Illinois toll highways.

Donald L. Norman, 23, an employe of Signal Electronics, Inc., a New York firm which installed and maintains the collection devices, was arrested on his return from a Wisconsin vacation. He was charged with conspiring to defraud the Illinois Toll Highway Commission and grand larceny. Bond was set at $20,000.

Frank Ferlic, acting state's attorney, said Norman was implicated in the thefts by another of the Signal firm's technician, Earl L. Garman, 27, of suburban Oak Lawn, who has admitted thefts of more than $200 weekly. Garman was arrested Friday.

Ferlic estimated the thefts totaled about $10,000.

In a related development, Charles M. Burgess, toll commission chairman, said steps were being taken to prevent further thefts.

Two Convicts At Menard Drink Lab Alcohol, Die

CHESTER, Ill. (AP)—Two convicts at Menard State Penitentiary died Saturday after drinking alcohol from prison laboratories.

They were Donald E. Griffie, 33, and Dewey Mills, 25, both laboratory helpers. Griffie worked in the hospital and Mills in the dental department.

A prison spokesman said they became ill in their cells Friday night and died Saturday in the prison hospital.

Griffie entered Menard from Sangamon County in March 1958 on a one-to-three year sentence for burglary and larceny. Mills was sentenced in September 1957 to three to five years for burglary and larceny of a motor vehicle in Jefferson County.

POSTHUMOUS AWARD FOR NEGRO'S BRAVERY

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The American Legion medal for bravery has been awarded posthumously to a 28-year-old St. Louis Negro, Eugene Reed, who drowned July 8 trying to save two white boys from the Mississippi River near the Alton, Ill., dam.

The medal was presented Friday night to Reed's widow, by John J. Mohan, past commander of the legion's 11th district of Missouri. The award is the highest given by the American Legion.

The boys, who had been floating on a log which became caught in an undertow, later were rescued by another man. Reed was caught in the undertow and drowned.

Contributions totaling more than $8,000 have been received by Mrs. Reed for the support of herself and two small daughters, who had been left destitute.

Schedule Survey Of Strike Effects

Mitchell Gives More Steel Facts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell announced Saturday a special survey will begin next week on what effects the steel strike is having on employment in construction, mining, and the metal working sector in manufacturing.

Mitchell, President Eisenhower's fact - finder and the strike, made this announcement in releasing what he called additional facts on the impact of the shutdown, now in its sixth week.

He gave an indication that he does not anticipate any immediate settlement.

"While general economic activity continues at a high level," he said, "The impact upon the steel industry and closely allied activities, and upon their employes, has been severe and is expected to be felt increasingly in the weeks to come."

There was a flurry of reports—widely denied—that a settlement might be near after Mitchell released a mass of statistics bearing on the situation Wednesday night.

The labor secretary continued to follow a hands-off attitude toward the merits of the wage dispute. He contends responsibility for a settlement rests on union and management. He says they could reach an early agreement if they bargained intensively.

Bargaining talks, which so far have been getting nowhere, are due to be resumed in New York Monday. The union seeks a 15-cent-an-hour increase in pay and better fringe benefits. Industry contends this would force a price increase and spur inflation. Average pay before the strike was $3.11 an hour.

Most of Mitchell's additional facts were not new. He reported there are 500,000 workers on strike and 125,000 additional workers in other industries laid off because of the strike.

He said payroll losses are running at a rate of about 70 million dollars a week.

He said about 85 per cent of total steel capacity is shut down, leaving production at an average of a little more than 330,000 net ingot tons a week. This compared with about 2,600,000 tons a week produced in the spring and early summer.

"So far, supplies of steel have been sufficient for current operations," he added. "Inventories, however, continue to be used up at a fairly high rate. . .

"Among steel-using industries, some agricultural implement companies are reporting shortages, and the steel strike has slowed up some construction contract awards because of uncertainty over future deliveries of steel.

"Freight car manufacturers indicate that steel shortages may affect their operations by mid-September, as do manufacturers of machinery and chemicals.

"Autos, aircraft, and shipbuilding have not been affected as yet."

Mitchell reported the largest number of layoffs due to the strike are in railroads and coal mining.

Other industries affected include construction work connected with the steel plants, iron ore shipping, brick refractories and trucking. Pennsylvania accounts for most of the secondary layoffs, followed in order by Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, Minnesota and Alabama.

CALIFORNIANS LEAVE FOR MOSCOW

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Thirty-nine prominent northern Californians left by plane Saturday for a tour of the Soviet Union.

The party was led by Cyril Magnin, San Francisco merchant, and will make the visit at the invitation of Anastas I. Mikoyan and Frol Kozlov, Soviet first deputy premiers.

SOGNE, Norway (AP)—Steven Rockefeller and radiant Anne Marie Rasmussen spoke the vows of man and wife Saturday in her village church.

The son of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller took the left hand of the former family maid and with a platinum wedding ring made her a member of the rich Rockefeller clan. It was, in the words of the bridegroom's mother, "a beautiful, beautiful service."

A fine sun broke through rain clouds as they were pronounced man and wife.

Blonde Anne Marie, beautiful in a shimmering white wedding gown, was pale throughout the 45-minute ceremony. But she had her emotions well in hand.

She kept her eyes downcast as she approached the altar, but raised her head and smiled at Steven when she was about 10 feet from the rail.

The traditional service of the Norwegian Lutheran Church was performed by the Rev. Olav Gautestad. Anne Marie's pastor. The Rockefellers are Baptists.

The pastor told the couple: "Your example shows that real love, which is from God, breaks down all the social and conventional barriers amongst us. To build a good home is perhaps the greatest of all arts."

Steven met Anne Marie when she went to New York to learn English and took a job as maid in the Rockefellers' Fifth Avenue home.

There was a stir in the congregation when Steven, in white tie and tails, came down the aisle escorting his mother. Tall and blue-eyed, she wore a printed cotton pique street-length dress in mauve and white and a large mauve colored hat. An orchid corsage was attached to her right shoulder. She wore two strings of pearls.

They bowed their heads for a few seconds. Then Steven turned his head and stared toward the front door of the church. He fidgeted nervously. He tried to push his white gloves in the pocket of his coat and found that he was sitting on one of the tails.

An instant before 4 p.m. cheers rose from the road outside the church. Crowds lined the road standing behind a roped-off area which stretched about 1,000 yards on each side of the church yard.

The bride was escorted to the church by her father, Kristian, retired grocer and fish merchant.

Young Democrats Back AFL-CIO Labor Bill Fight

CHICAGO (AP) — Midwest Young Democrats Saturday reaffirmed their stand in support of organized labor's fight against labor legislation urged by the Eisenhower administration.

The delegates adopted a resolution urging Congress to re-evaluate certain provisions of the Landrum - Griffen bill which was passed by the House Aug. 14.

The Young Democrats said the House bill would curb unions' collective bargaining activity without removing any present abuses of union power.

The resolution reaffirmed the Midwest Young Democrats' support of organizational picketing, secondary boycotts by unions and increased use of the National Labor Relations Board.

About 100 delegates, representing 14 Midwest states, studied planks of both Young Democratic and national party platforms of 1956 in preparation for adoption of a new platform at their national meeting in Toledo beginning Nov. 19.

Prior to the platform meetings, Louis P. Farina of Chicago, Young Democratic president of Illinois, addressed the delegates on political organization at the college level. The meetings wound up with a banquet.

Collision Near Astoria Kills 3

ASTORIA, Ill. (AP)—Two men and a boy were killed and another man injured Saturday night in a collision of an auto an a truck on a highway six miles southeast of this Fulton County town.

The dead were:

Robert Danner, 36, and his son, Earl Dennie, 12, and Carl Moose, age unavailable. All were residents of Woodland township, near Astoria.

The injured man is Ted Moose, 16, a brother of the dead man. He was taken to the Mason District hospital in Havana.

Ike Returns To Washington, Prepares For European Trip

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower is closing out 17 days of on-and-off vacationing at his country estate in preparation for a return to Washington and a strenuous trip to Europe.

Eisenhower plans to go back to the capital late Sunday, be at his White House desk Monday and Tuesday, and take off at 3 a.m. (EST) Wednesday for Germany, Britain and France.

This will be a major diplomatic mission, marked by gala welcomes, formal receptions and efforts to strengthen understanding among Allied leaders in advance of an exchange of visits this fall between Eisenhower and Premier Nikita Khrushchev of the Soviet Union.

The temporary White House announced Saturday that Khrushchev will arrive in Washington Sept. 15 on a 13-day, seven-city visit to the United States.

In traveling to Europe for discussions pegged to the Khrushchev visit and his own trip to the U.S.S.R. later on, Eisenhower will be embarking his administration on a new era of personal diplomacy

He will consult in turn with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of Germany, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain and President Charles de Gaulle of France.

A wall of secrecy may be built up around what these free world leaders say and decide. Yet there probably will be official communiques growing from the meetings. And possibly Eisenhower will hold his first overseas news conference somewhere along the line.

Certainly other precedents will be set. In Paris, for example, Eisenhower will become the first American ever to sleep in the king's chamber at the royal apartments on the Quai d'Orsay. Twelve footmen will serve him.

Eisenhower and Macmillan will have a sort of summit chat on TV and radio in London on Aug. 31. That in itself will be something different.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter is making the rounds of Bonn, London and Paris with the President.

Eisenhower spends just the one day in Bonn, then flies to London the evening of Aug. 27. He will be in Britain until Sept. 2, and then will complete his European journey with a stay in Paris.

Crum-Bushnell Rites Performed At Barrow

ROODHOUSE—Karen Bushnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murl Bushnell, and Larry Lee Crum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Crum, were united in marriage at 2:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 20 at the Barrow Baptist church. Rev. Harry Potter performed the single ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown of white brocaded taffeta with fitted bodice, long tapering sleeves and bouffant floor length skirt. Her tiara featured rhinestones and a finger tip veil. She carried a nosegay of white carnations centered by a single white orchid, with white satin streamers. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Serving as maid of honor was the bride's sister, Linda Bushnell, who chose a gown of pink and white taffeta with white net and lace, and carried a nosegay of blue carnations.

G. D. Jones, friend of the groom, was his best man.

The bride's mother wore a pink floral silk afternoon dress with white accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother's dress was of black voile with black accessories and her corsage was also of white carnations.

Presiding at the piano was Miss Nita Ford, Carrollton, who played the nuptial music and accompanied Miss Pat Spencer who sang, "I Love You Truly," "Because," and while the couple knelt, "The Lord's Prayer."

Visitors In Hunt Home

Visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd V. Hunt, Sr., have been their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Hunt, Jr., and two children, Chicago. Also dinner guests in the same home Thursday evening were former residents, Major Stephen O. Edwards, and son, Stephen, Jr., recently of Germany, now of Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., and his sister, Mrs. David Paretsky, son Jonathon and daughter, Sarah, Lawrence, Kan.

Carolyn McCracken, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil McCracken, has returned home from near Columbia, Mo., where she visited her friend, Diane McGlasson, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul McGlasson. Diane who had expected to accompany her friend to Roodhouse for a visit, fell and sustained a broken arm.

Miss Lucy Ash has returned to Alton, after a visit here with her sisters, Mrs. Nettie Story and Mrs. C. A. Spencer.

Joe and Janey Hopkins have been visitors in the home of their grandmother, Mrs. Joe McDaniels, Jerseyville.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Shaw and son, Chicago, are visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shaw. John Shaw of Roodhouse, who has been visiting in Chicago, returned home with them. John had accompanied his uncle and family to Wisconsin on a trip.

Rev. and Mrs. Elmer Johnston, La Porte, Ind., visited during the weekend in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Wayne Elliott, and family, en route to attend a Christian church convention in Denver, Colo.

Mrs. Frank Scott, Sr., is visiting her son, Dixon Scott, and family in Freeport, Long Island, N. Y. The trip out was made by jet plane from St. Louis.

Receive Entries For 'Miss Cass Fair' Contest

VIRGINIA — Entries are still being taken at the County Fair Office in the Farm Bureau Hall, in Virginia, for "Miss Cass County Fair." Entrants must be 15 and not over 20 years of age, never been married and not a professional model.

All girls entering the contest will be guests of the Fair Board Wednesday, August 26, at 5:30 p.m., at a dinner at Sweatman's Cafe, in Virginia.

The judges, all from out of the county, will judge the girls on beauty, poise and personality. After the dinner, the girls will be presented in formals in front of the grandstand at the fairgrounds August 26. Entries will be taken until noon on August 22, at the Farm Bureau Building, in Virginia.

District Rebekah Lodges Engage In Member Contest

CARROLLTON—The members of the Carrollton Rebekah Lodge have planned to join other lodges in the district in a membership contest which will close the last of September with a dinner in which the losers in the contest entertain the winners. Plans for the contest were made at the regular meeting of the Lodge Thursday.

The two district deputies in the district, Mrs. LaVern Bell of Carrollton and Miss Edith Catt of Jerseyville have divided the lodges in the district into two groups and each of them are in charge of five lodges in the contest. Mrs. Bell is in charge of the contest in White Hall, Roodhouse, Palmyra, Girard and Carrollton and Miss Catt of Jerseyville, Brighton, Gillespie, Staunton and Mt. Olive.

The members also planned a carry in supper for September 3 with families of the Rebekahs invited. A short ceremonial will be held followed by an evening of entertainment and each Rebekah is being asked to bring a wrapped .25 cent gift to be used as prizes.

Plans were made for a bake sale to be held September 19, the place to be announced.

Announcement was made of the fish fry Sunday at the cabin of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stevens and Bill Stevens near Hardin to which all Carrollton Rebekah and I.O.O.F. and their families are invited.

Mason Reunion Held At Park Dining Hall

Officers for this year will assume the same offices next year: Henry Mason, president; James Young, vice president; Mrs. Mary Ellen Mason, secretary; Mrs. Mildred Wilson, assistant secretary; Otis Mason, treasurer.

The table committee for next year will be Mrs. Shirley Mason, Mrs. Donna Mason, Mrs. JoAnn Mason and Mrs. Mildred Wilson.

Since the last reunion, there has been one marriage, that of Donna Mason and Larry Summers. Also, there has been one death since the last gathering, that of Thomas Mason.

There have been six births: a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Braner of Rock Island, Ill.; a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wilson of Winchester; a son to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mason of Carbondale; a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. James Mason of Jacksonville; a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Larry Summers of Jacksonville; a son to Mr. and Mrs. John Mason of Winchester.

Those attending were Mrs. Clara Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Mason and Jan, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mason, Mellie and Jeffrey, all of Jacksonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Goodpasture of Concord, Mr. and Mrs. George Jones, Literberry; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Roach, Gloria and Johnny of Arcola; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wilson, Debbie and Linda of Winchester; Mr. and Mrs. James Hembrough, Rickey and Paul of Murrayville; Mr. and Mrs. John Roegge, Carolyn, Kathleen, and Anita of White Hall.

COULDN'T CUT WEEDS

HAMPTON, Va. (AP)— An 89-year-old man pleaded lack of funds when told to have the weeds cut on his home property. Three boys played good Samaritans and cut them. Later, after he had been committed to a hospital, money in his home and in bank accounts was found to total more than $14,000.

James Burge, The Grocer, Is 90 Today

What do you plan to do when you're 90 years old? James Burge, the grocer, keeps store 71 hours a week.

A Storekeeper For 56 Years, Still At It!

James Burge was born in Jacksonville, on South East street, on Aug. 23, 1869.

At 90 he moves around with the agility of a much younger man, but he says he's slowing down.

"I used to open the store at 5:30 a.m. and keep open until 10 or 11 in the evening, and till noon on Sunday. Now I just open at 7 and close around 6; Sundays still till noon."

So far as the national retail grocer's association knows, he's the oldest storetender in America.

Young Burge attended Lafayette grade school, but went to work at "any kind of odd jobs" when he was very young. As he grew older he was a farm hand.

He recalls that one day he came in from the Durbin area, where he had been working for William Russell.

"Get A Haircut"

"My brother, William, saw me. He told me to get a haircut and come over to the bakery run on West State street by Mayor John R. Davis, and that Davis wanted a deliveryman.

"I got the job. We came to work at 4 a.m. and had to load our van by 5:30, because the horses were rarin' to go and hard to hold when the whistle blew. Most of the time I hauled the routes in the second and fourth wards. Usually I was through before 6 p.m.

"Bread then retailed seven loaves for a quarter. I worked for Davis for three years and did O.K., I guess, because he boosted my wages to $12 a week.

"A man who ran a grocery on West Anna street about three blocks east of here, convinced me that I should get into the business, and I bought him out. Everything went fine and four years later, in 1907, I built this place. That was before we had electricity in this part of town, but we knew it was coming, so I put in these light fixtures that work on either gas or electricity.

"For a long time my brother and I batched on the second floor. William was especially handy at the meat counter and liked to handle country produce such as butter, eggs and poultry. We had a regular clerk and a delivery boy and worked up a good trade."

Many Changes

He says he feels that the grocery business has changed about as much as any other segment of our society.

"In those days we bought in bulk and packaged nearly everything right in the store. Our line of goods was very small as compared to the big supermarkets of today, and our turnover was much slower. Trading was personal, at an easy gait compared with the modern grocery business. Often we'd spend more time with a 35c order than a supermarket takes checking out a $35 order. In good times half or more of the day's business went on the books, and in hard times credit business would run as high as 80%. Of course, we lost some accounts, but nearly everybody who could pay, paid eventually."

Mr. Burge doesn't believe the "efficiency" of the chain stores and their eventual mammoth supermarkets was responsible for the decline of the small grocery.

It Was Taxes

"We knew our customers and knew how to hold them to us. It wasn't lack of trade that broke down the small merchants; it was taxes. Before high taxes a small operator could break even or about even during a hard year, but when he had a good year he could buy himself a piece of property, something that he could rent and something for him to hold on to for his older days. But with our taxes, the small man can't do that anymore."

Mr. Burge believes the customer is always right.

"This used to be our cigar counter," he said as he pointed to a long case faced by curved glass. "We stocked every union made cigar rolled in Jacksonville, plus some popular brands from Canton, Peoria and Pittsburgh, about 20 to 30 different brands. We didn't buy them a box at a time, but from 500 to 1,000 cigars of each label at a time. We had a real cigar business.

Not Worth Buying

"Now I have one box of cigars. It has been here a long time. The other day I decided to smoke one. You're right, it wasn't worth smoking — so it's small wonder that nobody's buying."

Times change. His store at 533 South Church street was the most modern grocery in town — back in 1907.

They're empty now, but they used to be filled with rice, sugar, beans, hominy and "green" coffee.

"When I first got in the grocery business nearly everybody bought green coffee berries and the housewives would roast them to suit their own taste by putting the coffee in a shallow pan into the kitchen range oven. We didn't sell much roasted coffee until Jenkinson put in his coffee roaster. The Jenkinson company was a mighty fine outfit, and still is, although the people that I started doing business with have all died off."

Mr. Burge is particularly busy during school days, when the kids from Washington school swarm in during the noon hour and at closing time to buy penny candy.

"They can keep a man humping," he says.

Mr. Burge lives at 1022 West College avenue. He has a son, James, who has bought the John Deere farm implement agency in Tuscola, and a daughter, Aileen, Mrs. Roy Wright, 1022 West Lafayette avenue.

"I want you to go easy on this write-up," he cautioned. "Mamie, that's my wife, has been wanting me to sell this place and retire and if you make a big story of it she might insist.

Calhoun County Tuberculosis Board Meets

HARDIN, Ill. —— Members of the executive board of the Calhoun County Tuberculosis Association met in the court house at 7:30 Tuesday evening. Mrs. Frances Long, area secretary of the Illinois Valley T.B. Project which includes Calhoun, Greene and Pike counties presided at the meeting.

Plans were formulated for having the State Mobile X-ray unit come to Calhoun in November.

Mrs. Long announced that this year's quota of Christmas Seals will be prepared for mailing in the basement of the Farm Bureau building.

The first Tuesday of November and February were tentatively selected for future meetings of the board.

7-Piece Band Entertains Lions At White Hall

WHITE HALL— The regular meeting of the Lions Club was held Wednesday at the Methodist church with supper at 6:30 o'clock. President W. J. Ritchey was in charge.

Harold Farmer presented Don Evans who in turn presented a seven piece band composed of Mel Dalhouse, Winchester, and Jim Tilley Jr., this city on trumpets; Ed Pritchett and Dr. Frank Klainsek, clarinets; Virgil Bowen, trombone; Paul F. Brown, baritone; and Donald Evans, bass horn. The program was well presented.

Fred Moulton collected the attendance prize. A. R. McConathy, chairman of the annual fall sale committee called a short meeting of his committee. The sale is announced for Oct. 30.

Jacksonville Man Home From Plane Trip To England

J. A. Foster, 812 South West street, recently returned from a seven weeks trip visiting relatives in Nottingham and Sutton, England. He made the trip via plane from Chicago to London.

While there he visited many old buildings including Newstead Abbey, the home of Lord Byron, the poet; Chatsworth House and gardens, the former home of the Dukes of Derbyshire; Southwell Minisery where the Bishop of the Church of England lived.

Also another old church in Sutton, which had a record of Vicars as far back as 1250.

The Nottingham castle used in days of civil war in England and the Robin Hood days were viewed.

Mr. Foster visited London seeing St. Paul's Cathedral where the beautiful shrine was erected by John Jacob Astor in memory of American soldiers stationed in England, who gave their lives in World War Two, finding there in a large volume the name of his son, Ralph.

Other places of interest seen were Trafalgar Square, No. 10 Downing Street, Houses of Parliament, London Tower and Buckingham Palace.

"It was a wonderful trip and one which I will always remember most vividly," Mr. Foster said.

Rep. Green Discusses Legislative Action

State Representative Hugh Green of this city was guest speaker at the Friday meeting of Rotary, discussing legislative matters during the 1959 session of the General Assembly.

He pointed out that of the record number of 2699 bills introduced, 1142 were approved by the Governor, 215 having been vetoed, after 1357 passed both branches of the legislative body.

Among the subjects deemed of general interest, Rep. Green discussed the following: taxation, agreed labor bills, secret primary, administration of estates, traffic safety, construction bond issues, moratorium on death penalty.

Tells Of Budget Message

Regarding taxation, Governor Stratton in his Budget message of April 22 stated that, at the beginning of the new biennium on July 1, the balance in the General Revenue Fund would be 51 million dollars. However, he recognized the pressing needs of schools and welfare for increases and had, in his message of Jan. 6, said that "if the people are going to expect the state to provide huge increases to support the elementary schools and the several relief programs then they had better be taxed specifically for these purposes." The result was an increase of ½ cent in the sales tax and a 50% increase of the liquor tax, plus 1 cent per package on cigarettes to pay for a Korean Bonus.

Agreed Labor Bills. Insofar as Workmen's Compensation and Unemployment Compensation are concerned, the process of having them prepared and passed has been adopted for years. Representative Green has served on the hearing committee quite a number of sessions. When the final draft is submitted to the House and Senate it meets with approval of industry as well as labor.

Ballot Proposal Loses

Secret Primary Ballot. The Better Government Association and Legislative Voter's League opposed this proposal and declared that it was dangerous. Research disclosed that the Illinois Primary vote compared favorably with that of other states with a secret ballot, which was said to weaken the two party system and permit one party to name a weak candidate for the opposing party. The proposal lost.

Administration of Estates. For the first time, after many attempts, a non-resident heir can have the right to nominate an administrator of the estate of an Illinois owner of property. In past sessions the disability of the non-resident was sought to be removed but the effort always failed.

Traffic Safety. With the adoption of the 65 mile limit and increased efforts at enforcement, the loss of lives declined, there being 2135 in 1956 compared with 2096 in 1957 and 1886 in 1958. To date the rate in 1959 is lower than in 1958.

Construction Bond Issues. In 1958 the proposal for issuance of 248 million dollars in bonds for tax supported state universities and colleges received a good vote but short of the number required. In 1960 the two purposes will be separated. For Welfare Construction purposes the amount submitted will be 150 million, whereas 195 million will represent tax-supported institutions of learning.

Death Penalty Remains

Moratorium on death penalty. Such a six year moratorium was not adopted. The line of thinking which prevailed was to the effect that a robber or burglar would hesitate to "shoot his way out" if he knew death to be the penalty instead of life-imprisonment.

The speaker mentioned additional topics which might be of interest if time permitted discussion, such as: Mental Health, Agriculture, Conservation, Youth Commission, Military, New Penal Institutions, Civil Rights, Judicial Reform, Public Aid, Reorganization of Departments and Constitutional Amendments.

Mr. Green was introduced by program chairman, James A. Dunlap.

Jacksonville Sorority Meets At Ashland Cafe

ASHLAND — Misses Virginia Miller and Marie Ellering were honored at the social meeting of the Jacksonville Chapter of Alpha Iota sorority. The meeting was held at Lillian's Knotty Pine restaurant in Ashland, with Joyce Nutgrass and Frances Gutmann as hostesses.

Bunco was played, with prizes going to Martha Lorton and Betty Hembrough, and the door prize was won by Dorothy Crabtree.

Following the games, Misses Miller and Ellering were presented gifts. During the social hour refreshments of cake, ice cream and iced tea were served.

PERFECT PEACHES

If a recipe calls for fresh peach pulp, prepare it by removing the skins from the peaches, pitting, slicing and then crushing. A potato masher may be used for the crushing process.

Groups To Study Referendum In Greenfield Area

GREENFIELD—The Board of Education of the Greenfield Community Unit Schools has announced that on Tuesday, Sept. 8, at 8:00 p.m. a discussion concerning the referendum elections to be held Sept. 19 will be conducted at the following places:

Greenfield—High school auditorium.
Rockbridge—School.
Wrights—Town Hall.
Athensville—Town Hall.

Plan now to attend one of these meetings. The reason for the Board of Education wanting to raise the educational tax levy from $1.25 to $1.50 will be fully discussed. Any questions concerning this issue will be answered.

Place At State Fair

Two local sulky enthusiasts, Lawrence Bowman and Edwin Frazier, captured places in the races being held at the Illinois State Fairgrounds this week.

Frazier placed second and fourth with his horse, Spring Dream, in the three-year old trotter, Tom Brooke, placed third in the second heat of the Illinois Colt Stakes.

Mr. Bowman had unusually good success with his horse Tom Brooke this year on the fair circuit. He has only been defeated in two heats during the campaign.

Many At Open House For Arenzville Couple

ARENZVILLE—A large crowd of relatives and friends attended the open house for the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John Meyer at the Trinity Lutheran school auditorium. Their five children and their families were present for the occasion, the children being Mrs. Dorothy McGinnis, Emil and Harold Meyer, all of Rock Island; Lambert Meyer of Davenport, Iowa; and Mrs. Lorna Harbin of Arenzville.

The table was attractively decorated with a centerpiece of yellow daisies, and candles were used. Individually decorated cakes along with mints, coffee and punch were served by Mrs. Roy Harbin, Mrs. Noah McGinnis, Mrs. Lambert Meyer, Mrs. Emil Meyer and Mrs. Harold Meyer. The guest book was in charge of Michael Meyer, Ellen Meyer and Dolores Miller, grandchildren.

During the afternoon Wayne Strubbe sang, "Faith Unlocks the Door," and "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Miss Kristine Natemeyer.

The couple received many lovely gifts, including a Television from their children. Also many beautiful bouquets and potted plants.

Two of the attendants at the wedding in 1909 were present Sunday, Mrs. Lorenz Schaefer of Beardstown, and Rudolph Eberhardt of Decatur.

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. John Fricke, Mrs. Grace Schnitker, Mrs. Marvin Ommen, Mrs. Hershell Staake, and Mrs. Theodore Lovekamp.

Judith Ann Lair And Jerome M. Regan Exchange Vows In Ceremony Saturday

At eight-thirty o'clock Saturday morning, August twenty-second, at the Church of Our Saviour Miss Judith Ann Lair and Jerome Michael Regan were united in Holy Matrimony before a large gathering of friends and relatives. The Reverend John Spreen performed the double ring ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

The former Miss Lair is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Lair, Number Three Ogden Road and Mr. Regan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Regan, 200 East Pennsylvania avenue.

Mrs. Alta Eisch presided at the organ for High Mass. "On This Day O Beautiful Mother" was sung as the bride placed a bouquet at the statue of the Blessed Virgin.

The bride's three attendants, Miss Barbara Ann Smith, Miss Rebecca Wagner and Miss Marian Regan wore ballerina frocks in pastel shades with white. The bouffant skirts were in white dotted Swiss and the bodices in pastel lace over matching satin with glistening satin sashes tying in large bows at the back waistlines.

Miss Smith, maid of honor and a cousin of the bride, wore blue; Miss Wagner, bridesmaid, was in pink and Miss Regan, sister of the groom and junior bridesmaid, was in yellow. They carried colonial bouquets of shaded carnations corresponding to the color of their respective costumes.

Little Susan Frye of Payson and Sherrie Watson, were flower girls in the wedding party. They wore blue frocks made identical to those worn by the bride's attendants.

Thomas Regan attended his brother as best man. Michael Walker, cousin of the groom and Robert Lair, brother of the bride, were groomsmen. Ushers were Bill Ferry, Gerald Reveal and Ted Cors.

Chantilly with Tulle

The bride wore an elegant gown of imported Chantilly lace and sheer nylon tulle. The long sleeved lace bodice was cut V at the nipped in waistline and the sleeves pointed V over the wrists.

The sweetheart neckline was jeweled in sequins and pearls. The gown's bouffant skirt was extended full o v e r graduated hoops and fashioned with panel front and a crescendo of wide ruffles alternating with matching lace and tulle flowing into a Chapel train o v e r shimmering satin.

Reception at Hotel

Immediately after the wedding a reception was held at Hotel Dunlap where blue with white comprised the decor. The bride's cake, frosted white, was trimmed with touches of pastel blue. Guests were served punch or coffee with cake, nutmeats and mints.

Assisting with the serving were Mrs. Clarence Smith, Miss Mary Lair and Mrs. Ralph Frye, aunts of the bride; Mrs. Harold Walker, aunt of the groom, Miss Charlene Pettit, Miss Judi Fernandes, and Misses Joann and Diann Frye, Payson, cousins of the bride.

Upon their return to Jacksonville they will be at home at 197 South Prairie street.

Mrs. Regan and her bridegroom graduated from Routt High School with the class of 1956. She just recently graduated from Holy Cross Central School of Nursing, South Bend, Ind. The bridegroom, employed at Illinois Power Company, will enter Springfield Junior College, Springfield, Ill., this fall.

The Cranes and her brother, Paul Blackburn of Joliet were Tuesday evening supper guests in the home of their sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harold McEvers and family. Another sister, Mr. and Mrs. Donald White and family, near Winchester, were after-supper callers in the McEvers home.

Mrs. Pearl Dale of Carrollton has been a recent visitor in the home of her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Savage and family, returning home over the past weekend.

Martha Carroll And Larry Flynn United Saturday

Miss Martha Elizabeth Carroll became the bride of Lawrence Joseph Flynn at 10 o'clock Mass yesterday morning at the Church of Our Saviour. Reverend Father Robert P. Morris officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride's brother, Leo, and Bernard Ferry, served as acolytes.

The former Miss Carroll is the daughter of Mrs. Martin J. Carroll of 116 West Greenwood Avenue, and the late Mr. Carroll.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Edward. She was preceded to the altar by Mrs. Robert D. Smith, the former Mary Carroll, as maid of honor, who served as her sister's only attendant.

The bride wore an embroidered nylon and tulle gown designed by her mother. The wedding dress was fashioned with Sabrina neckline and short, shirred sleeves. A crown of sequins and pearls secured her fingertip veil. She carried white carnations with stephanotis and ivy.

The maid of honor was gowned in yellow silk chiffon trimmed in Chantilly lace. She wore matching gloves and veil and carried yellow carnations and ivy.

Wedding Breakfast

Following the ceremony a breakfast was served the immediate families at the Hotel Dunlap after which Mr. Flynn and his bride left by plane for New Orleans, where they will spend their honeymoon. They will make their home here.

Mr. Flynn is the son of Attorney and Mrs. Edward J. Flynn. He graduated from Saint Louis University School of Law in June of this year, where he was honored by selection as Editor-in-Chief of the Saint Louis University of Law Journal in his senior year, and membership in the National Honor Society. Upon graduation, he received the appintment as law clerk for the coming year for Federal Judge Omer Poos, Judge of the United States District Court, Springfield, Ill.

71 Pints Of Blood Donated In Calhoun

HARDIN, Ill.—Calhoun's Bloodmobile visit Thursday netted only 71 pints of the 150 pint goal. "A large number of those who have always supported the blood program did not contribute because of the excessive heat and humid weather which has left energy at low ebb," county blood chairman, Mrs. August Simon said in accounting for the small turnout of donors.

This was Calhoun's 23rd Blood Drive and tenth split-mobile. Hardin and Kampsville shared donor responsibility. Drs. Henry Popielewski and S. L. Miller supervised the Hardin operation where 44 donors presented themselves. Of this number, 37 were successful donors and seven were rejected.

Dr. Keyes of St. Louis was in charge of the Kampsville visit where 34 pints of blood were collected and only two of the 36 donors were rejected.

Members of the Woman's Club provided canteen service at each town. Mrs. Art Kamp was in charge of arrangements and Mrs. Walter Suhling headed donor recruitment for the Kampsville operation.

Two new members were added to Calhoun's "Gallon Club." They are Mrs. William Stone, Hardin, and Elmer Held, Brussels.

Mrs. Simon announced that the next Bloodmobile is scheduled for March 31, 1960 with Hardin and Brussels sharing the split-mobile duties.

Charge Meredosia Men With Burglary; Set Bond At $3,000

Four Meredosia young men were placed under $3,000 bond each Saturday morning after being named in warrants charging burglary. All four are alleged to be linked with a burglary at the South Side Tavern in Meredosia last week in which cash and a large quantity of liquor was removed from the building.

The four young men are: Jerry Gleghorn, 16; Ronnie Probasco, 18; Roger, 17, and Bobby Lee Dawson, 21, all of Meredosia. Bond in the amount of $3,000 was set Saturday morning by Justice Charles K. Warzar.

Deputies Harold Wright and Arthur Roach joined George Flynn, Meredosia city marshal, early Friday morning and worked until late Friday before apprehending the four suspects. All four deny any connection with the recent robberies.

Offers Drink

The tip-off in the investigation came Thursday evening when a Meredosia resident was offered a drink at a nearby lake. The young men were visiting at the lake and offered the resident a drink. When asked what kind they had, they brought out a selection of three premium brands.

Find Watches, Money

Deputies uncovered another clue in the investigation when they were led to a buried treasure. Several watches and a sum of money were found buried in a timber shortly after noon Friday.

Further investigation into the burglaries will continue, according to deputies. The four suspects were taken into custody and brought to the Morgan county jail for interrogation and charged with burglary.

Mrs. Jack Elwin Barrow

Jack Barrow And Miss Cartwright Wed In Ceremony Aug. 9 At Mitchell, Indiana

The wedding of Miss Patricia Louise Cartwright of Mitchell, Indiana and Jack Elwin Barrow, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Barrow of Winchester was solemnized the afternoon of August nine at the First Baptist church in Mitchell. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Paul Cartwright of Mitchell.

Gown On Classic Lines

Her gown of white imported silk and lace was fashioned with a scalloped scoop neckline and small sleeves. The fitted bodice and entire skirt front had an overlay of lace, salt-water pearls and sequins. The gown's court train had appliques of lace and seed pearls.

Her three tiered veil of silk illusion was held by a crown of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a cascading bouquet of amazon lilies, stephanotis and ivy. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Miss Natalie McConkey of Defiance, Ohio was maid of honor and Miss Donna Holt of New Lexington, Ohio, bridesmaid. Both were college classmates of the bride.

Their identical gowns were of lilac silk organza, fashioned with Sabrina necklines and full harem skirts. They wore white garden hats of imported Swiss braid, white gloves and slippers matching the shade of their gowns. They carried cascading bouquets of stephanotis and ivy.

Dr. Warren Barrow of Chicago, Illinois attended his brother as best man and Robert Jess of Jacksonville was groomsman.

Mrs. Cartwright, mother of the bride, wore a dress of pearl grey Chantilly lace over rose satin with matching accessories.

Mrs. Barrow, mother of the groom, wore beige silk with matching accessories. Their corsages were Philanopsis orchids.

Nuptial Prelude

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. John Endwright played organ selections: "At Dawning," "O' Perfect Love," "With This Ring I Thee Wed," "Because You're Mine," "Ich Leibe Dich," and the traditional wedding marches.

The church altar was banked with beauty baskets of white gladioli, palms and seven branched candelabra.

The pews were marked with candlelighted standards entwined with fern. Aisles leading to the rostrum where the vows were repeated were carpeted in white. An impressive part of the service was the lighting of a single candle by the bride and groom signifying oneness. The ritual was followed by "The Lord's Prayer" as benediction.

Receive At Home

The five-tiered cake was beautifully decorated in the bride's chosen colors of lilac and white. The top of the cake was frosted in a nose-gay arrangement of roses, lilies, and valley lilies. Ivy and stephanotis decorated the base of the cake and silver candelabra were placed on either side on the satin covered table.

Mrs. Warren Barrow presided at the similarly-decorated punch table. Others assisting at the reception were: Mrs. Robert King, Mrs. John Foddrill. Mrs. Frances X. Newman, Mrs. James Burrell, Mrs. Wayne Bass, and Mrs. Lawrence Haverly.

To Live In Georgia

For traveling Mrs. Barrow wore a beige silk costume with corresponding accessories. A large picture hat in cinnamon-velvet, and matching gloves completed her costume.

Mrs. Barrow was graduated this year from MacMurray College and has a teaching position in the Winder High School, Winder, Georgia. She is a member of Phi Beta Psi Sorority and the First Baptist Church.

Mr. Barrow is a junior in the School of Pharmacy at the University of Georgia. After August 24th the couple will be at home in Athens, Georgia.

Rehearsal Dinner

On Saturday evening Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Barrow entertained the members of the wedding party and other guests and friends of both families at a rehearsal dinner held in the Mural Room of the French Lick-Sheraton Hotel at French Lick, Indiana.

The white linen covered table was centered with a large floral piece of lavender mums and white gladioli, the bride's colors.

Those from the area and of interest here attending the wedding were: Dr. and Mrs. Warren Barrow and children, Danny and Kris, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Pessina of Jacksonville; Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Pessina of Jacksonville; Mrs. Jack Pessina of St. Louis, Missouri; Mrs. Elvira Arnodo of Christopher, Missouri and Robert Jess of Jacksonville.

Newcomers Picnic In Park Shelter House

The annual picnic for the Welcome Wagon Newcomers club was held Tuesday evening, Aug. 18, at Nichols park shelter house.

Hostesses for the picnic were: co-chairmen, Mrs. Leonard Vittitow and Mrs. Eugene Shuppara, assisted by Mrs. Catherine Bacon, Mrs. James Kats, Mrs. Phillip Strang, Mrs. Robert Musser, Mrs. Ed Hewitt, Mrs. Clarence Jennings, Mrs. Robert Owens and Mrs. Lawrence Durkee.

A number of new residents in Jacksonville were guests. Close to 50 adults and 25 children attended.

Mrs. Walton Post Nuptial Honoree

Mrs. Junius Walton of Jacksonville, the former Lucille Barnhart, was guest of honor Sunday afternoon, Aug. 9, at a miscellaneous post nuptial shower at the home of Mrs. Merle Helliwell at Winchester.

Games were conducted and prizes went to Mrs. Emma Robinson, Irene Smith, Mrs. Stella Sheppard, Donna Heaton and Midge Winter.

Guests present were Mrs. Ruth Mosley, Mrs. Bill Walton, Mrs. C. C. Walton and Mrs. William Lu Casey, Macomb; Mrs. Emma Robinson, Mrs. Irene Smith.

Mrs. Eloise Lowe, Mrs. Inez Wilson, Mrs. Ora Sarff and Mrs. Elsie Parrott, Bath; Mrs. R. W. Gillham, Mrs. LeeRoy Jackson, Mrs. Estella Hill.

Mrs. Stella Sheppard, Mrs. Midge Winter and Vickie, Mrs. Howard Megginson.

Mrs. Betty Ann Freeman and Jan, Mrs. Bessie Megginson, Mrs. Mable Howard and Margie, Mrs. Donna Heaton, Mrs. Geraldine Taylor, Mrs. Lillie Helliwell.

Mrs. George Barnhart, Mrs. Ruth Bell, Miss Becky Jo Butler, Mrs. Walton, the hostess, Mrs. Helliwell and co-hostesses, Mrs. Lela Ford, Mrs. Rowena McDaniels, Mrs. Elta Belsse and Mrs. Lona Butler.

Mrs. Victor Sheppard, Mrs. Evelyn Clayton, Mrs. Dean Strubbe, Mrs. Harriett Eades, Mrs. Bessie Winter, Mrs. Clark Winter, Miss Iva Winter, Mrs. Louise Stevens.

Mrs. Judith Craig, Mrs. LeRoy Barnhart, Springfield; Mrs. Mary Ann Stark, Alton; Mrs. Elizabeth Blesse, Miss Gertie Jean Parrott, Bath.

Mrs. Rolf Hostess To Arcadia Club

Mrs. Harold Rolf entertained the Arcadia Woman's Club at the Community Hall on August 12. The meeting was called to order by president, Mrs. Harold McGinnis.

Roll call was answered by an interesting one day trip taken by each of the 17 members.

Four guests were present, including Mary Jane, Gina Henderson, Jill Jones and Carla Leonard. Mrs. Fred Standley, music chairman, led the group in singing "My Faith Looks Up To Thee."

Mrs. Fred Standley had the devotions reading the 26th Psalm.

Mrs. James Daniels was elected to serve as vice-president for the rest of the year. An interesting program concerning Park Ridge Girls School was held with Mrs. Allan Henderson and Mrs. Frank Rolf in charge.

Mrs. William Lee Summey Jr.

Summey-Peters Nuptials Performed Aug. 16 In Congregational Church In Beardstown

BEARDSTOWN — Miss Elizabeth Anne Peters, daughter of Mrs. J. W. Lawler and Howard H. Peters, became the bride of William Lee Summey, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Summey Sr., in a ceremony performed at 4 o'clock Sunday, August sixteenth, in the Congregational church.

The Rev. Richard A. Bailey of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church of Bluff Springs read the vows for the double ring ceremony.

George Boyd sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The plain gored skirt fell in two lengths with concentrated back fullness falling from the bodice which simulated a train.

Three Attendants

Mrs. Robert Ramsey, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Miss Rita Summey, sister of the groom, and Miss Hannah Peters, sister of the bride, were junior bridesmaids.

The bride's attendants all wore identical gowns of beige lace over beige, matching color satin shoes, and ribbon hats. They carried nosegays of champagne colored carnations.

Groom's Party

Robert Ramsey and Don Huston were ushers.

Miss Linda Lawler was flower girl, and Randy Summey was ring bearer.

Receive At Church

A reception was held in the church basement immediately after the ceremony.

Those assisting at the reception were Mrs. Wilburn Briney, Miss Mary Helen Rodgers, Miss Nancee Marshall, Miss Paula Woods, Miss Susan Meyer, Miss Judy Hager, Miss Marilyn Lebkuecher, Miss Susan Jones, and Mrs. Richard Lawler.

The groom was graduated from Beardstown High school with the class of 1955 and attended Western Illinois University at Macomb where he was a member of Delta Sigma Phi social fraternity. He is presently employed with the Ohio River company.

Out of town guests at the wedding and reception were from Hinsdale, Ill., Jacksonville, Mason City, Burlington, Athens, Ill., Havana, and New Berlin.

Mrs. Albert James Jackson

Albert J. Jackson Weds Carolyn Cline Of Petersburg In Menard Church Rites

St. Peter's Catholic church in Petersburg was the scene for the August nine wedding of Miss Carolyn Ruth Cline of that city and Albert James Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Jackson, Jacksonville route four. The morning ceremony was performed by the Reverend Stanley Swiatek who used the double ring service in which the bride was given in marriage by her father. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cline, Petersburg route four.

White glads adorned the altar of the church. St. Peter's choir provided music for the Mass.

Miss Margaret Knepler of New Berlin was maid of honor and Robert Jackson of Murrayville served his brother as best man. Ushers were Robert Bergschneider of Alexander and Donald Lynn of Pawnee, cousin of the bride.

Wears Formal Gown

The bride wore a lovely wedding gown of frosty nylon tulle and delicate French lace over crisp white taffeta. Lace formed the snug bodice with long tapered sleeves and a flattering Sabrina neckline sprinkled with iridescent sequins and seed pearls.

The floor length skirt was bouffant and featured a wide panel of lace at center front and at the back. Tiers of tulle and scalloped lace formed the extended sides of the gown's skirt worn over graduated hoops and finished with a dust ruffle. She carried a satin ribbon streamered orchid with ivy atop a white prayer book. The bride's blusher veil was caught to a lace headdress.

Mrs. Cline wore for Carolyn's wedding pink French voile with white accessories and Mrs. Jackson chose orchid and white with white accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations.

Parents Entertain

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents immediately following the ceremony. The white frosted cake was trimmed with mint green. The floral centerpiece at the serving table was flanked with green tapers. Guests enjoyed wedding cake, punch, mints and nutmeats.

Assisting with the serving were Miss Nadean Sooy, Miss Barbara Stroup and Miss Lois Eickelberg, all living in Springfield.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to Wisconsin the bride was wearing a blue silk organza afternoon frock with the orchid from her wedding bouquet. Since their return Mr. and Mrs. Jackson are residing on Jacksonville route four where the bridegroom is engaged in farming.

Mrs. Jackson graduated in 1956 from Harris High School at Petersburg and until recently was employed at Sangamon County Abstract Company in Springfield. The groom graduated in 1954 from Routt high school.

The Degree is a public ceremonial and all friends of the Order are cordially invited to attend.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP)—With offerings again small and a firming market for wholesale pork, butcher hog prices advanced 25 to 50 cents a hundredweight this week.

On Friday, the top price hit $15.65 a hundredweight for the highest since $16.00 was paid on July 9. The week's supply of 31,500 head equaled the total of two weeks ago which was the smallest for any week in more than a year.

The week's cattle supply was 8 per cent larger than a week ago and the largest for any week in two months. It consisted of about 75 per cent slaughter steers which declined as much as $1 a hundredweight to a low for the year.

A sharply reduced shipper demand and a weaker market for carcas lamb combined to weaken the sheep market this week although the supply was down 10 per cent from a week ago. Offerings were mostly spring slaughter lambs and that class showed the extreme decline of $2 a hundredweight.

Hogs 100; for the week: At the close selected No 1 high yielding 211 lb butchers commanded 15.65, highest since July 9, U.S. mixed grades No 2 and 3 230-280 lbs and mixed grades No 1, 2 and 3 190-230 lb butchers sold at 14.85-15.25. Small lots mixed No 1, 3 180-195 lbs closed at 14.50-15.25. Mixed grades 275-425 lb sows closed at 11.75-13.75, a few under 300 lbs to 14.00. Mixed grades No 2 and 3 425-550 lb sows late at 10.50-11.75.

Cattle 100; for the week: Load-lots mostly prime 1100-1350 lb steers late 28.50-29.00 with only four loads 1175-1275 lb weights 29.25 and 29.50, bulk choice and mixed choice and prime steers late 26.75-28.25 with some loads mostly choice and prime 1400-1450 lbs 26.75-28.50, loadlots mixed good and choice steers largely 26.25-26.75, standard to average good grades 23.50-26.00, loadlots high choice and mixed choice and prime heifers 27.00-28.25, late bulk good to high choice heifers 24.00-26.50 with two loads high choice 975 lb weights 26.75, few utility and standard heifers 19.00-23.50. Few standard and good cows 20.00-22.00, utility and commercial cows closed at 17.50-20.00, utility and commercial bulls 21.75-24.25, few good and choice vealers 33.00, standard and good grades 25.00-32.00.

Sheep none; for the week: late bulk good and choice 80-97 lb spring slaughter lambs 20.00-22.00, few lots choice 95 lbs 22.50. Around 300 head good and choice 82 lb shorn spring slaughter lambs with No 2 pelts late 20.50. Cull to choice shorn slaughter ewes 3.50-5.00.

New York Stock Market

By SHEP CAMPBELL
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Jittery investors sat tight this week and brought stock marketing trading action close to a standstill.

In all, investors swapped only 11,762,210 shares against 12,768,484 the week before. Not since the week ending April 11, 1958, when 10,375,640 shares changed hands, had trading limped along so slowly in a full week.

Even some sharp price swings failed to stir much buying and selling. Market professionals reportedly provided much of the impetus for the price shifts.

1. The unknown effects of the Eisenhower - Khrushchev visits, particularly on defense industries.

2. The lengthening steel strike deadlock.

3. Uncertainty whether the government's "tight money" policy might dampen the business boom.

The market coasted steadily lower during the first half of the week. Then, around noon on Wednesday, prices swung around abruptly and started recouping their losses.

Thursday saw the sharpest market upsurge in 21 months as steels and rails paced a sizzling advance. Prices settled back and seesawed within a narrow range on Friday.

Overall, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks slipped $1.10 to $229.90.

The limited trading interest was mirrored in the narrow range of stocks traded. Only 1,384 different issues crossed the tape. Of these, 984 retreated on the week and 269 advanced.

Government bonds declined under pressure of tighter money, rising interest rates and uninspiring news.

Volume slipped to $24,811,000 par value on the New York Stock Exchange from $30,325,200 the previous week. A year ago it was $24,130,700.

ESTIMATED RECEIPTS

CHICAGO (AP)—Estimated livestock receipts for Monday are 8,000 hogs, 20,000 cattle and 2,000 sheep.

WEEK'S GRAIN PRICES RUN STEADY TO WEAK

By GIL MAYO
AP Business News Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—There was not a single significant guiding influence in the grain futures market this week and prices held barely steady to weak for the period on the Board of Trade.

Until Friday, nearly all price shifts were within small fractions of a cent from day to day without establishing a trend either way. Trade volume probably was the smallest for any week this year with the total for wheat topping five million bushels on only two days, considerably less than half the normal amount.

The market became wedged after adjusting to the government's bearish August crop report, then stalled in the absence of any consequential domestic or export business.

Most interest meanwhile centered on another government report which was not released until after the close of trading on Friday. The report showed amounts of grains placed in government loan under the price support program.

In anticipation of the report, one commission firm commented that if the loan figure on wheat especially was anywhere near as imposing as the one at the same time a year ago it perhaps could be a decidedly bullish factor.

When the government report came out, it showed that almost 108 million bushels already had gone into the loan by the end of July.

At the end of the week, wheat was unchanged to ½ cent a bushel lower than a week ago, September $1.89½; corn unchanged to 1¼ lower, September $1.18⅞-19; oats ¼-½ lower, September new type contract 66½; rye 1½-2⅝ lower, September $1.29¼; soybeans ½-⅞ lower, September $2.10½.

Greenfield Girls Attend Rainbow Order Reception

GREENFIELD— Miss Brenda Shields, Worthy Advisor of the Order of Rainbow for Girls in this city; Miss Sandra Strang, Worthy Associate Advisor; Miss Bonita Hamilton, Charity; and Miss Marilyn Thaxton, Hope of the Rainbow Girls, attended an initiation by the order held in Jacksonville in the Masonic Hall.

After the initiation the girls attended a reception in honor of Miss Betsy Heidinger, representative of Illinois to West Virginia.

Attend Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Hamilton and Bonita attended the wedding of Miss Corrine Maloney to Ted Miller in Ridgeway on Aug. 10. The couple will live in Albany, N. Y., where the groom is employed. Mrs. Miller was Home Economics teacher in the Greenfield schools and has been hired in that capacity in the Albany school system.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hall, and Miss Brenda Shields, of Greenfield and Dean Bishop of Sibley, Mo., who spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Bishop of Rockbridge, attended the State Fair in Springfield, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Houlette and sons left Thursday morning on a vacation trip to Colorado.

Guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Lorton the past week were Mrs. Lorton's sisters, Mrs. Ed DeShasier and son of Macomb and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Skaggs and daughter of Akron, Ohio.

Miss Linda Lee, Miss Marilyn Brown, Bob Brown and Leroy Frazier were guests of John Skaggs in Carrollton Sunday night at a "hamburger fry." Miss Lou Evans of Carrollton, was also a guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gaither and children were called to Fairfield Sunday due to the death of his mother, Mrs. William Gaither. Mrs. Gaither had been in ill health the past few months.

Serves In Reserve

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kinser returned to their home in St. Louis Sunday. Mr. Kinser had spent two weeks at army reserve Camp McCoy in Wisconsin. Mrs. Kinser and children were house guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Prather, during his absence. The Kinsers also attended the Stinnett reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Batty of Grafton entertained in honor of his mother, Mrs. Bertha Batty's birthday, Sunday. Those attending from here were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cole and son, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Jilg and son, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hill and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Batty, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Batty and daughter, Mrs. Richard Chinowth and children and Bert Reynolds.

Miss Claire Anne and Stanley James Luketich, children of Mr. and Mrs. Don Luketich of Alton, are spending a few days with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Shields.

The Stinnett reunion was held at Union Hall Sunday, Aug. 16. Those attending numbered 106. There are 204 direct descendants of James and Jane Ferguson Stinnett. The oldest present was Emma Stinnett, aged 86, and the youngest was Michael Eldon, two month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Stinnett of Gillespie. There were seven babies born during the year.

The strains of Wagner's wedding march welled up in the church. The congregation rose, and Steven turned and faced his bride. He smiled at her, and Mrs. Rockefeller smiled.

Anne Marie moved gracefully with a short, even step in her floor-length wedding gown of white brocade duchesse that shimmered as she came down the aisle.

Then the pastor began his sermon in Norwegian, lasting 12 minutes.

When he mentioned Anne Marie by name, Steven shot a quick glance at her. At that moment, Gov. Rockefeller caught Rasmussen's eye, and both men smiled.

Admonishing the couple to set an example for millions of other young couples, the pastor looked directly into Anne Marie's eyes.

"Let them see a Christian home," he said.

Turning his head to look at Steven, the Rev. Mr. Gautestad said: "And you, Steven Rockefeller, take with you into your new home a good inheritance. We have learned to know your God-fearing nature and the moral qualities inherited from your dear parents."

Speaking in English, the pastor said: "I ask you, Steven Clark Rockefeller, before God and in the presence of this congregation, do you take Anne Marie Rasmussen here beside you to be your wedded wife?"

Steven replied, "I do."

"Will you live with her after God's holy ordinance and love and honor her, and cleave to her in good times and in bad times until death do you part?"

"Yes," Steven said.

The vicar put similar questions to Anne Marie in Norwegian. Both times she replied "ja". Her voice was firm.

Steven's best man, Jerry Riggs, a former college roommate, produced a plain platinum wedding band. Rockefeller took Anne Marie's hand and quickly put it on her finger.

They joined hands, and the clergyman placed a hand atop theirs.

"You have promised each other that you will live together in matrimony and have confessed it before God and man and given your hand on it," he said, "and I now proclaim that you are man and wife, in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost."

Conforming to the Norwegian custom, Steven did not kiss the bride.

The church, known in this little fishing village as the Lunde Church, was filled in the rear with neighbors and friends of the bride. According to custom they were not invited as guests but could ask for tickets as spectators.

Many women spectators came in ordinary house costumes. The men, rugged suntanned fishermen and farmers from the south coast, wore suits and neckties. There were some younger people in yellow and red sweaters.

After the ceremony, the wedding party quickly moved to the church steps. Scores of cameras were trained on them for 10 minutes.

Gov. Rockefeller and Rasmussen were laughing and talking.

Finally Gov. Rockefeller waved the photographers away. The bride and groom walked down a damp gravel path to a waiting automobile.

They headed straight for the Society Club in downtown Kristiansand. Some 70 guests were invited for the wedding reception and dinner.

Gov. Rockefeller and his wife will leave for New York Sunday. He would not say whether the bride and groom will accompany them in the same plane, but he did disclose that they are leaving Norway Sunday. Steven has kept his honeymoon plans secret.

Tattooed Nude, Where Is She?

Mrs. Hall's husband, Marvin, 23, told police that Florence was feeling the heat Friday night and took off all her clothes to stretch out on a sofa.

Marvin went to sleep watching television. When he awakened about midnight, Florence was gone, tattoo and all. Her clothing was still piled on the floor.

Marvin wasn't alarmed then. He thought she might have gone to the basement where it was a little cooler. But she wasn't there and no place else in the couple's North Side apartment building.

Then Marvin reported to Damen Ave. police his wife was missing.

He said she's 5 feet 5, weighs 130 pounds, and the tattoo, "Tex," is on her upper left arm That's Marvin's nickname.

FEAR QUAKE TOLL HIGHER THAN FIRST BELIEVED

Couple Takes 30 Of Family On Vacation Cruise

NEW YORK (AP)—G. H. Leland, 71, has led a busy life. He has invented more than 100 electrical devices and built two large manufacturing firms.

A few years ago, when he was hospitalized for an operation here and his wife was in a cast after an auto accident in Dayton, Ohio, their home town, the couple decided they wanted to get together more with their family.

So Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Leland sailed for Bermuda to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. With them were 30 members of their family—3 sons, 3 daughters, 3 sons-in-laws, 3 daughter-in-law, 15 grandchildren, 2 great-grandchildren, and the husband of a grandchild.

They came from Ohio, Illinois and New York for the reunion cruise.

Inventor - manufacturer Leland, president of G. H. Leland, Inc., Dayton, had to hire a bus to get the clan from a midtown hotel to the pier where they boarded the liner Queen of Bermuda. Leland is footing all the bills.

"The only thing we have on the agenda is fun and family love," Leland said. "This family cruise is long overdue. It will give us all a chance to get caught up with each other's lives. Some of us have stayed away from each other much too long."

Michael Mitchell, Son Of Prominent Democrat, Killed

SMITH LAKE, N.M., (AP) — Michael Mitchell, 25, the son of former national Democratic chairman Stephen Mitchell, was killed Saturday in a uranium mining operation in western New Mexico.

Paul Melancon, general manager of the Lance Corp., said Mitchell was killed about 12:30 p.m. during a shaft sinking operation. Mitchell, who was exploration manager for the uranian mining firm, was working on the sinking skip, a machine that takes dirt from the bottom of a mine shaft, when killed.

The young engineer had been with the Lance Corp. about six months, Melancon said.

THE TITLE'S THE THING

In his early playwriting days Tennessee Williams wrote a drama called "The Fugitive Kind." Even he regards it as a minor effort. Later one of his Broadway hits was "Orpheus Descending."

Now that play is being made into a movie, but the film producers decided they needed a different title. A list was submitted of alternate titles and the winner was "The Fugitive Kind."

MOVE TO PREVENT SPREAD OF SOYBEAN INFESTATION

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Fearful of the soybean cyst nematode inching northward, Gov. William G. Stratton today quarantined Ballard County, Ky. agricultural produce and equipment against admission to Illinois.

Illinois, a prime soybean producer, had a nematode scare last week when spider mites destroyed portions of Christian County bean fields.

The nematode has been reported present in certain sections of Ballard county but never has had a foothold in Illinois.

Stratton's proclamation said introduction to Illinois of the plant pest could mean "tremendous losses to producers."

Third Pan-American Games Take Over Thursday

Sutton Wins 100-Mile Big Car Race At Fair

Pit Stop Prevents Branson From Title

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Len Sutton of Portland, Ore., finished 14 seconds ahead of Don Branson of Champaign, Ill., Saturday to win the 100-mile big car race at the Illinois State Fair.

Sutton's winning time was one hour 3 minutes 2 seconds,. It was about 2 miles per hour slower than the event's record average of 98.137 miles an hour, set by last year's winner, Johnny Thomson of Boyertown, Pa.

Thomson finished fourth behind Al Keller of Green Acre City, Fla.

Rodger Ward of Indianapolis, winner of this year's 500 - mile Memorial Day race, was forced out on the third lap by engine trouble.

Branson, who qualified with the fastest mile lap time of 33.8 seconds, led the race until the 52nd lap when he had to make a pit stop to change his smoking tires.

Jud Larson of Tampa, Fla., the second fastest qualifier, became ill before the race and was taken to a hospital with a fever and pain in his chest. Bobby Grim of Indianapolis took over his car and placed 16th.

Giants Extend Margin To 3½ Games In 8-1 Triumph Over Phils

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three of Manager Bill Rigney's unsung San Francisco heroes collaborated in an 8-1 romp over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday. It extended the Giants' first place margin in the National League to 3½ games — equalling their longest lead of the year.

Only Friday night, Rigney was saying there were other players on his club besides Willie Mays and Willie McCovey.

"How about some of these unsung guys like Hobie Landrith, Daryl Spencer, Eddie Bressoud and our second line pitchers?" he asked.

The "unsung" answered for themselves Saturday. Landrith walloped a two run homer in the second; relief pitcher Al Worthington in his second start of the season pitched three-hit ball for six innings. His relief, Gordon Jones mopped up. Bressoud batted in a run. Spencer banged out three hits and scored two runs. It all added up to the point Rigney was trying to make. The Willies are going great but the Giants aren't a two - man ball club. It is a well-balanced club which smells pennant and World Series dough.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves, battling to keep alive in the National League pennant race, swept a doubleheader from Chicago Saturday. They blanked the Cubs 7-0 on Carl Willey's six-hitter in the opener and pushed across a ninth inning run for a 3-2 come-from-behind victory in the nightcap.

The triumphs enabled the Braves to pick up a half game on San Francisco, moving to within 4½ of the first place Giants, and one game of runner-up Los Angeles.

A wild pitch by southpaw relief specialist Bill Henry with the bases loaded and none out in the ninth gave the Braves their twin-bill sweep.

Bobby Avila led off the inning by reaching second when third baseman Al Dark's long throw went into the dirt and all the way to the first base stands. Del Crandall laid down a perfect bunt inside the first base line, sending Avila to third.

After Crandall was allowed to go to second unmolested, pinch hitter Ray Boone was passed on four pitches. That brought in Henry to relieve Don Elston and forced Milwaukee to send up right-handed hitter Stan Lopata for the portside swinging Lee Maye.

Henry had a count of 2 balls and 1 strike when he uncorked an inside pitch which went all the way to the backstop and Avila trotted home with the winning run.

Willey, a sophomore righthander, was in command all the way in the opener as he struck out six and picked up his first victory since early in July to advance his record to 5-6 for the season.

Champ Sits In Closed Meeting With Dempsey

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP)—Ingemar Johansson, the world heavyweight champion who wants words matched with dollars, sat down Saturday night in a closed conference with Jack Dempsey and an American delegation to talk about a return bout with Floyd Patterson.

Dempsey, the famed Manassa Mauler, flew into Johansson's home town on the same plane with the champion who knocked out Patterson and lifted the New York slugger's title June 26 in Yankee Stadium.

More than 500 Swedes met the plane at Torslanda airport. They gave more attention to Dempsey than to the Swedish champion.

Dempsey, who reigned as heavyweight king from 1919 until 1926, was appointed promotion director of the strife-torn Rosensohn Enterprises of New York earlier this week. The organization promoted the June title bout but Johansson still is looking for his share of the proceeds which are tied up in a tangle of litigation.

The contract called for a return bout with Patterson within 90 days, and it was to be held in New York in September.

"I'm still aiming at a September return somewhere in the U.S.," said Dempsey.

"The date and the place of the return bout is all up to the world champion," said Dempsey, who said he had no personal or financial aims.

"My mission here is to clear up this mess and make the fight game an honest business," said Dempsey.

Little Word 'If' Is Important To Pro Grid Clubs

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Commissioner Bert Bell says the National Football League will have arrived competitively when each team wins at least four games in a season.

This could be the year.

Even the have nots appear to have something if reports from training camps are not tinted by rose-colored glasses.

The little word, "if," is the key to the fondest hopes of NFL clubs.

If the Baltimore Colts can lick the over-confidence that sometimes permeates a defending champion, and if quarterback Johnny Unitas has another great year — unhampered by injury — the Colts could repeat in the western division as well as league champion.

If New York musters depth at offensive guard, defensive halfback and defensive end, the eastern division champion Giants could withstand the perennial challenge of the Cleveland Browns and the threat of what appears the best Pittsburgh Steelers' team in history.

Breaking the league down by division:

Baltimore rates the favorite role in the West, Los Angeles and the Chicago Bears, tied for second last year, again appear the Colts' main rivals. Detroit and San Francisco should be improved but not enough to menace the top three. Green Bay almost has to better its 1-10-1 record of 1958.

In the East, most experts predict a three-way dog fight among New York, Cleveland and Pittsburgh. The Washington Redskins are a dark horse with the improved Philadelphia Eagles and Chicago Cardinals sure to be tougher competition than a year ago.

Coach Weeb Ewbank at Baltimore plans to go with the same team which won the crown last year with a thrilling 23-17 victory over New York in the league's first sudden-death playoff.

Los Angeles appears to have great personnel, Coach Sid Gillman can field a dozen offensive and defensive halfbacks, while Billy Wade is the starting quarterback backed up by sophomore Frank Ryan. Only a game behind the Colts in 1958, this team could win it all.

Coach George Halas is trying to juice up his Chicago Bears' offense. The 62-year-old Halas realizes his team is going to have to jell early with four of its first six games against Baltimore and Los Angeles.

San Francisco, fourth last year with a 6-6 record, has a top drawer offense, but must shore up a defense which allowed opposing backs 5.4 yards per carry and opposing teams 27 points a game. Coach Red Hickey drafted half a dozen 260-pound linemen and a few more slightly lighter in hopes of buttressing the defense.

Green Bay, under new Coach Vince Lombardi, can go nowhere but up. Lombardi feels the team is much better than its 1-10-1 record of 1958. He is busy trying to build team morale and confidence.

The Giants have few problems. Coach Jim Lee Howell has a rugged defensive team and is loaded with quarterbacks. Howell would like to strengthen his defensive halfbacks and offensive tackle.

Cleveland presents overall team speed. The Browns feature the powerful running of Jimmy Brown. Coach Paul Brown is expected to come up with his usual good defense. The veteran Lou Groza is back with his placekicking threat.

Pittsburgh, which finished the season with seven straight victories under the passing wing of the veteran quarterback, Bobby Layne, is a definite title threat. The Steelers, under Buddy (Trader Horn) Parker, already have the scalp of the Browns in an exhibition game.

Owner George Preston Marshall has pronounced his Redskins a title contender despite their 4-7-1 record of last year. It's the best Washington squad since 1945, says Marshall. Coach Mike Nixon, successor to Joe Kuharich as head man, has the quarterback in little Eddie Le Baron. The Washington defense is questionable.

Philadelphia needs three big offensive linemen and a speedy halfback to contend for eastern honors. The Eagles have first rate quarterbacking from Norman Van Brocklin, one of the best in the business. Coach Buck Shaw must get help from rookie J. D. Smith, John Burroughs and Darrell Aschbacker in the offensive line if the Eagles are to move up.

IHSA Board Lifts JHS Probation

The Illinois High School Board of Directors recently released Jacksonville High School from its probationary status in the Association. The probation period began in May of 1958 and was lifted in July of this year. Below is the letter from Albert Willis which puts Jacksonville High back in good standing with the IHSA.

Mr. John Agger, Principal
Jacksonville High School
Jacksonville, Illinois

Dear Mr. Agger:

At a meeting of the IHSA Board of Directors held in Highland Park on July 21, the Board gave careful consideration to your request that the Jacksonville High School be released from its probationary status in the Association.

I am happy to inform you that during the past year we received several reports indicating that Mr. Chapman was conducting himself in an exemplary manner at basketball games. I am also happy to say that we received no unfavorable reports regarding his conduct at games. I reported this to the Board and it was their decision that the Jacksonville High School should be released from its probationary status and again placed in good standing in the Association.

Both the Board and I very sincerely hope that it will not be necessary for any punitive action to be taken against your school in the future.

Very truly yours,
s/ Albert Willis

Sword Dancer Captures Travers At Saratoga

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y. (AP) — Sword Dancer, the copper-hued Brookmeade Stable's colt who is the leading contender for the 3-year-old championship, ran down Middle Brother and Nimmer in the final sixteenth of a mile Saturday to capture the $81,250 Travers Stakes at Saratoga Race Course.

Manuel Ycaza, the Panamanian jockey, laid off the pace in the 1¼ mile race until the final turn. Then he went to the outside, and Sword Dancer gradually cut down the two leaders in the desperate run to the wire.

Five 3-year-olds started in the 90th running of the Travers, oldest race in the country for horses of this age.

Sword Dancer was time in 2:04 1-5 and paid $3.90, $2.60 and $2.30. Middle Brother paid $2.60 and $2.40. Nimmer was $2.60 to show.

STAN ISN'T MOVING

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A published prediction of a Stan Musial-for-Yogi Berra trade drew denials from all sides Saturday — none more emphatic than a rebuttal by St. Louis Cardinal owner August A. (Gussie) Busch Jr.

"Stan Musial will never be traded or sold and he will play with the Cardinals as long as he wants to and as long as I am head of the club," Busch declared in commenting about a copyrighted Sporting News story by its publisher, J. G. Taylor Spink.

"I said that before, nothing has changed my mind and nothing ever will," Busch asserted.

At least one international street car line still exists. A three-mile loop runs between El Paso, Tex., and Juarez, Mexico.

The Merchants baseball team has ended its season due to lack of funds. New uniforms this year increased expenditures.

To Release 5 Thousand Doves At Pan Opener

CHICAGO (AP) — Five thousand white doves will be released and a 26-gun salute will boom Thursday to signal the opening of the Pan-American games in Chicago.

The announcement of the opening ceremonies in Soldier Field was made Saturday by Mayor Richard J. Daley after a meeting of the games committee.

Thursday's program also will include a concert by the U.S. Air Force Women's band, a parade of more than 2,500 athletes, fireworks, and a performance by a mass chorus of 1,500 voices.

The gun salute will be fired with one round for each of the 26 nations represented at the games. The doves will be released during the lighting of the Pan-American Games freedom torch.

NOTHING EASY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defending Champion Anne Quast runs into anything but a pushover when the National Women's Amateur Championship opens at Congressional Country Club on Monday.

Miss Quast, who won the title last year at Darien, Conn., meets Marge Burns of Greensboro, N.C. in one of 64 first-round matches on the 6,457-yard par 74 course. Miss Burns is among the South's leading players.

Tournament pairings also pitted Elizabeth Price of Tilford, England, the reigning British Ladies' title holder, against Sandra Clifford of Mexico, the Mexican champion who recently won the German Amateur crown.

Junior Sports Jamboree Next Friday, Saturday

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The fourth annual Junior Sports Jamboree, sponsored by the Illinois Youth Commission, will be held Friday and Saturday in Springfield.

Nearly 400 boys and girls in the 10-15 age bracket will participate. All were champions in local and district competition held earlier this summer.

Events include track and field, swimming, and diving, to take place in Springfield's Memorial Stadium and Memorial Pool. Contests will be held in three brackets—midget, junior, and intermediate. A total of 65 events are slated.

In addition, sports clinics will be conducted by track stars flown here from the Pan-American Games in Chicago. Jesse Owens, former Olympic star, is jamboree director.

A's Edge Yanks In Tenth, 8-7

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jerry Lumpe singled home Bill Tuttle with two out in the tenth inning Saturday and gave the Kansas City Athletics an 8-7 victory over the New York Yankees.

The hit came off Bob Turley who was pitching in relief of Rhyne Duren. Turley, who had received a ninth inning assist from Duren in the Yanks' victory Friday night, failed to return the favor and was saddled with his eleventh loss of the year. He has won eight. The victory went to young John Tsitouris, who pitched only the last inning.

Dick Williams and Tuttle both hit solo home runs for the A's in the see-saw contest that was tied at 5-5 in the fifth and again in the ninth at 7-all.

The Athletics broke out of the 5-5 tie in the eighth when rookie Russ Snyder, a former Yankee farm hand, doubled home two runs. The Yankees came back in the ninth again when Norm Siebern doubled home Mickey Mantle with the tying run off reliever Bob Grim. Elston Howard, who had singled home the first run of that inning, also tried to score on Siebern's hit but was thrown out.

Indians Topple Baltimore, 4-2

CLEVELAND (AP) — Woodie Held hit a bases-loaded home run in the fourth inning for Cleveland and the Indians made it stand up for a 4-2 decision over the Baltimore Orioles Saturday, their fourth straight victory.

Milt Pappas (13-8), who took the loss, started his own trouble with a wild throw in the Indians' big inning. Gary Bell (14-10) was the winner. Both starters went seven innings.

After Held's grand slam smash, Pappas and Billy O'Dell blanked Cleveland without a hit the rest of the way. The Indians had five hits, the Orioles seven.

Tito Francona led off the fourth inning with a single. Rocky Colavito tapped to Pappas, but the young right-hander threw wildly to second base and both runners were safe.

Jim Baxes then attempted to bunt but forced Colavito at second. George Strickland drew a walk and Held drove his 24th home run over the right field fence. It was his third homer in the last five games.

"An atmosphere of better relations between Indian and Pakistan already exists, and amicable good ground has been prepared for still better relations," the spokesman said.

2,200 To Participate In Dramatic Setting

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The greatest international athletic carnival in United States' history, the Third Pan American Games, Thursday starts taking over this sprawling host city.

A sports army of approximately 2,200 from 25 North and South American nations will march in proud review in huge Soldier Field as dramatic opening day ceremonies are held. The Game will be opened officially by President Eisenhower's brother, Milton Eisenhower, pinch-hitting for the Chief Executive.

On Friday, the host of athletes will disperse to 22 widely scattered centers for competition in 20 sports for men and 7 for women extending through Sunday, Sept. 6.

Closing Day ceremonies also will be held at Soldier Field on the Lake Michigan front Labor Day, Sept. 7.

The last big international athletic competition in this country was the 1932 Olympic Games which attracted 1,500 performers to Los Angeles.

This giant midwestern city has huffed and puffed to make the Pan American deadline with only 16 months of actual preparation. Chicago was awarded the Games in mid-1957 after Cleveland threw in the sponge because of financial reasons. Cleveland had been selected as the 1959 host of the event following the 1955 Pan Am Games in Mexico City.

The Pan Am village, where most of the athletes will sleep and eat, is on the University of Chicago campus.

No official point scoring by countries is kept in the Pan American Games, inaugurated in Buenos Aires in 1951. But this renewal of the every-four-years athletic show is expected to produce the most overwhelming performance yet by the United States.

A grandiose tuneup for the Olympics next year in Rome, Italy, the third Pan Am Games will find the U.S. going all out with much stronger squads than exercised at Buenos Aires and Mexico City.

One reason is that, as host country, the U.S. is entering the largest squad of athletes it has ever sent into international competition, 408 men and women.

At both Buenos Aires and Mexico City, the U.S. competed at an off-season time for this country. Under unofficial scoring, Argentina won the first Pan Am Games overwhelmingly and the U.S. won by a whopping margin at Mexico City.

Besides track and field, the U.S. contingent also will be bristling in basketball, swimming, boxing, gymnastics, weightlifting, and rowing.

In basketball, the United States has mustered the best team ever assembled for international competition, according to qualified observers. Uncle Sam's cagers will be determined to avenge the feeble showing of a makeshift U. S. team in the world championships at Santiago, Chile, last January. The team was composed of pickups from the Air Force which really took a trimming from Russia and Brazil.

In tennis, this nation will be parading Althea Gibson, two-time U.S. and Wimbledon champion, who is emerging from a "temporary retirement" to compete.

Every existing mark in 21 track and field events could be shattered in Pan Am competition. In this summer's U.S.-Russia dual meet in Philadelphia, each American performer—whether he finished first or worse—bettered 16 existing Pan Am records. This was on a track not considered the match of the new all-weather strip built at Soldier Field.

This is the type of track, made from an English-produced material, on which the four-minute mile has consistently been run.

The U.S. squad includes a full delegation in every one of the 27 sports—20 for men and 7 for women. The U.S. group includes approximately 325 men and 83 women.

The opening day ceremonies will include the colorful parade of athletes from all countries and the lighting of the Pan American torch atop the high-columned Soldier Field Stadium. The torch will be ignited from an electronic impulse from a special torch which was carried in Boy Scout relay from Mexico City, site of the 1955 games.

The torch was delivered from south of the border by 3,600 lads, using the Boy Scout pace of running 50 steps and walking 50 steps, over a distance of 1,464 miles.

The games will be scattered over 22 sites in the greater Chicago area, ranging from Waukegan, Ill., on the north to the Cal-Sag canal on the south and from Lake Michigan west to the Oak Brook Polo Club near Hinsdale, Ill.

Friday's first round of competition will involve 11 sports, highlighted by the track and field competition.

Other sports which will open Friday include men's basketball at De Paul University; Women's basketball at Oak Park High School; fencing at the U.S. Naval Reserve Armory; soccer football at Hanson Park; baseball at Comiskey Park; men's and women's volleyball at Proviso High School; weightlifting at Chicago Vocational High School; and yachting on Lake Michigan.

Sports starting later include cycling at Gately Stadium Velodrome and in Lincoln Park; boxing at Northwest Armory; equestrian sports at Oak Brook Polo Club; women's fencing at the Naval Armory; men's and women's gymnastics at the University of Illinois at Navy Pier; modern pentathlon at four sites; rowing on the Cal-Sag canal; shooting at the Waukegan Gun Range; skeet shooting at Lincoln Park; swimming and diving at the Portage Park Pool; water polo at Portage Park; and wrestling at Reavis High School.

Chapin Clashes With Arenzville In Finals Tonight

The Tri-County Boys League tourney being held at Arenzville moves into its final game on Sunday evening at 8:00 p.m. with Murrayville and Chapin squaring off for the first place trophy. The pre-tournament dope has been completely upset during the tourney. Meredosia, who topped the League during the regular season Arenzville, the runner-up, and Bluffs, the third place team, have all been eliminated. The result of games played during the past week follows:

Murrayville 10, Bluffs 9
Chapin 8, Meredosia 7
Murrayville 3, Arenzville 0

Bergman's Paces Meredosia League

With one week of play remaining in the Meredosia league softball season almost anything can happen in the standings; none of the top four teams will play each other again.

Tuesday night's games are Mt. Sterling vs. Riggston and Pittsfield vs. Bluffs; the Wednesday night's games, Meredosia vs. Sinclair and Jacksonville vs. Kroger.

After the games last Tuesday and Wednesday Pittsfield is leading and three teams are tied for second.

Team	W	L
Bergman's, Pittsfield	9	4
Moose, Jacksonville	8	4
Stoner's Cafe, Riggston	8	4
Spear's Sinclear, Beardstown	8	4
Merchants, Meredosia	6	7
Prairie Farms, Mt. Sterling	6	7
Independents, Bluffs	4	8
Kroger, Beardstown	3	10

Area Horsemen Take 'Bundle' Of Ribbons At State Fair Show

A number of Jacksonville area horsemen brought top ratings back to Morgan County following the week-long Illinois State Fair Society horse show events.

The Jacksonville contingent usually turns out in a group to help each other show — and applaud whenever the judges eye the local horses.

Competing with the Nation's finest horses and ponies, the local entries placed quite high.

Many local horsemen travel the long circuit of society horse shows throughout the season and usually bring home an arm-load of trophies and blue ribbons to adorn the walls—to say nothing of the prize money.

Governor's Trophy

Jamie Shearl, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shearl, Franklin, captured the top blue ribbon and Governor's Trophy in the fine harness division, children 10 and under. Jamie entered his favorite Shetland pony, Grandstander, and came out on top.

Jamie also entered another pony, Canuck, and received the third place ribbon when judged on his ability to show the animal; he received fifth place when judged on the pony alone.

Blue Ribbon Winners

Billy and Vickie won the blue ribbon and trophy in the Illinois State Fair Shetland Pony, 12 years and under, Fancy Turnout Friday night before a capacity crowd. The colorful event was augmented by a generous round of applause from the audience as each of the eight contestants passed. The top hats, cutaways and elaborate formals were judged by two out-of-state women and the pony by the regular judge. After both compared notes, the Hudson entry received the blue ribbon.

Vickie Hudson, in her first appearance as solo driver, brought home a fourth place ribbon in the children's class, 10 and under. She drove Poe Fan's Sunlight.

Mrs. Hudson brought home the second place ribbon in the ladies' class in Land-of-Lincoln competition.

The Hudsons plan to enter the Menard County Fair at Petersburg, then jump to the Iowa State Fair at Des Moines, then to the Nebraska State Fair at Lincoln. They will also journey to Chicago for the International competition during the first part of December.

Yearling Champion

Mr. Davis drove Beauchamp Red Robin, owned by Mrs. Ethel Charlesworth of Jacksonville, to third place in the fine harness division at the State Fair.

Earlier this year, Davis exhibited the champion weanling colt at the Wisconsin State Fair. He plans to enter the Iowa State Fair next.

The Davis farm, six miles east of Jacksonville, will also be the site for the annual show for area horsemen. The date will be announced later for some Sunday in September.

Milton Birdsell picked up a seventh place ribbon in the fine harness class Wednesday night with his two-year-old, Confident Man. The entry was in the futurity stake which provided a long list of entries.

Second Place Brood Mare

John Reed won second place in the brood mare division with Rhythm Menard in the futurity class, Tom Terrific, also a John Reed entry, won third in the yearling class and seventh in the championship. Reed also entered the 8th place entry in the weanling class and 8th in the breeder's class.

The Courier brothers, Everett and Erwin, of Alexander, showed the champion brood mare, Merry Whirlwind, plus a host of other entries.

Western Horse Show

Mrs. Wilma Colclasure and Willard Jones, both of Jacksonville, entered the Western show Saturday at the Illinois State Fair in the parade horse division.

Top Teams Enter Finals Of Lawn Meet

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — The two top-ranked teams—the United States' Alex Olmedo and Earl Buchholz and Australia's Neale Fraser and Roy Emerson—Saturday won their way into the finals of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Associational Doubles Tennis Tournament.

They'll meet Sunday for the title in what could be a preview of the Davis Cup challenge round next week. All are members of the teams that will clash for the top international tennis prize.

Buchholz, of St. Louis, and Olmedo, the young Peruvian master who now plays out of Los Angeles, disposed of Australia's No. 2 team, Rodney Laver and Robert Mark, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 before about 4,500 Longwood Cricket Club fans.

Redskins Out To Improve Last Year's Record

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The way things look to Coach Michael Nixon, this is the best looking Washington Redskins squad in several years.

Nixon, who succeeded Joe Kuharich, has been with the Redskins as backfield coach since 1954 and he's confident that last year's record of 4-7-1 will be vastly improved upon in 1959.

Both Nixon and Los Angeles Rams Coach Sid Gillman had to regard Friday night's exhibition as a "must" to win; more so for the Rams as a prestige thing for the homefolks.

The Skins, Nixon believes, have far better over-all depth, good veteran personnel and a handful of good rookies of either immediate or future value.

Star of the show is quarterback Eddie LeBaron, the dynamic 5-foot-7, 160-pounder who led the National Football League passers last year and is already off to a superb start this year.

Ready to step in for LeBaron are Notre Dame's ex-star, Ralph Guglielmi, and Eagle Day, a newcomer from Mississippi by way of Winnipeg in Canadian football.

Other name-players to remember include Bob Toneff, 250, giant tackle acquired from San Francisco; place kicker Sam Baker, and a couple of players currently on the injury list, halfback Bert Zagers and rookie lineman Joe Nicely from West Virginia.

Tri-County Golf Tourney At Greenfield Club

GREENFIELD—The Tri-County Golf Association held its annual tournament at the Woodbine Country Club last Sunday.

There were seven teams competing from Staunton, Gillespie, White Hall, Greenfield, Palmyra, Litchfield and Girard.

Staunton win the tournament with a four-man total of 268, 12 strokes over par for the Woodbine course.

Gillespie finished second with a total of 283; White Hall third with 289; and Greenfield, fourth with 291.

Willard Hamilton was low man for the Greenfield team with a 67. Other team members from Greenfield were Bob Garner, Donald Andrews and M. D. Roth.

Scout Runs Red Light As Torch Moves Onward

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Boy Scout Leroy Flake of Springfield ran a red light Saturday while carrying the Pan-American Friendship Torch through the city.

He got ahead of his police escort in the speedy sprints through the downtown area by scouts enthusiastically carrying out their share of the Mexico City-to-Chicago relay.

The torch was borne through Illinois with overnight stops at Alton and Farmersville. It will be used to ignite the friendship flame at the Pan-American Games in Chicago Aug. 27-Sept. 4.

From Springfield, the relay was aimed through Elkhart and Lincoln for another stop at Atlanta overnight.

Round Table Gallops Home With $125,000

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Travis Kerr's Round Table, taking the lead on the turn for home, Saturday won the $125,100 Arlington Handicap in a photo finish.

Round Table covered the mile and three-sixteenths over Arlington Park's grass course in 1:53 2-5, American record time for the distance. The former record, 1:54 1-5, was set by Mister Gus on the same course July 28, 1956.

The Australian import, Wiggle II, 4-year-old filly who went off at 3-1 as the second choice of a crowd of 22,157, finished ninth and last after being in contention at the stretch turn.

Round Table, top-weighted at 132 pounds including jockey Willie Shoemaker, returned $3.60, $2.80 and $2.40. Manassas paid $9 and $5.60 while Noureddin returned $4.

In remaining unbeaten in 10 grass races in the Chicago area, Round Table collected the winner's share of $75,750 to boost his all-time high winning total to $1,541,889.

Ted's Homer Lead Bosox To 7-1 Decision

By DAVE DILES
Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Ted Williams inched closer to Lou Gehrig's home run mark Saturday by smashing the 491st of his career and leading the Boston Red Sox to a 7-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Southpaw Frank Baumann pitched his first complete game since May 10 and stopped the Tigers on a six-hitter.

Williams, hitting in the park he always said was his favorite, sent one of Don Mossi's fourth-inning pitches 15 rows deep in the upper right field stands. It left him two short of Gehrig's mark. He also contributed a run - producing single in the sixth inning when the Red Sox blasted Mossi with a five-run explosion.

Williams currently ranks fifth among the game's all-time home run hitters.

Baumann, a bitter pitching disappointment most of the time since he received an $89,500 bonus in 1952, struck out eight Detroit hitters, getting first baseman Gail Harris three times in succession. Baumann lost a shutout in the eighth when pinch batters Ted Lepcio and Gus Zernial came through with singles.

Chisox Maintain Close Lead With 1-0 Victory Over Washington

CHICAGO (AP) — Barry Latman, 23-year-old right-hander, won a tense pitchers' duel from Russ Kemmerer Saturday and the Chicago White Sox maintained their 2½ game lead in the American League pennant race with a 1 to 0 victory over the Washington Senators.

It was the 15th victory for the Sox in 20 games with the Senators.

The Sox made only three hits, all singles. They were recipients of only one walk, but turned it into the winning run.

Latman gave up five hits, three of them by Ken Aspromonte. He had difficulty with his control, walking six, but compensated for it by striking out eight.

Sherm Lollar led off with a walk, Earl Torgeson popped out and then as Billy Goodman fanned, the slow-footed Lollar stole second. He moved to third on a wild pitch and scored when Bubba Phillips looped a single over Harmon Killebrew's head into left field.

MONTICELLO — An error, sacrifice, fielder's choice and a single by Russ Heaton drove in Bob Garner with the winning run as Murrayville's Merchants tripped General Cable of Monticello, 1-0, in the Class A State Tournament Saturday night. The Murrayville team plays Sunday night at 9:00 p.m.

Garner, the winning pitcher allowed three hits in the eight inning struggle. Hoke Wilson, the loser, gave up only two hits.

Alaskan Man 13 Miles From Chicago Goal

Briggs, a 38-year-old history instructor at the University of Alaska, tried the swim last August but gave up after completing half the distance.

In mid-afternoon Briggs, was moving ahead at 41 strokes a minute. The water temperature was 79, the air 87, with the wind out of the northeast at 14 miles an hour. A crewman said the water "was like glass."

Briggs was using his arms and trying to improvise a new kick in his left leg after the soreness developed in his right knee. He was being fed cold fruit punch, tea, dextrose and soda crackers.

Briggs an Anchorage resident plunged into the water at 3:05 a.m. Saturday.

He hopes to reach Chicago's Burnham Harbor Sunday afternoon.

Patrick Callahan is the new head basketball coach at Peoria Spalding high succeeding Jim Smarjesse who recently resigned. Frank Mariani is the new baseball coach replacing Smarjesse in that sport. Callahan will coach Freshmen football and Mariani will be the line coach in football and assistant coach in basketball. Coach Callahan moves to Spalding from Lewis college where for the past two years he has been assistant to the varsity coach and freshmen basketball coach. He also has been director of physical education and intramurals.

Beardstown and Carrollton will use new football fields this season with the Tigers opening at home against Lewistown's Indians and Carrollton's Illinois Valley eleven will open at home against Jerseyville, both games are set for September 18. White Hall and Northwestern (Palmyra) played on new football fields last season.

Ray Wolf, official rules interpreter for the Peoria area, is back from the State high school rules session held at Chicago recently. He thinks few of the rule changes will be noticeable from the stands. The rule stating that a penalty cannot take the ball more than half the distance to the offending team's goal will differ from the college rule and will cause some comment. This year, in event the official believes a player is injured, he can automatically call time out and ask the player to be removed for one play. A time out will not have to be requested by the captain. In the respect the official will shoulder more responsibility.

Frank Larson of Walnut has signed a contract to teach commerce and be the assistant coach of basketball in Cuba high school during the 1959 - 60 school term. He is a graduate of Western Illinois University in Macomb and is attending summer school doing graduate work in business education. His wife teaches at Bushnell in the grade school and they will continue to live in that city.

Dick Knox of Roodhouse is one of the 29 Frosh grid candidates to report for the initial football practice at Illinois State Normal U. on September 1. The Frosh candidates will report for practice at Western Illinois U. on August 27 while 29 experienced players will report to Coach Lou Saban on September 1.

Coach Vergil Fletcher of Collinsville high has two fine quarterbacks for the 1959 season. He said, "I'm happy to have two proven quarterbacks. Both have proven themselves in different leagues, and if they really want to play, it will be no problem getting them into the lineup. If the platoon is used, you always have one in reserve. I have never seen Riddle play, but I know he's an outstanding quarterback. Remember, two is better than one, any old time." Fred Riddle Jr. is the fine athlete from Madison who is transferring to Collinsville high school and he played in the State tourney last March at Champaign.

Walter Grebe, athletic director at Farmington high, has announced the football and basketball charts for the "Farmers" during the 1959 - 60 school term. Havana's Ducks are the opening game opponents for the Fulton County eleven on September 18 at Farmington and Illinois Deaf of Jacksonville will appear at Farmington on September 25. Coach Harold "Tuffy" Bowen's Farmington high cage team will appear in the First Annual Canton high Holiday tourney December 28-29-30.

Pirates Blank Los Angeles, 2-0

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-0 Saturday behind the sparkling pitching of Benny Daniels and snappy relief hurling by Don Gross.

The game was played under protest by the Dodgers after Pirate Smoky Burgess was ruled safe in the eighth. The Dodgers claimed he was struck by a hit ball.

Daniels faced only one threat—in the seventh when he gave up two hits—until the ninth inning when he gave up a double to Ron Essegian and issued a walk to Ron Fairly after retiring the first batter. Gross retired the next two batters.

Daniels fanned six in picking up his seventh victory of the season against eight defeats.

Roger Craig, the first of three Dodger pitchers, was charged with the loss, his fifth against six victories.

The Pirates scored their first run in the third. Their second run came in the controversial eighth. Burgess opened with a single. Don Hoak followed with another single and Burgess moved to third. But the Dodgers claimed he was hit by Hoak's drive.

After ruling Burgess safe the umpires held a conference and ruled Burgess out, then the decision was again reversed and Burgess stayed on third.

Abe Lincoln District Supplies Forty Boys For 20 Mile Journey

Forty Boy Scouts from Jacksonville and eight surrounding communities in the Honest Abe District carried the Pan-Am torch a full twenty miles along U. S. Route 66 from Litchfield to Farmersville Friday afternoon. Each boy carried the torch one-half mile along the twenty mile journey.

The torch was stopped at Farmersville for the night about 8 o'clock Friday evening and placed on a base surrounded by an all-boy scout honor guard.

The Jacksonville area scouts were selected from each of the troops in the city and other surrounding towns. Ed McCurdy, district scouting chairman, was in charge of the scouts during their 20 mile journey.

Nine Towns Represented

Scouts from Jacksonville, Beardstown, Virginia, Ashland, Bluffs, Winchester, White Hall, Woodson and Meredosia took part in the half-mile stints. Members of the Bluffs, White Hall and Meredosia troops carried the torch early Saturday morning on the first leg of the trip, then returned to their homes.

Two boys from the Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School troop carried the torch Friday afternoon.

AltonBoys Meet Group

Base Falls In River

The wooden base of the torch and numerous letters from mayors and governors along its route were lost Thursday night in a car which rolled down a bank on the Illinois side of the river. The car was recovered six hours later, but the base and papers were gone.

The car was owned by David Lewis, in charge of Alton scouts. The embarrassed Lewis said he was talking to a scout and must have forgotten to set the brake.

Whittle New Base

Scouts whittled a large wooden stick down to size, fit it into a hole in the base of the torch and drove the stick in the ground. The torch was watched through the night by an honor guard of 16 scouts.

The torch was picked up by Alton scouts on the Missouri side and taken across the Mississippi in yachts manned by the Coast Guard auxiliary. It will be carried across Illinois on busy U.S. Highway 66, with a state highway trooper escort.

In Chicago it will be used to light—by means of a radioactive gimmick—the "friendship flame" at the games, Aug. 27 to Sept. 7.

Redlegs Collect Five Homers Off Cardinal Pitching And 11-4 Win

CINCINNATI (AP) — Frank Robinson hit three home runs and drove in six tallies Saturday as the Cincinnati Reds unloosed a barrage of homers that brought an 11-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Reds got five home runs during the game and 10 of their 11 runs were driven in by wallops out of the park.

Eddie Kasko got one with the bases empty and Johnny Temple hit one with two on. Robinson's last circuit blast and 31st of the year, came in the eighth with the bases empty but it was a tape measure job as the ball sailed 10 to 15 feet over the high left center field scoreboard.

Young Jim O'Toole got the pitching credit for the victory but he was lifted for a pinch runner in the sixth, apparently the victim of 96 degree humid heat.

Kasko's homer got the Reds off in front in the second off Wilmer Mizell. They added three more in the fifth to break a 1-1 tie on Robinson's first homer after a double by Temple and a single by Vada Pinson.

Nicklaus Claims Mississippi Title

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Powerful young Jack Nicklaus, on the verge of being routed in the morning round, smashed back with 4-under-par shooting in the afternoon to beat British amateur champion Dean Beman 3 and 2 Saturday for his second straight Trans-Mississippi golf title.

A 35-foot birdie putt on the 29th hole thrust the 19-year-old Columbus, Ohio, collegian into the lead for the first time. He smothered Beman's comeback attempts the rest of the way with the might of his tee shots and a suddenly revived putter.

Through 18 holes Nicklaus had a wretched time of it on the greens. He went three down to the 21-year-old Silver Spring, Md., golfer after seven holes and was still three down at 16.

Only Beman's surprising difficulty on the 15th and 17th holes —where he missed short taps for pars and three-putted both — saved Nicklaus from apparent early disaster.

A six foot birdie putt on the 18th hole revived the husky blond clouter and he was unstoppable in the afternoon.

For the 34 holes Nicklaus was two under par. He shot 73 in the morning at the par 35-36—71 course. Beman, even par in the morning, finished one over.

RARE BIRDS

BAYFIELD, Wis. (AP)—The bald eagle, symbol of America's fighting spirit, is becoming a rare bird throughout the continent, but can still be seen among the Apostle Islands of Lake Superior.

Several of the islands have eagle nests, always located in the tops of high trees. The eagles are seen frequently by commercial fishermen, trollers and excursionists but it is difficult to get close enough to them to get a picture.

United Fund Publicity Group Plans Campaign

"We hope everyone in the county is made aware of our Morgan County United Fund and the need of our youth and welfare programs. It is going to take the help of everyone to reach our $80,000 goal," Kark Baker, chairman of the United Fund publicity committee for this year's campaign, declared Saturday.

Mr. Baker is chairman of the committee which includes the following members: Robert Hockensmith, Jack Corrigan, the Reverend Harvey Dibrell and John B. Martin.

Extensive Plans Made

Extensive plans have been made to carry the United Fund Story by every means possible throughout the county. Plans include: the United Fund cancellation to be used on all mail sent from the Jacksonville post office throughout September; mail trucks will also carry posters; several hundred posters will be distributed in stores and public places; and the Jacksonville Public Square will have a large Red Feather showing the progress of the campaign. Theaters will show "trailers" as reminders of the campaign; all 600 volunteers are being given stickers for their cars and all contributors will receive stickers for their homes.

News releases and United Fund mats will be sent to all newspapers in the country. WLDS radio will use many celebrity spots and local spots telling the story of the ten agencies served by the campaign. Twelve thousand copies of a four page booklet telling the story of the United Fund and each of the ten agencies supported by it are being printed for solicitors to give prospective donors. Four thousand United Fund comic books will be distributed in the lower grades of the schools.

United Fund Sunday will be September 13. Pastors will be asked to make pulpit announcements and to carry statements in their church bulletins on the United Fund. Eight thousand book marks will be distributed at the morning service throughout the county.

Wednesday will begin with a series of meetings designed to acquaint these people with the special programs in the schools. From 8:15 to 8:45 the art program will be explained by Marguerita Schoedsack; from 8:55 to 9:30 the topic will be music and O. A. Schuette, Elaine Presvelos and Fred Omer will be in charge; from 9:40 to 10:30 the special services program will be presented by Ivan Garrison; and from 10:40 to 11:50, Mrs. Violet Auwarter will discuss the audio-visual program.

The new teachers will meet for luncheon on Wednesday noon at Turner Junior High School with the members of the board of education, administrators and "buddy" teachers. Each new faculty member has been assigned an experienced ((buddy)) teacher to help him get acquainted with other people and with the job.

On Wednesday afternoon the teachers will be back in their classrooms with their principals studying materials, records, routine building and system requirements, etc.

Teachers Meet Thursday

All teachers will report at a general meeting to be held on Thursday morning in the high school auditorium. There they will receive greetings from Dr. James L. Bunch, President of the Board of Education, Robert A. DuBois, Mayor of the City of Jacksonville, and James E. Armitage, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. The new teachers will be introduced by their "buddy" teacher.

Ivan Garrison, Director of Special Services and President of the International Council for Exceptional Children, will tell the group of his recent experiences as a delegate to the conference of the World Confederation of Organizations of the Teaching Profession held at the headquarters of the National Education Association in Washington D. C. The last item on the program will be an address by J. A. Mann, Superintendent of Schools.

Building meetings with the principals will be held Thursday afternoon.

At 8 p.m. on Thursday, a reception for teachers and board members will be held in the Turner dining room. The reception is sponsored by the administrative staff of District 117.

School begins on Friday.

Two Pike Men Sustain Lacerations In Wreck

PITTSFIELD — Two young men suffered severe facial lacerations and three others escaped injury in a two car collision on a curve 4 miles south of here on the Pittsfield-Nebo gravel road at 12:30 a.m. Saturday.

Harold McLaughlin, 20, driver of one of the autos, and a passenger, Mike Taylor, 20, both of Pittsfield, are in Illini hospital suffering from severe facial cuts and lacerations. Their condition is considered "much improved" since arriving at the hospital. They reportedly were taken into surgery upon arrival at the hospital and an urgent plea for blood sent donors rushing to the hospital to render aid.

McLaughlin was driving a 1953 Ford when it collided with an auto driven by Donald Smith, 21, of Pittsfield. Smith and two passengers, David Ruble and Tom Plattner, escaped injury in the crash.

State police reported the McLaughlin auto rounded a curve on the wrong side of the road and crashed into the Smith auto.

Smith was driving a 1957 Ford. Both autos were badly damaged in the collision and were towed from the scene.

By OVID A. MARTIN
Associated Press Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The safe, deliberate life of rural America is being replaced by the hurry, the urgency and dangers characteristic of city life.

Not only are ways of doing things on the farm changing, but so are family relationships, social patterns and rural institutions such as the school and the church.

No one is more aware of this quickened and — to some — disturbing way of life apparently than rural church leaders.

These leaders, some quite disturbed, have appealed to the Agriculture Department for help in understanding what's going on in farming communities throughout the land.

This appeal has been met with the issuance of a report entitled "Keeping Abreast of Change." The document is described as an inventory of a rapidly changing rural America. It was prepared by Phillip F. Aylesworth, a career official of the department now serving as an assistant to the administrator of the Federal Extension Service.

Farm Structure Changes

"The technological revolution in agriculture," the report says, "is resulting in many changes in the structure of farming. There are fewer farms with larger, more integrated business operations—increased capital requirements — greater dependence on services off the farm—more specialization — increased mechanization — great increases in productivity.

"Changes are also taking place in community institutions and services. There are larger and more complex institutions—greater dependence on services beyond the immediate locality — an increase in the number and kinds of organizations — membership in special interest groups is increasing — consolidation of schools — changes in communication and transportation — maladjustments of community services and local government."

Tempo Increases

"The pace and tempo of family life has increased tremendously," the report said. "The diversity of family interests pulls the family apart, with the various members pursuing their individual activities. Tensions mount, and family freedom is crowded aside in a seemingly relentless schedule."

"People are turning to new outlets and new forms of recreation and social life, especially young people (away from home and local community.)"

Yet the educational level of rural people was said to be increasing, bringing a deeper interest in public affairs not only of the community, but the nation and the world as well.

The rural family was said to be striving as never before for a higher standard of living.

As far as the community is concerned, the report said there is an increased intermingling of non-farm residents and farm people. As a consequence, differences between rural and urban people are decreasing and social values of rural and urban folks are mixing and merging.

CATTLE FEEDERS' DAY AT U OF I, SEPTEMBER 4

Wafers vs. Long Hay—A. L. Neumann, head of the University of Illinois College of Agriculture beef cattle division, displays samples of wafered hay. U of I beef cattle researchers have been comparing the feeding value of wafers, pellets and conventional long hay for feeder cattle. Reports of these and other studies will be presented at Cattle Feeders' Day, Friday, September 4, on the Urbana campus.

Robert Mohrman, at left, University of Illinois graduate assistant in animal science, demonstrated an automatic feeder that feeds one lot of cattle six times a day. Mohrman is comparing results of feeding six times daily versus once a day, twice a day and self-feeding.

Expect Cattle Prices To Fall Next Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cattle prices are expected to start falling next year, following the example already set by hog prices. The reason is the same: the continued upward trend of livestock production.

Prices of cattle have been unusually stable this year, in contrast with an almost uninterrupted rise during the previous two years. This says the Agriculture Department, suggests a peak has been reached and a decline is coming.

"Chief factor pointing to the beginning of a price decline in 1960 is the big inventory of slaughter steers and heifers being built up," says the department in a report on the livestock and meat situation.

"By the end of 1959, steer and beef heifer numbers on farms may be around 25 per cent greater than three years before. Even at a slow rate of marketing, slaughter supplies in 1960 would be appreciably above this year."

The price level, though is expected to decline slowly.

Hogs—Prices of pork products will be considerably lower this fall than last.

Cattle—Prices of beef cuts of choice grade have been very near levels a year earlier. Prices could edge lower in 1960.

Lamb—Retail cuts of lamb have been priced at about the same as last year. Competitive pressures from beef and pork may reduce prices a little, but only a little.

Farm Management Tour September 9

URBANA—The Maurice Walk and Alphonse Mette farms near Sigel in Effingham county have been selected for the annual Illinois Farm Management Tour on September 9, according to D. F. Wilken, University of Illinois farm management specialist. The public is invited to attend.

Tours of the Walk farm, located one mile north and one mile west of Sigel, will begin between 9:00 and 10:30 a.m. Here visitors will see an example of good farming and good living, Wilken reports that Walk is operating this 320-acre cattle-hog farm efficiently by handling 275 feeder cattle and 80 litters of hogs a year with family and exchange labor.

In the afternoon visitors will proceed to the Mette farm, where they can see how to get more income without more acres, Wilken reports that this very efficient 100-acre farm with 66 tillable acres, 25 dairy cows and 600 laying hens will match the net earnings of a typical 240-acre central Illinois hog farm.

Both farms have produced average corn yields of over 80 bushels since 1956. However, the tour committee is not guaranteeing high yields for 1959 because of possible drouth conditions. Compared with similar farms in the area, these two farm operators have produced twice the value of product per acre with only a 50 percent increase in costs.

A box lunch will be served at noon. Reservations must be sent to R. B. Schwart, 450 Mumford Hall, Urbana. The tour is sponsored by the Illinois Farm Bureau Farm Management Association in cooperation with the Department of Agricultural Economics and the Agricultural Extension Service at the University of Illinois.

Trophy Presentation To Highlight Cass County Fair

VIRGINIA—One of the most interesting features of the Friday evening, Aug. 28, program at the Cass County Junior and 4-H Fair will be the awarding of trophies and prizes. The following and the sponsors are the awards:

Best garment exhibit— Andris Bros., Mi-Dear and Merrie Shops, Beardstown; best flower arrangement—Beardstown Hardware Co.

Best handicraft exhibit— Ashland Farmers Elevator Co.; best baked foods exhibit—Virg's TV, Virginia; best 4-H float—Marguerite Roach, Kopper Kettle, Virginia; best yeast bread display—Standard Brands, Incorporated.

Following the awarding of trophies and prizes, at 10 o'clock, the 4-H queen will be crowned.

The closing day of the fair, Saturday, Aug. 29, will be highlighted by a large parade to be staged in the business district. At 1:15 p.m., the sale of fat stock will be held at the show barns on the fairgrounds.

Winner of the 4-H scrapbook award will receive a prize of $5.00. The runner-up will receive $3.00 and all others $2.00. The 4-H Club booth exhibit will be shown in separate groups, agriculture and home economics—first, $15.00; second, $12.50; third, $10.00; fourth, $7.50; all others, $5.00.

Recent studies at the University of Illinois indicate that no combination of corn and soybean protein is adequate in 10 percent protein rations for laying pullets.

Consumers will be getting more choice beef in the next five months than they got last year because farmers are fattening 10 percent more cattle this year.

'Tired Blood' Disease Heavy In Cattle Herds

DIXON SPRINGS — Half of a cattle herd was sick and nearly one-third of the cattle died when anaplasmosis recently broke out in southern Illinois. Reports of similar outbreaks are becoming common.

Dr. M. E. Mansfield, University of Illinois veterinarian at the Dixon Springs Experiment Station, says conditions indicate that anaplasmosis may show a marked increase this year. Since livestock operators encountered more of this disease than usual during the summer and fall of 1958, there are probably more carrier animals in Illinois herds this year.

'Seeded' Infection

These carrier animals are a continual source of "seeded" infection in the herds of which mosquitoes, the primary spreaders of this disease, have a better opportunity to infect healthy animals when there are carrier animals in the same herd.

To spread anaplasmosis there must be a transfer of the infective material from the carrier to the healthy, susceptible animal. This disease cannot spread simply by contact between animals. It must be transferred with blood by insects or mechanical means.

Blood Test

A blood test has been developed that indicates whether or not an animal is a carrier. In areas where there is little anaplasmosis, animals that are found to be carriers should be promptly sold for slaughter.

To reduce the spread of infection, repellent sprays and insecticides should be used to lower the number and activity of insects. Instruments used in dehorning, castration and ear notching should be washed and disinfected following each use.

Most veterinarians now use certain antibiotics to treat anaplasmosis. Additional treatment to build up the animal's strength may consist of blood transfusions and injections of saline and dextrose solutions.

Seven Calhoun 4-H Girls Model Dresses At Fair

HARDIN, Ill. — Seven Calhoun county girls have returned from ths Illinois State Fair which they attended August 13-15.

Girls selected to model at the dress revue were: Carol Carmody, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carmody, Janet Aderton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Aderton; and Ellen Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Anderson.

Jean Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bailey represented Calhoun in the food demonstrations. Barbara Fischer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fischer and Ada Mae Herter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Herter, were delegates in the foods classes and attended all demonstrations and judged the girls who were demonstrating.

Ruth Ann Schudel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schudel, represented Calhoun in the area of flower arranging and made several beautiful arrangements and also attended classes in this phase of work. The girls who attended state fair are not judged on their activities as they represent the top 4-Hers in the state, but receive green participation ribbons stating they have been a participant in state fair activities.

Calhoun also sent two garments to be judged on construction. They were dresses of Barbara Flanagan, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Lawrence Flanagan who received an A rating, and Margaret Kiel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Kiel who received a B rating.

Sharon Held, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Held, received a B rating on tablecloth and napkins entered in the area of dining table covers.

'Slobber' Hay Presents Problems For Dairymen

URBANA — Dairymen who feed second cuttings of red clover and alfalfa hay or silage this winter should watch for signs of excessive salivation, or slobbering, in their herds, according to John Byers, University of Illinois dairy scientist.

Last winter dairymen from ten Illinois counties reported that cows in their herds began slobbering excessively within 1½ to 24 hours after eating second cuttings of clover and alfalfa hay or silage. A few beef herd owners and sheep producer also reported the problem.

In all cases the animals ate one to three feedings of the "slobber" forage, salivated excessively and then refused to eat any more. Many dairymen said it was not uncommon to find 1 to 1½ inches of saliva in mangers after cows ate the forage.

U. of I. dairy scientists are working to find what causes the condition. Although they have found no positive answer, research indicates dairymen can prevent total loss of affected hay by mixing second forage cuttings with first or third cuttings at a ratio of one-third "slobber" hay to two - thirds regular hay. Young calves and dry cows not eating much grain or silage will probably eat sufficient quantities if dairymen add molasses to the hay.

First reports of trouble with second - cutting leguminous hay, silage and pasture reached the U. of I. dairy science department in 1947. A number of dairymen reported the problem in 1948. Researchers worked to find the cause, but discontinued the study because they were not able to reproduce the condition at the University dairy farm.

Few reports concerning the problem reached the U. of I. during the next few years. Last winter, however, farmers from Livingston county in the north to Pope and Johnson counties in the south again reported the condition. Many dairymen had to buy replacement forages because cows wouldn't eat the "slobber" hay.

Dairy scientists collected samples of affected hay and silage from many of these farms, were able to reproduce the condition in Urbana and are again working to find what causes the trouble. Present research suggests that the problem is connected in some way with the mineral composition of the hay.

Hold Family Dinner At Home In Nortonville

NORTONVILLE — Mrs. Juanita Hinson and sister, Myra, entertained 31 relatives at a family dinner Sunday at their home in Nortonville. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Browning, Mr. and Mrs. James Slocum, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Brubaker, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Browning, Rev. and Mrs. Donald Browning and Mrs. Katherine Watson, and families.

Mrs. Minnie Dodsworth of Jacksonville was a recent visitor of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kelly. Mrs. Kelly and Mrs. Dodsworth accompanied the latter's daughter, Donna, and friends Virginia Rowland, Judy Jordan and Sue Ellen Killam to St. Louis Saturday where they enjoyed a boat excursion.

Little Paul Douglas Shumaker visited his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Blair while his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Richard Schumaker and other children, went on a vacation trip recently.

Other visitors in the Blair home were his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Blair of Iowa, and her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Newell McQuary of near Carrollton.

Complete Work, Re-Open Road West Of Glasgow

GLASGOW — The two-mile stretch of gravel road running west from Glasgow to the blacktop road along the bluffs, which has been closed while being blacktopped, was re-opened Wednesday for traffic. Westbound traffic has been detoured during this work to roads north and south of Glasgow.

The Caldwell Engineering Co., which did this work, is now re-blacktopping the stretch of road running north and south along the bluffs from the Ralph Young farm to the Greene-Scott county line.

This strip of highway had become badly broken up during the past year. The old surface is being dug up and pushed to each side, and will be replaced by new gravel and blacktop surface.

Visit Fair

Glasgow and vicinity has been well represented at the Illinois State Fair in Springfield the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Savage, who have resided at their farm home east of Glasgow, since their marriage over fifty years ago, have left the farm and have moved into the former Dr. G. W. Bowman home in Alsey which they had previously purchased.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Fundel of St. Louis have been visiting relatives and friends in this community the past week.

Mrs. Dean Sherwin and children of St. Louis have been up this week visiting relatives in Alsey and Glasgow.

Soil Bank Sign-Up Starts Monday At Local ASC Office

Morgan County farmers who wish to put cropland in the 1960 conservation reserve can apply for a basic annual per acre rate during the period August 24th through September 10th at 308 East State Street, Jacksonville, Wilbur C. Williams, Chairman of the County ASC Committee announced Saturday. Some of the provisions of the new program are different than last year's. Farmers are urged to make their application as soon after August 24th as possible.

In setting the annual per acre rate for land offered, the County ASC Committee will take into consideration the productivity of the land and the rate will be limited to the local fair rental value of the land based on the crops harvested from it during the past five years.

Contracts undwer the conservation reserve may run for as long as ten years. During the time of the contract, the farmer will receive an annual rental payment on the reserved land for the life of the contract, and he also will receive cost-sharing help in establishing an approved conservation practice.

For Illinois, the average per acre rate of payment under the 1960 conservation reserve is $19, the same as under the 1959 program. In Morgan County the average payment rate of $22 per acre remains unchanged. Individual farm rates vary above and below the county average depending upon the productivity of the farm.

Alexander Home Bureau Holds Annual Picnic

The Alexander Home Bureau held its annual family picnic August 4 at Nichols Park at 6:30. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Becker, Mr. and Mrs. Verne Bergschneider and family, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Duewer, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Johnson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Don Johnson and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Reece Kern and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Luken, Mr. and Mrs. Norman McQueen and family, Mr. and Mrs. Reed Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Strawn and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Harris and family.

The next meeting will be Sept. 1, 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs. James Johnson at Waverly.

As I See It

by E. W. BROWN

We read so much about missiles, atomic power and the development of jet planes that it's easy to overlook some of the other things science is doing. For example, scientists are speeding up the sugar beet industry by developing a beet that is more agreeable to being pulled up by machines. When they get through with that, how about designing square peas that'll stay on a knife, or ears of corn with handles or knobs on both ends? The possibilities for improvement in the agricultural field are as obvious as a palm tree in Alaska. How about a new celery that doesn't sound as though you're stepping on a wicker basket when you eat it? And while we don't want to tax the experts, couldn't something be done about the radish?

An Alabama window washer was fined $25 for smashing all the windows in his own home. Guess he just couldn't stand the pane any longer. There's a time for joking and a time to be serious. Let's be serious on the subject of new 1959 Plymouths. Now is special bargain time at the E. W. Brown Agency. We have to make room for the 1960 models. Lesson Of Laos

For a while the alarm was mounting that Communists were spurring a serious rebel offensive in the Indochinese state of Laos. Now the danger seems less than feared, but we are getting some typical Red broadsides on the propaganda front.

There isn't the slightest doubt that Communist China would love to devour Laos as the Reds gobbled up North Viet Nam some years back. Infiltrating forces are repeatedly probing border areas to test the strength of the Laotian government armies.

What we should not have to take, however, is a new dose of propaganda from Hanoi and Peiping blaming the "unrest" on the United States and telling us to get our military advisers, etc., out of the country.

Grimly serious as we know them to be, these people are still comical. They have no more right to tamper with the border of Laos than Russia has to land troops on the coast of Sweden. Yet they dare to conduct these activities while waving us off with an arrogant hand.

There is the usual pretense that this is an area of exclusive concern to the Communist world, that nobody else has any business there, that the Laotian government itself has only one place to seek friendship and to deal—with the Reds.

Peiping even charges the United States with "inciting" Laos to strengthen ties with such other Asian powers as Nationalist China, Thailand and South Viet Nam.

In other words, when a free people turns to other free neighbors and friends for support, it can only be because they are "incited." And the clear implication is that they haven't a right in the world to seek such ties.

Peiping is making a grave error if it imagines Asians or anybody else will swallow this sort of thing any more. This is the government that keeps chopping away at Quemoy-Matsu, which brutally subdued rebellion in Tibet, which has fallen badly out of favor throughout Asia.

The Red propaganda line on Laos is a peddling of shopworn goods that most Asians have picked over and found wanting. It is pat nonsense, reworked and reworked endlessly since totalitarians first got the idea of blaming others for their own sins.

The paint has cracked on the "new China" and the old tricks of tyranny are showing through.

Soapy's Bubble Bursts

Nearly all observers remarked the change. The "boy" was gone, and in his place stood a man, surprisingly old all of a sudden, and seemingly embittered.

The man was Gov. G. Mennen "Soapy" Williams of Michigan, the place the governors' meeting in Puerto Rico.

For 12 years one of the Democrats' shining young liberals, Williams is a man of talent and ambition, who has wanted to rise to higher things. Repeatedly the chance has been denied him. At presidential time, his party sought more moderate candidates, less closely identified with labor.

As if these rebuffs were not enough, Williams was struck this year by a state financial crisis. It grew largely out of recession's heavy effects on Michigan, but Williams has been badly tarred.

He knows many key political leaders already have written him off for 1960 because of it. Lieutenants of his have gone about the country explaining the financial facts—to little avail.

Today the boyish smile is seldom seen. The presidential parade has passed him by. Most think it will never come his way again.

WASHINGTON (AP) — American leadership is showing a growing concern about the ability of this country—at the rate and in the way we are going—to keep up with Soviet progress.

Time was when Soviet claims to achievement were taken with a grain of salt in the United States.

That attitude began to change when the Soviets showed how far advanced they were, industrially and scientifically, first by making the atom bomb, then the hydrogen bomb, and then beating us into outer space with their Sputniks in 1957.

Earlier in the week this writer reported President Eisenhower:

1. Is concerned about the driving urge to get ahead which the Soviets seven-year plan is giving them.

2. Thinks this country needs an incentive toward harder work—something similar to the seven-year plan—which he believes is providing the Soviet people with the moral equivalent of war.

3. Feels Americans must be induced to work harder, think more of achievement, less of leisure and money.

Now comes the Draper committee—a 10-man group headed by the investment banker, William H. Draper Jr.—which sounds like a direct echo of the President.

Eisenhower created this committee to study the United States program of military assistance to other countries. Its report, made public Thursday, urged even bigger aid and went much beyond talking in terms of weapons alone.

The 10-man group sought to look at the Soviet challenge from many angles—its progress, its productive expansion, its goals, and its tactics—plus the need it creates for American efforts to match Soviet efforts.

The committee, noting the Soviets are maintaining a higher rate of growth than the United States in industrial production and in their technology and technical education, said:

"Their objective of equaling and exceeding the United States in selected areas of their own choosing has provided an unusual psychological stimulation to their people which we must more than match by dedication to our own cause.

"These trends in the Communist world cannot be ignored. They suggest the need for real concern about our present and prospective rates of progress which will determine our future ability to compete with communist states.

All this requires a positive individual and national dedication, greater emphasis on hard constructive work and thought, less rather than more emphasis on leisure, more rather than less application to our tasks."

The similarity between Eisenhower's thinking and the committee's statement may have been the result of the President's having seen the Draper report before it was made public.

But he was concerned about this problem of competition and incentives many months ago. He announced in his State of the Union message last January he would create a committee to study and then propose national goals.

The Soviets' seven-year plan is in their case a national goal. Eisenhower is ready to name his committee as soon as he can find enough private organizations to finance its work. He doesn't want the government to foot the bill.

But neither Eisenhower nor the Draper committee has come up with an answer to the question they raise:

How can Americans—people in a free society — be induced to work harder and think less of leisure and money in order to compete with the Soviet people living under a dictatorship which can direct, control and compel them?

The dictatorship controls everything: People's lives; the work they do; where they work and on what and for how long; the luxuries they can have or must do without; their hours; prices; wages; and the means of production and distribution.

We may be entering a period of public-breast beating for our failures to do more and do without more. But self - flagellation is neither an answer nor a substitute for action.

Perhaps Eisenhower's committee on goals may produce suggestions for the old philosophical, but now very real, problem of how a free people, with all that means, can compete with a people controlled and centrally directed.

Going to School Means New Business to 71-Year-Old

BY MARIE DAERR

Every Saturday, 71-year-old L. J. gets up at 4 a.m., eats a hasty breakfast and starts a 50-mile two-bus trip to school in a big city.

School for him is a four-hour class in servicing appliances. It is a course that L. J. believes will soon provide him with a tidy, post-retirement income.

L. J. retired three years ago from an industrial firm where he did buffing and electrical maintenance work. He had worked for the company 26 years, left only because it moved its plant operations from L. J.'s home town.

"Doing nothing is no good for me," L. J. said. "I did a little wiring work for neighbors, but I wanted to be busier.

"I took two correspondence courses in appliance repairs, one from Washington, D.C., and one from Chicago.

"Then I decided to enroll in this course. I'll go to school for eight months."

"I was a little surprised when I read L. J.'s application, written in beautiful script," the head of the school told me. "We had 17-year-olds and adults enrolled in our school, but no 70-year-olds.

"I suggested that L. J. sit in on a class to see how he liked it. He did—and stayed on."

L. J., who looks 55, says that the most difficult part of his project is the transportation.

"I don't drive any more," he explained. "Once in a while, if I'm lucky, I can catch a through bus.

"Most of the time I have to transfer. But I feel it's worth the effort."

At present, L. J. has workshops in the basement and garage of his home.

"I'll start my business slowly from home, then branch out if I have luck," he said. "There's certainly no harm in trying."

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

Problems of Life and Faith

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

The problems of life and faith, the subject of the Book of Job, and of its modern counterpart, the play "J.B." are so close to many current religious offerings of help so shallow, that I want to add a little to what I have recently written.

Some of it is concerned with the late Dr. Lloyd Douglas, author of the novel, "The Robe." For some years I had an intimate friendship with Dr. Douglas. We corresponded freely for some time before we met, and a few years before his first successful novel, "The Magnificent Obsession" was published, he told me of the plot he had in mind, and of his intention to write the story.

When I reviewed a later story by Dr. Douglas, I could not suppress an irritated feeling that my friend had written with one eye on the popular movies, and had not achieved his best. I was further irritated with the feeling that it was far too light and inadequate for the problem with which it dealt.

I wrote that it was more calculated to deal with spiritual tummyaches and ingrown toenails than with real spiritual troubles. Another friend, Prof. Halford Luccock, of Yale University, must have felt as I did as he used my criticism in his book on religion in current fiction.

Nevertheless, I think the criticism had truth, and I am glad to say that it does not in any sense apply to an almost unknown novel by Douglas, "Forgive Us Our Trespasses," which I consider the best of his books.

There he wrote of a problem of life and faith with realism, insight and adequacy. It is a little too simple and honest for the movies, but I have a feeling that it was into it that Douglas put some of his own life.

A novelist who dealt with the problems of life and faith in their depth was George MacDonald. I doubt if his books are read much today, but they are still worth reading. As I recall them, their characters were not concerned with shallow happiness. They never could have sung "glory songs" about "glory for me." If there was little concern for personal happiness, there was great concern about fight and justice, life's mysteries and tragedies, the realities of doubt and faith, of heaven, hell and damnation.

To have a strong clear faith in God is a great achievement. I mean a faith that is real and deep, and not just a conventional expression of belief. The problem of attaining such a faith today is increased by the new world environment of a nuclear and space age.

But it should not be forgotten that all the complexity depends upon things so small that their smallness is almost incomprehensible. And if we have wondered how God could be everywhere, it is more comprehensible in a radioactive world where we can tune in the sounds and voices that are all around. The spiritual reality of tuning in the God who is everywhere seems as assured.

The fact is that nothing has altered the ultimate reliance upon the life, words and teachings of Jesus, and it is to the New Testament that we are driven for assurance on the deepest elements of faith. Jesus taught men to find the evidence of God's Fatherhood in their own fatherhood (Matthew 7:7-11).

So They Say

Everyone would agree that we should be trying to raise the standard of living in India and building dams in the Middle East. But no one is asking us to choose between dams and space — we could easily afford both. The space effort isn't a plot; it's something that appeals to a great many pepole for a great many reasons.

Allen Learns About Hockey Instead of K Visit; Senator Acts as Messenger Boy for Secretary

BY JERRY BENNETT

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— Charges of waste in the U. S. foreign aid program have sparked the following gag:

A Washington politician died and went to hell. Upon arriving, he was shocked to find the dreaded place was actually a lush paradise populated with extremely happy people.

"What's happened down here?" he asked Satan. "I always thought hell was supposed to be in pretty bad shape."

"Well, it was," Satin replied, "until those fellows from the International Cooperation Administration arrived."

Dean Allen Wallis, executive director of the Cabinet Committee on Price Stability, was asked when his next report was coming out. He replied by quoting an answer which a Stanford University geologist always gave to the question, "when will we have the next earthquake?" It was:

"The farther away we get from the last one, the closer we get to the next one."

George V. Allen, director of the U. S. Information Agency went to Toronto to make a speech the other day, and while there he tried to sound out Canadian opinion on Nikita Khrushchev's forthcoming visit to the U. S. The best answer Ambassador Allen got was:

Washington gourmets have dubbed the Mayflower Hotel's special cherry jubilee as the dessert with the built-in shock.

Reason is that one of its ingredients is a jelly made from currant berries. On the menu, however, it's called "current jelly."

Martin Co. Board chairman George M. Bunker told a congressional committee investigating the hiring of retired officers by defense contractors, that his firm employed an ex-general at $25,000 a year. He explained that the general had been retired at 80 per cent disability from the Air Force.

When asked how a man who couldn't be used by the military was worth $25,000 to industry, Bunker replied:

"The general suffered grievous physical injuries, but there's nothing wrong with his head."

At The Same hearings, a witness was asked why he and other industrialists planned a small off-the-record party for 10 congressmen and a lieutenant general. The witness replied that he knew congressmen were always hungry for additional information from the military.

"You would have been correct," replied Rep. Porter Hardy (D-Va.), "if you had put a period after the word 'hungry.' "

While Riding the elevator to the new Senate office building basement cafeteria, Roba Holt, secretary to Sen. Bob Kerr (D-Okla.) turned to the stranger beside her and thrust a stack of letters into his hand.

"Would you drop these off for me at the mail chute on the first floor?" she asked. "I'm in a hurry." Then she quickly gave the startled man directions.

When the elevator reached the first floor, Roba was shocked to hear the operator respectfully say, "The mail chute is that way, Senator."

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

NEW YORK (AP)—Two of the nation's chief Lutheran bodies have taken different stands on the needs for elementary and secondary parochial schools.

The Augustana Lutheran Church convention went on record against them and urged its 600,000 members to "share as fully as possible in strengthening and improving" tax-supported public schools.

The Lutheran Church Missouri Synod convention, however, defended parochial schools as providing "a specifically Christian education which the public school cannot supply."

SWITCH IN RECORDINGS

NEW YORK (AP)—Original cast albums of Broadway shows are usually made in a studio without spectators or costumes. But Hal Holbrook recorded his one-man hit "Mark Twain Tonight!" in different mood.

Holbrook carefully got into his complicated makeup for the session, and invited in other actors who had been unable to witness his performance because of their own work schedules.

matter of FACT

At the start of the War Between the States, Alexander Hamilton Stephens was elected vice president of the Confederacy. In 1843, he was elected to the U.S. Congress where he remained until 1859. When his state, Georgia, left the Union, he went with it even though he did not believe in secession. After the war, Stephens was again elected to Congress. After nine years he retired to become governor of Georgia.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

Warner Anderson of "The Line-up" says the life expectancy of a hit series is four or five years.

"Shows like 'I Love Lucy' and 'My Friend Irma,' start to pall after that time," he argues. "The public begins to say, 'I've seen that before.'"

Yet here is "Father Knows Best" defying all the experts by swinging into its sixth year stronger than ever. I dropped by the set to see how Robert Young's TV wife, Jane Wyatt, is bearing up under the grind.

"I can't understand it," she remarked. "At this stage in a series, everything is supposed to start dwindling. But the scripts keep getting better and better. We've had four for the next season that are among the best we've ever had."

Therein lies one secret of the show's continued favor: Good scripts, plus careful shooting. Many filmed series are ground out in two or three days. "Father Knows Best" has a day of rehearsal and four days of filming.

"It's hard work," Jane admitted. "We have, of course, what actors seldom achieve—the security of a steady job. But I'm not so sure that I would have signed on if I had known it would last for six years. I don't like knowing that I will be doing the same thing so long."

The Emmy award winner still has trouble convincing fans she isn't really married to Bob Young (her husband is businessman Edgar Ward). I asked her how much longer this double life could last.

"Contractually, just one more year," she said. "I signed a seven-year deal for the series. No, I can't see it going any longer than that."

WOODCARVING PRIEST

HOLLISTER, Calif. (AP)—The Rev. Frederick D. Graves has retired as an Episcopal priest but he carries on religious work through his hobby—woodcarving.

Father Graves' carving projects include the entire sanctuary of St. Stephen's Chapel at the University of Nevada, featuring a life of Christ from the Nativity to the Resurrection.

He also carved a creche for St. Christopher's Mission to the Navajos in Bluff, Utah, showing the Holy Family as Navajos and the Wise Men as full-feathered Comanches on Indian ponies.

CROSS ON STAMP

BOSTON (AP)—The cross is back on a United States postage stamp.

The cross appeared on the first United States commemorative stamp, honoring Columbus in 1892. It showed Franciscan monks accompanying Columbus carrying a cross to plant in the New World.

Teacher Cites Examples of Overprivileged Teen-Agers

A high school teacher casually mentioned something about overprivileged teen-agers. When I asked her what she meant by the term, she cited a few examples from observing students at her own public high school.

According to this teacher an overprivileged teen-ager is one who—

Tells her mother she would rather stay home from a dance than wear the same party dress twice with the same crowd—and gets her mother's sympathy, and a new dress.

Expects her mother to get the car out and drive her distances she could walk in five minutes because she doesn't want to be seen walking.

Volunteers her mother's services as hostess, chauffeur, cookie maker, or whatever, without first checking to see if it is convenient for the mother or even considering that it might be a job she could do herself.

Has a mother who lets him sleep until noon during summer vacations because he stays out late every night and "needs his rest."

"And," claims this teacher, "these overprivileged teen-agers are far more numerous than you might think. Often it takes two parents working to keep them from feeling underprivileged."

Want Variety? Try These Slightly Off-Beat Recipes

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Peachy Ham-Sweet Potato Bundles (Yield: 4 to 6 servings)

Slice canned ham into 4 to 6 portions. Place each ham slice on a piece of aluminum foil. On each ham slice place 2 to 3 sweet potatoes and one peach half. Top each peach half with about a teaspoon of raisins and sprinkle lightly with ginger. Sprinkle each serving with 2 teaspoons brown sugar and dot with 1 tablespoon margarine. Fold the foil to form a tight packet. Place in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) or on a grill for about 20 minutes.

Pour ¼ cup olive or salad oil into a 12x9x2-inch baking dish. Heat in oven, if glass dish is used; on top of the stove if a metal pan is used. Combine the following vegetables and seasonings: 1 cup finely sliced raw cabbage, 1 cup sliced fresh carrots, 1 cup diced uncooked potatoes, 1 cup diced fresh tomatoes, 1 cup diced eggplant, 1 cup fresh snap beans (in 1-inch pieces), ½ cup fresh green peas, ½ cup sliced onions, ½ teaspoon crumbled whole thyme leaves, 1 whole bay leaf and 1 teaspoon ground black pepper. Pour into the hot oil. Cover. Bake 1 hour or until vegetables are tender in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees F.) Remove cover. Place 1½ pounds carp or other fish over vegetables. Sprinkle with salt and black pepper to taste. Bake 20 minutes or until fish is tender.

MONDAY'S DINNER: Peach ham-sweet potato bundles, green beans with almonds, soft rolls, butter or margarine, romaine salad, French dressing, lemon layer cake, coffee, tea, milk.

Many a fellow has a photographic mind, but nothing ever develops.

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

(A roundup of the week's work, activities and observations at the University of Illinois Dixon Springs Experiment Station near Robbs in southern Illinois, prepared by H. A. Cate).

In a feeding test last winter at the Dixon Springs Experiment Station, hay wafers proved to be superior to baled hay for putting gains on heifer calves. It took fewer pounds of wafered hay than of baled hay to make a pound of gain, and with the wafers less hay was wasted in the feedlot.

Wafers Have Advantages

As encouraging as the feeding test was, a bigger advantage for wafers over bales seems apparent. The disc-shaped, four-inch, closely packed wafer requires only one-third as much storage space as baled hay. It also costs less to truck and move and is easily adaptable to machine handling and elevating. And it is a cinch to grind preparatory to pelleting. In short, easier handling is the big advantage of the wafer over bales.

But hay wafers also have some disadvantages. First, more power is required to make a wafer than a bale. About 10 times as much pressure is needed to form the wafer as to kick out the bale. Second, moisture is a more critical problem. The hay can quickly change from being too wet to too dry to make a good wafer.

Progress This Year

In spite of the shortcomings of the wafering machine, this last week we realized that a practical machine is closer to being marketed than we had previously thought. This realization came after we had watched an experimental machine hammer its way through several miles of alfalfa windrows here on the Station. This was the same machine that operated here last year, but so very much improved. And we believe that we can expect to see even further improvement in the next year.

Forestry

About 50 boys from the Farm Boys' Forestry Camp at West Frankfort visited the Station recently. Bob Nelson, extension Forester and Bob Gilmore, forestry researcher, pointed out the type of land that is best suited for forestry—best suited from the land use standpoint—and showed invigorously growing pine plantations the returns that might be expected from land otherwise earning little or nothing. The boys were taken to Lake Glendale for lunch and a swim. There they were able to see how clear and free of silt a lake can be in a watershed area covered with pines, hardwoods and grass.

Timber management which improves hardwood stands was demonstrated; and, though tree planting is out of season, Nelson, Gilmore, and the Forestry crew demonstrated planting both by hand and by machine. Bob Nelson explained that about 1,000 trees may be planted by machine in a day, but only 500 by hand. Farm boys have a chance to learn much at the forestry camps.

Horses

From the Urbana campus we recently received four more quarter-horse mares and their colts, bringing our quarter-horse population to 10 mares and 8 colts. Raymond Enyart, chief horse breaker and trainer, will soon have horses ready for any of us to use. And, believe me, that will be a real accomplishment!

CROP PROSPECTS 3 PERCENT SHORT OF 1958 RECORD

The USDA crop report released August 11 indicated that total 1959 crop production would fall about 3 percent short of the all-time record set last year.

Total production of the four feed grains (corn, oats, sorghum grain and barley) is figured at nearly 1 percent more than in 1958, but the production of hay and forage is around 11 percent less than last year. Pasture conditions deteriorated in July but were about average on August 1, though 12 percent poorer than the year before.

Severe to extreme drouth was reported in the Dakotas and adjoining areas and in parts of the southern half of the Corn Belt, the northeast and the Mountain and Pacific Coast states. Last-minute rains saved many crops in the southeast.

Corn. July drouth in parts of the Corn Belt cut the expected crop by nearly 100 million bushels. But USDA estimators still figured the national crop at 4,173 million bushels, 10 percent more than last year. The drouth hurt the crop in the principal cash corn areas—including central and eastern Illinois.

Wheat. Drouth in the Dakotas cut wheat prospects in July. Conditions point to a total production of 1,119 million bushels of wheat. While there is enough hard red winter wheat to last for two years, there is no surplus of soft red winter wheat. Prices of soft wheat have the best chance to rise enough to pay storage costs plus a profit.

Soybeans. The 1959 crop looks good despite the drouth in the heart of the soybean belt. Actual yields from the combine may be disappointing. The crop was estimated officially at 531 million bushels compared with 574 million in 1958. But the carryover of old beans on October 1 will be about 50 million bushels in place of the 21 million carried over last October 1. Most of the beans now in sight, old and new, seem likely to be used or exported before the 1960 crop is available.

Milk Production. Production of milk in July totaled 11,224 million pounds, 2 percent less than the year before and 1 percent less than the 10-year 1948-57 average for the month. The reduction in number of dairy cows is more than offsetting the increasing production per cow. When prices of beef cattle declined, numbers of milk cows will not shrink so fast.

Research Results At Feeders' Day Program Sept. 4

URBANA—New research results that will help cattle feeders do a better and more efficient job of feeding will spotlight the annual University of Illinois Cattle Feeders Day program Friday, September 4.

A. L. Neumann, head of the U. of I. beef division, says that most of the morning and afternoon programs will be devoted to these reports. Several of the topics are effects of high moisture content of corn at harvest on feeding value; making profits from high-energy silage; effects of frequency of feeding on cattle gains; comparison between wafers, pellets and long hay for feeder cattle; and the beef cattle outlook for 1959-60.

In addition, Irvin R. Rinehart will discuss the kind of beef that today's homemaker wants. Rinehart directs meat operations for the Godfrey Food Service, Inc., Milwaukee.

At 9:00 a.m., the morning program begins with tours of the University beef cattle farm. Don McMahan, heardsman, will show visitors the purebred herd, several lots of steers on feeding trials and automatic feeding facilities under construction.

The program will then shift to the University Auditorium at 11:00 for the formal presentations.

BROADWAY GETS CONTESTED NOVEL

It was previously staged in 1937, but Linder feels a revival is apt now. Postal authorities recently lost a suit to bar an unexpurgated edition of the novel from the mails, and the U.S. Supreme Court ended a ban on exhibit of the movie in New York State.

The Southeast Asia Situation —

- BURMA: Campaign against Communists is bringing stability to once disorganized country. Economy steadily improving.
- LAOS: Cold war is hot in this landlocked country as pro-West regime fights Red rebels. U.S. aid is vital to economy.
- THAILAND: Nation still under martial law since coup in 1958. Anti-Communist. Political, economic situation sound.
- CAMBODIA: Government claims a policy of strict neutrality, has accepted aid—much needed—from both U.S. and Reds.
- VIET NAM: Like Korea, it is divided — Communists in north and republic in south, which is kept under pressure.
- MALAYA: British protectorate until 1957, potentially rich Federation has launched extensive development program.
- INDONESIA: Political situation is muddled as army continues as real force behind Sukarno's 'guided democracy.'
- PHILIPPINES: Graft and corruption, shaky economy are big issues in upcoming elections. Nation is firm backer of U.S.

NEW UNDERGROUND CABLE
makes outdoor wiring easy and inexpensive

The new plastic coated cable makes outdoor wiring simple. It can be buried out-of-the-way in the ground. Flexible, waterproof and rot proof, it makes a safe, permanent installation with little fuss or inconvenience. And it isn't expensive.

A word of advice: Use the 12 gauge wire or even the larger 10 gauge for an extended line. Your electrical contractor will know the proper size. See him for an estimate on what is needed. Do it now . . . and start getting full enjoyment from your yard.

Chapter 21: Emmy Lou Rides Alone

"I'll be back soon with help," called Emmy Lou. "You just lie there and rest."

Weakly, Simon lifted his hand and smiled as he waved goodbye. She touched her heels to Lone Star's flanks, and he began to move, climbing the slope from the creek.

For several hours Emmy Lou had followed the creek. The sun was beginning to drop in the western sky. The air was noticeably cooler. An occasional rabbit dashed across her path, and the lovely evening song of a bird could be heard from the willow bordering the stream.

But so far, she had seen no signs of human life. The little girl was hot and tired and lonesome too. Doubt began to edge its way into her thoughts.

"Suppose I don't find anyone. Suppose I'm just lose, alone," she thought. "And poor Simon is lying back there, hurt and depending on me to bring someone to help him. I just can't fail." Silently the tears began to streak their way across her dusty cheeks.

Lone Star patiently plodding his way along the prairie, suddenly came to a stop. He whinnyed, threw up his head, pointed his ears, and stood tense, listening.

"What was wrong," she thought frightened. "Why did he stop like that?"

Mysterious Sound

Then Emmy Lou, too, heard the sound! At first the noise was like thunder, deep and rolling, distant and faint. But it did not stop like thunder would!

A moment later, she realized it was the rumble of hoofbeats, growing louder and louder. Across the prairie, Emmy Lou could see a cloud of dust rapidly moving across the earth toward her.

"Suppose it is the same band of renegade Indians," she reasoned. "I must hide. They must not capture me too. I have to find help for Simon! But where can I hide?"

Quickly her eyes took in the broad terrain. "Of course," she decided, "Down the slope over there by the creek!"

Swiftly, she pulled Lone Star's head toward the creek and touched her heels to his ribs urging him to instant speed.

When Emmy Lou touched her heels to Lone Star's flanks, she had a surprise awaiting her. Instead of the gentle docile horse he had shown himself to be all day, now he tossed his head impatiently and refused to budge from the spot.

Again she kicked him, and snapped the reins against his neck, frantically urging him to obey her commands. Stubbornly, he stood his ground, trembling expectantly, as hot tears of frustration and fear coursed down her cheeks.

At last, instead of obeying her urgent commands, he snorted nervously, and began to move, slowly at first, and then in ever increasing speed, toward the approaching cloud of dust. As he gained momentum, Emmy Lou was forced to use all her thoughts and strength to remain on the galloping horse's back.

Her own thoughts of taking cover, were quickly abandoned. On and on he flew, steadily closing the distance between this unknown group of riders and her.

Next: Surprise For Emmy Lou.

SNAPPING TURTLES

If you could see under water you would see many different things.

You would see such things as snapping turtles. When the snapping turtle lays eggs, she lays up to thirty-seven eggs.

It takes three months for the eggs to hatch. She doesn't take care of the baby turtles.

I think it is fun to watch men milk cows. It is fun to plant vegetables and watch them grow.

If there were snow on the ground, I would go sled riding down a big hill on the farm. I think farms are fun.

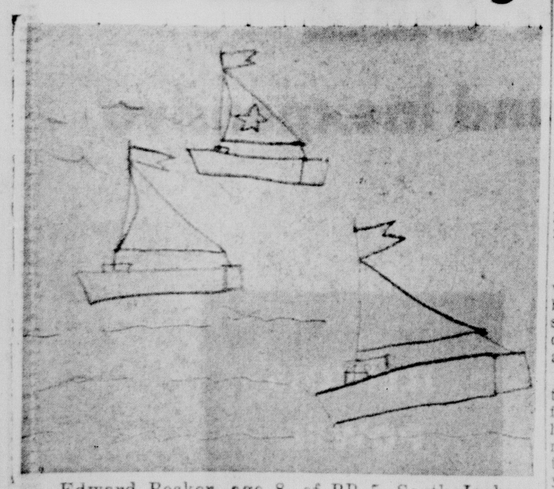
About three billion barrels of oil were produced in the United States in 1958. The oil came from 9,250 fields located in 32 states.

Three Boats Sailing



Edward Becker, age 8, of RR 5, South Jacksonville, drew this lively picture of sailboats. Many of you will see scenes like this on your vacation trips.

If you like to draw send in a picture—just 4 inches square and all your own work—to the Jacksonville Junior Journal-Courier with your name, age and address.

Let's Go Birdin'

Spoonbills and Sunset
By Emma Mae Leonhard

Birds can be beautiful in small cages: they can be beautiful in zoos; they can be beautiful in gardens and parks: and they are naturally beautiful in unrestricted areas of woods, lakes, fields, rivers, and deserts.

Yet there can be a specific time when the beauty of the bird, just any bird, can become superlative, almost mystic. It must be just the right time, at the right spot, and we are not always fortunate enough to be there at that particular time.

I shall present two scenes of such beauty: this article concerns the Roseate Spoonbill, and the following one will deal with a flock of Sooty Terns, both of which I enjoyed in Florida in July. There seems to be an affinity between sunsets and Roseate Spoonbills: both are, in general, pink.

It was late afternoon on this special day; a group of us birders were standing at the edge of a great marsh near Lake Okeechobee, Florida, where many kinds of birds were feeding or resting. Soon one member of the party exclaimed, "I see something pink!"

Pink Wedding Bird

As the birds moved closer and we focused our binoculars upon them, we recognized the Spoonbill—a large pink wading bird with a long flatly spoon-shaped bill. Tehre is no larger wading bird of North America with such brilliant feathers.

Although its upper neck and back are mainly white (There may sometimes be a pink tinge.), the general plumage appears pink; the wings and under parts of the mature bird are a delicate rose-pink; the plumes of the lower foreneck, the lesser wing-coverts, upper and under tail-coverts are a rich carmine; its legs are a pinkish red. The immatures are more white than pink.

Yes, the Roseate Spoonbill is the bird of sunset pinks with the touch of white fluffy clouds thrown in. In this flock of Spoonbills there were two adults and six immatures, displaying the pinks and pink tints that were already appearing in the twilight sky.

We watched the concentrated pink on the western horizon dissipate and scatter itself in all directions, sometimes lighting the edges of white clouds; and we watched the pink birds advance in a long file through the mud and water in front of us, swinging their opened spoon-like bills from side to side for a bed-time snack.

As the pink of the sky lessened, these rare Spoonbills rose in the air and flew in a long diagonal line, each bird being behind and just to one side of the bird in front—pink and white birds sailing with outstretched necks into the western dying sunset.

Sky and marsh and sunset were flying into uninterrupted space and becoming a part of the indefinable time. Silently and respectfully we also became part of the scene and the experience.

Time To Think Of School Again

By Jerry Lawless

Every month of school vacation holds some interest for us. During June we are overcome with our new found freedom from scholarly duties, by the beautiful green of nature, and by the lightheartedness of young and old alike rediscovering the possibilities of spring.

By the time July comes, the heat is usually so great that it is too hot to do much of anything but to go swimming or sit under a favorite shade tree and sip lemonade, although some of us have to work during summer vacations. August brings many activities which demand much of our time and ourselves such as fairs, concerts, trips, and reunions.

Even now, as I look out the window on this simmering summer day, I can well imagine what winter will be like. Before long, Mother Nature will be replacing her beautiful colors of summer for those of autumn then for a lovely, downy, blanket of white pierced by the sharp outlines of rocks and bare trees as they stick through the snow.

Plans for sleighing and other winter activities and sports will be made and you can well understand the pre-Xmas anticipations of people as they look forward to another winter season.

Yes, we vacationers, in our retarded summertime rhythm, are full of hope, anticipation, and perhaps dread as the last of August nears and we once more turn our thoughts back to the coming school year.

SATURN'S RINGS

Rings of the planet Saturn are formed by myriads of tiny particles, each moving in its own orbit. About 171,000 miles in diameter, the rings are only ten miles thick.

BIRTHDAY PARADE

Patty Jo Crawford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ivan Crawford of 1713 S. East St., starts our Birthday Parade today. Patty was 2 years old August 12.

Patty has two sisters, Sally Lou, age 13, and Candy Sue, age 3, who both won baby trophies and Patty is hoping to bring one home some day to keep up the Crawford name. (Incidentally, many of our readers will remember Patty's mother, Lucille Kumle Crawford, who reigned as queen on Pioneer Day when Jacksonville commemorated the opening of the old Northwest Territory here.)

* * *

Joyce Ann Toler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Toler of 406 Hardin, will be 6 years old August 27.

Joyce has two sisters, Dorothy Ann, age 4, and Sandra, age 3, who marched in our parade recently.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

To march in the Birthday Parade, just send your name, address, age and birthdate—with a snapshot if you have one—to the Jacksonville Junior Journal Courier 2 weeks before your Birthday. Photos may be called for as soon as they have appeared in the paper.

If you have a party, write and tell us about that later.

Old-Time Peddler Man

By Mary Pence Claywell

Come list to the tale of the Peddler Man,
Who came long years ago
To homes that dotted the countryside,
With his faithful steed . . . and slow.

You children of today will never see an old-time peddler man for he now belongs to that period of many long years ago. Nevertheless, you will enjoy hearing about him, for he blessed the children of grandfather's day with many a joyful thrill.

I believe, even today, with practically everything to make life full of joy, you children will still thrill in your "imagination," as you picture the weekly visit of the old-time peddler man.

At the time our story opens, little Fanny is playing under the big maple trees that stands in a cluster beside the dusty country road. (The hard, ribbon-like pavements we ride along on today at great speed was quite unknown in Fanny's time, for every one traveled by horse-drawn wagons and carts.)

Each time a cloud of dust rises in the distance, Fanny shaded her eyes with her hand and peers out from under her "slatted" sunbonnet . . . for she is watching for somebody special, the "Peddler Man!"

Several times she is disappointed, as only a wagon or buggy emerges from the dust-cloud, and she quietly settles down again beneath the maple trees. But finally, the big moment arrives . . . and Peddler John comes into sight.

"Ma," and "Pa," were the respectful names used to parents.

So Fanny kept calling, "Ma! Oh Ma! Here comes Peddler John!"

Finally, Ma came hurrying out, carrying two big market baskets of large brown eggs. When Fanny saw Ma coming, she reached for her own "sales" articles, that she would sell to Peddler John.

I'm sure you children could never guess what Fanny had for sale!

War In The Front Yard

SURPRISE ATTACK

Red ant queens never lay more than one batch of worker ant eggs. This serves to get the colony started and then the queen lays only soldier ant eggs.

Ants are born with all the knowledge they need for their life's work and can't learn any more. So worker ants can only work and soldier ants only fight.

Of course, any ant will fight to defend the nest but soldier ants stand and fight when they are annoyed while worker ants only dodge and run.

Soldier ants are better equipped for fighting. They have larger heads which hold larger and sharper mandibles (pinchers). To make their bites more damaging soldier ants secrete formic acid which they spit into the wounds they make. This acid can kill a bitten ant and it makes the bite sting more when it is given to a human being.

Most new red ant queens stay at their old nest instead of starting new ones as black ant queens do. So red ant nests usually grow larger than black ant nests.

Time For Raid

When more soldier ant eggs are laid than the worker ants would be able to care for the soldier ants that will hatch, the soldier ants raid another nest and steal its eggs.

The red soldier ants don't know one kind of ant egg from another, so they just take every egg they can get their mandibles on home. When these eggs hatch the black ants go about their business just as if they were in their original nest. The workers go to work, the black queens fly away and start new nests, and the black soldiers guard the nests while the red ants are all off on a raid.

Battle In Sunshine

Red ants only raid on sunny afternoons when the warm sunlight makes them move faster. In the afternoon the ants in the black ant nest are all working as hard as they can so they are too busy to notice the approaching red ant army before its too late, even though the "marching" column is about a dozen ants wide.

Since the red ants have several queens they usually outnumber the black ant nests they attack. But sometimes they raid a nest that is large enough to give them some trouble. This happened, on July 8th, when the red ants in my front yard attacked a black ant nest in my neighbor's yard.

What Is Sound?

By Joseph A. Smith

We all know that sound travels in waves or vibrations. Through the use of energy, sound moves the air through which it is traveling.

Sound vibrations will set the hammer, anvil, and stirrup of the ear to work. Tiny fluid particles within the ear are setin motion by these three parts of the human ear. These particles, in turn, effect the ends of the auditory nerve inside the ear. Of course outside sounds cause the ear drum to vibrate; these in turn act on the inner ear bones and nerves.

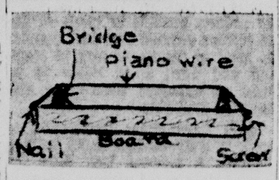
Can Feel Sound

Two of the most simple sources of sound vibration are the tuning fork and an ordinary bell. Usually vibrations can't be seen (except by means of an electronic oscilloscope), but can be felt by touching a vibrating tuning fork. If you visit Chicago ask your parents to take you to the telephone exhibit in the Museum of Science and Industry where you can "see" sound.

The speed of sound is roughly 1,100 feet pers second, and sound does travel faster in warm air than in cold air. By means of our old friend the Tin Can Telephone (use two tin cans connected 25 feet of waxed string, and 2 nails) we can hear sound waves in action.

What Is Music?

Pleasant music consists of the main (or fundamental) tone or frequency, a number of harmonics, and overtones. Such tones can come from vibrating strings. To see how this works we can easily build a Sonometer.



Hunt around in the basement (or elsewhere) for a piece of wood 3 feet long, 4 inches wide, and 1 inch thick; also obtain a nail, a screw, and a length of steel wire. Make two diamond shaped bridges that are 3½ inches long and 1 inch wide.

Now drive the nail into the left end of the board, the screw into the right end, and place the bridges across the board near the opposite ends. Finally, stretch the wire fairly tight between the nail and the screw. Strike or pluck the wire and a tone will come from your Sonometer.

You can vary the pitch of this tone either by tightening the wire, or by moving the bridges to shorten the length of wire that vibrates.

Raggedy Ann

By Mabel Hall Goltra

Making a ribbon into a large bow,
Who said, "I will hear all your lessons told."
But Raggedy Ann felt suddenly bold,
And to the kitten she saucily said,
"Will you flunk?" said the kitten,
"Say not so."
Then Raggedy's tears began to flow,
But gladly she rose and found her gold pen
To offer the kitten who said "Amen."
The kitten wrote Raggedy's lesson that night,
While the room was flooded with bright moonlight
Then Raggedy went to school with the rest,

CQ RADIO HAMS—

General Ticket Study

By Joseph A. Smith

Our Friend The "Valve"

If you don't realize the importance of a Vacuum radio tube take a look inside a modern T.V. receiver or a better piece of "Ham" gear. What do you see? All sorts of tubes doing all kinds of jobs.

You can see we must know at least something (in general) as to how a "Valve" (British name for a radio tube) works and how it is used. You would do well first to re-read the paragraphs on DIODES and the TRIOD in "How To Become A Radio Amateur". You can not intelligently use and maintain the shack's receiver unless you likewise know something of how it "ticks".

For code this week you might proceed this way: Mon: Practice "P.C.G." column No. 4 (across the page); Tues: Copy WLAW at both 10 and 15 W.P.M. Your 10 W.P.M. should be fine by now, and 15 W.P.M. just fair at best! Wed: Tune in tape station(sending at 10 W.P.M. or so), now turn on a Broadcast radio in the same room, and proceed to copy with this "QRM." Try copying some singles in the amateur C. W. bands. More QRM there too!

Thurs: Copy WLAW again at 10 & 15 W.P.M. You should be getting more at 15 W.P.M. by now; Fri: Run the dual speed test. Compare results with the last such test. What is your dual speed now? Sat: Copy WLAW as before.

Vacuum Tube Theory

For vacuum tube theory we will make use of both the A.R.R.L. Handbook and the R.C.A. Receiving Tube Manuel (abbreviated herein R.T.M.) Incidently, how is that construction project now?

Theory study this week might go this way: Mon: Handbook, PP58 through 60—Through Diodes. Tues: R.T.M., Again through Diodes. Wed: Handbook, PP 60 through 68—Triodes and Amplification. Thurs: R.T.M., Triodes & Electron Tube Characteristics. Fri: R.T.M., Electron tube Applications. Proceed down to "As a Class A Amplifier." Sat: Study sample exam questions number 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 70.

BITTERNUT HICKORY
By Rip Barnsdall

The nuts of this tree are so bitter that even squirrels refuse to eat them! The wood is often used for smoking hams.

CUB SCOUTS

In Cub Scouts we are making different things like branding irons. Each month we have a different subject, such as boy month or pirate month.

There are three ranks in Cub Scouts; Wolf; Bear, and Lion. A pack meeting comes every month in the middle of the month.

Peaceful Picketing Of Modern Steel Strike Is Far Cry From Warfare 50 Years Ago

HOMESTEAD, Pa. (AP) — On the river bank, the big, black steel plant, which dwarfs everything in town, lay quiet and still, like a giant tamed by Lilliputians.

At the main gate of the Homestead works of the United States Steel Corporation, the pickets played pinochle.

A foreman came out, noted the humidity, predicted another stinker, and asked if he might go out to his car for a moment. The pickets said sure.

A company policeman came by. A picket handed him a container of coffee. The cop handed him a cigar. The picket said as soon as he finished painting the kitchen, he'd go fishing. Providing the old lady didn't find any more jobs for him. And, of course, providing the strike didn't end before then.

Back in New York, the two armies of negotiators and industrial relations experts and public relations experts hammered away with dire epithets, each side implying the other was out to cripple the Republic.

But here on the front line of the strike, where steel is made and steel workers live, where people remember bloody strikes that resembled civil wars, there is a strange lack of heat. Few people seem mad at anybody.

In the Homestead bars they quietly belt down their shot and beer and discuss the Pittsburgh Pirates. Why talk about the strike? Hell, it's routine. Contract runs out. Union asks for more dough. Company says no. So? So, you strike for awhile. Like measles in the family. You don't like it but why get mad at the germs?

The tone of this strike town is not apathy because no one can be apathetic about a shutdown of the town's biggest employer. Occasional strikes have become part of just since the war.

It is not indifference because some people are hurting. Clothing store sales are down, furniture sales are down, appliance sales are down and grocers complain the women are buying less fruit, less olives, less steak and more potatoes, more spaghetti, more chopped meat. Hardware and paint stores have no complaints: the do-it-yourself trend is bigger than ever.

Here and there, individual strikers were definitely feeling the pinch in the first month of the strike—especially men who worked irregularly during last year's recession. They were skipping mortgage payments on the principal and just paying the interest. They were letting other bills pile up and draining savings.

Still, most strikers approached by this reporter said they had not yet begun to feel the squeeze but would if it lasted much longer. Many had vacation pay. They were living and eating normally.

A modern strike, it would seem, has less immediate impact. In the old days, they felt hunger and anger quicker. "In those days," said one woman, "the old man walked out the gate, got drunk right away and wanted to set fire to the plant."

Homestead, which is near Pittsburgh, capsules a half century of American labor progress. People here remember their grandfathers working for 26 cents an hour. They remember their fathers in the depression showing up three times a day for all three shifts trying to get a few hours work.

Old pensioners sunning themselves in Henry C. Frick Park, near the silver cannon and silver water fountain, remember '92. In that strike, the company — then Carnegie Steel—and the president —then Henry C. Frick—tried to import two barge-loads of Pinkerton men up the Monongahela as strike - breakers. Gunfire erupted between the barges and strikers on shore and 10 people were killed and 60 injured. Five months later, the strike ended—in failure.

They sit now, these old pensioners, on the bench along the wall of Gene's Dairy, making more steel and making it better than anybody in town. They marvel at the changes in labor warfare, they cluck critically that most steel workers today, while they earn more, are deeper in debt. And they remember the strike of 1919, when the iron and coal police and the mounted state police "rode through town like Cossacks."

Today the average steel worker earn $3 an hour and is protected by security clauses, pension clauses, seniority clauses and by a union 500,000 strong and powerful enough to shut down America's biggest basic industry overnight.

Today the young steel worker no longer lives in the old drab company houses crowded onto the hill overlooking the plant. He has moved over the hill to the suburbs beyond, where he owns a house and piece of land and mortgage all his own.

He no longer fears the cop on horseback. The iron and coal police are dead. The state police keep a respectful distance. The company police stay within the company gates, unarmed, and have no powers whatever beyond the gates. About the only strike violence occurs in taverns where men have more time to argue.

Today, many of the mechanics of a strike resemble an agreement between gentlemen more than all-out war.

While spokesmen for management and labor call each other names, they still can find it in their hearts to reduce mutual inconvenience. Thus, several days before, the union tells management of an impending walkout so the company can start cooling down the furnaces.

Management and labor agree on who will be allowed in the plant during the shutdown. They agree there is no point in keeping five gates open—use just one, it cuts down on pickets. Pickets can loll on company property, use company washrooms and company power lines if they want to watch television.

Murrayville OES Chapter Plans Ice Cream Social

MURRAYVILLE — The Murrayville O.E.S. Chapter 795 will sponsor a home made ice cream and cake social in the Murrayville Park Friday evening, Aug. 28 beginning at 6:30 o'clock.

Tickets are 40 cents and may be obtained from any member of the committee or at the park.

The committee in charge is Mrs. Faye Fitzsimmons, Mrs. Beverly Heaton and Mrs. Barbara Spencer.

Mrs. C. R. Dowland of Jacksonville has been a guest this week at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. B. Fitzsimmons.

On Tuesday evening they attended the Eastern Star meeting at Scottville. Mrs. Fitzsimmons' uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Feely, were presented 50 year pins as members of the O.E.S. Mr. Feely was recently presented a 50 year jewel in the Masonic Lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carson of Boston, Mass., were dinner guests Tuesday of Mrs. Kathryn Coleman and Cletus.

Mrs. Elsie Smith and her daughter, Mrs. John Spencer, attended the Stinett family reunion last Sunday at the Old Union Community Building near Roodhouse.

There were 18 members from the local Baptist church who attended the Sandy Creek Association which was held in Virginia this week.

Mrs. Lucille Ommen and Miss Sharon Ommen of Arenzville were guests over last weekend at the home of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Ommen.

Rev. and Mrs. E. L. Smart of Crystal City, Mo., visited friends here Sunday. Rev. Smart was the guest minister at the Baptist church while the pastor, Rev. Vale Walkington, is on vacation.

Mrs. Anthony Kolder and daughter, Mrs. Jack Hoest and her son, Scott Brian of Chicago, spent from Tuesday until Thursday with the former's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Evans and family and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Israel of Bridgeton, N. J., and Mrs. Henry Wilson of Frankfort, Ind. are visiting this week at the home of their brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Alred.

Pittsfield Voters Approve Proposed Lake Project

PITTSFIELD —There was no trouble here Friday in determining whether the people of Pittsfield wanted a proposed new lake as voters registered an overwhelming vote in favor of the measure. The landslide victory in favor of the proposal saw a total of 1393 votes for and 41 against. There were 30 spoiled ballots.

The people went to the polls Friday to determine whether the majority were in favor of the proposed plan to furnish a new lake-reservoir for the Pittsfield water system. The plan is known as the Blue Creek Water Shed Project. A reserve system has been sought since the present lake went dry in 1953.

Through the efforts of the federal government and the soil conservation division of the United States Agriculture Department, an appropriation was made by Congress for the purpose of assisting Pittsfield in creating a lake on Big Blue creek having a dual purpose of flood control and providing a man made lake for city water supply. The final approval for funds passed congress in June.

Operational Success Of Atlas Is Triumph For Gen. Schriever

By RALPH DIGHTON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Early next month the Air Force hopes to stamp "operational" on the Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile.

The expected announcement will mark a significant stride toward eliminating the critical gap —once estimated as wide as three years — between the American and Soviet long-range missile programs.

Among the men largely responsible for whipping U.S. missile technology back into the race with the Soviet Union is Lt. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, chief of the Air Force Air Research and Development Command.

The Soviet Union first claimed possession of an ICBM Aug. 26, 1957. The United States had to wait 15 months before the Air Force blasted its first experimental Atlas from Cape Canaveral over the full 5,000-mile-plus south Atlantic range.

Now, less than a year since that test, the Atlas is about to join the Air Force arsenal of weapons. None could feel greater satisfaction over this development than Schriever—who won his present post and his general's stars fighting for missiles.

It was not an easy fight. There were times when he laid his career on the block, an obscure Pentagon colonel and former German immigrant bucking generals who would not believe the space age was about to dawn.

But in little more than five years Schriever has rocketed to three-star general and built missile technology into a two-billion-dollar-a-year industry.

He has been credited with fighting for missiles since 1950, when they were more closely related to science fiction than military science.

"It just isn't true," he says, with characteristic frankness. "I did not become sold on missiles as weapons until late in 1952, when technological advances showed that nuclear warheads could be made small enough to fit missile nose cones.

"Up to that time I had been more interested in big bombers as a deterrent force. Then the picture changed. With smaller payloads, missiles became practical."

By 1954, when the Air Force decided to set up a missile research and development center on the West Coast, it was obvious that the man for the job was the man who had fought for their existence.

First, as a crackerjack engineer. Schriever knew missiles and how they should be made.

Second, he was a top-flight administrator, a paper work genius in development and planning.

Schriever, as a brigadier general, was sent to Inglewood, Calif., to lay the groundwork for what was to become the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division.

In the years since 1954, he has flown hundreds of thousands of miles in this country and abroad in the cause of missilery. He spent much of this time in Washington, selling his program to Congress.

Schriever was among those who pushed the idea for setting up production facilities while development of the Thor intermediate range missile was still under way. He argued that this compression of lead time would mean that the missiles would be ready for deployment much sooner. Thors are now operational in bases in England.

When Bernard Schriever, born Sept. 14, 1910, in Bremen, Germany, arrived in America in 1917, effigies of Kaiser Wilhelm swung from lamp posts across the land.

Through a rising tide of anti-German hysteria, his mother hurried with him and his young brother Gerhard to a haven with friends at the German-American community of New Braunfels, Tex. There they awaited the release of her husband, a German seaman who had been interned at the outbreak of hostilities.

His father died in a factory accident at San Antonio, Tex., shortly after his release. Schriever's mother went to work as housekeeper for a wealthy family in San Antonio.

Ben received a B.S. in engineering from Texas A&M in 1931 and joined the Air Force. He has been in the service ever since, except for a brief period as a commercial pilot in 1938. He married a general's daughter — they have three children, became a Wright Field test pilot, took a master's degree in aeronautical engineering at Stanford University in 1942, then flew 63 bombing missions in the Pacific.

After the war, Schriever was sent to Washington as chief of the scientific liaison section. In 1949, he entered the National War College and upon graduation went into the Pentagon.

NEW LOOK IN IGLOOS—Travelers along the New Jersey Turnpike may be startled at the sight of this strange-looking structure a-building at the Radio Corporation of America plant at Moorestown, N.J. It's a prototype of 15-story domes to be built in the Arctic as part of the Ballistic Missile Early Warning System (BMEWS) of the Air Force. They will be used to house test equipment for tracking missiles. The domes will be fabricated of paper pressed into hexagonal shapes, each taller than a man, and each faced with plastic-impregnated fiber glass.

SWALLOWS LIVE MOUSE—Mrs. Florence Hill, 67, of Denver, Colo., who swallowed a live mouse earlier said she would have never gone to the hospital if she had known it would have caused so much "commotion." Mrs. Hill has been deluged with phone calls and mail from people who wanted to know if story was true. She swallowed the mouse after being awakened by her dog Boots' growl. On seeing the mouse, she opened her mouth to scream, the mouse jumped in. Here Mrs. Hill gags it up by preparing to swallow mousetrap to go with mouse. —NEA Telephoto

Chileans Go Hungry With Steak Selling 30 Cents Pound, Wine 22 Cents Bottle

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—In this narrow nation hugging the west coast of South America you can rent a house for $35 a month, buy a pound of thick juicy steak for 30 cents and a bottle of red wine for 22 cents.

You can see the best movies for 30 cents, ride the big Japanese-built trollybusses for 3 cents and be waited on by a full-time maid for $15 a month.

Sounds like a poor man's paradise. But it's not. Chile, a little larger in area than the state of Texas and with a population of seven million, is struggling to overcome a severe economic crisis.

In this poverty-stricken country per capita income is only $340 a year and prices that seem low to a foreigner are sky-high for Chileans.

The poor wear rags, live in shacks and go hungry much of the time. The middle-class must skimp and scrape to make ends meet. The Chilean peso, once worth 4 to $1, now exchanges at more than 1,000 to $1. Unemployment is estimated at 400,000.

But the worst may now be over. Since Jorge Alessandri took over as president last November the economy seems to be improving.

One of Alessandri's first achievements was to get through a bill that gives him for one year vast powers to take measures he thinks necessary to put the nation back on its feet.

Tax evasion, for instance, has been a traditional Chilean game. There is a saying that if Chile could collect all taxes due, it would be rich.

The president is taking other steps to put the country on a paying basis. He hopes to streamline the civil service system, make the import laws pay the country more dividends and improve the monetary system and banking laws.

Historically, about 70 per cent of Chile's economy has depended upon the exports of copper and nitrates. The nation's ills have become serious since the nitrate market collapsed and the copper market weakened.

Alessandri has promised that his government will make vigorous use of its extraordinary economic and administrative powers to fight the economic ills, demagoguery and politics which he says have brought "hunger and despair to thousands of our people." He does not expect the rebuilding job to be done in a few days or a few months. He lists foreign capital investments as one important requirement.

The United States recently granted Chile a credit of 130 million dollars and Chile received 70 million from West Germany. The money will be used to fight inflation and push development plans.

NEW HOME SERIES

NO. 9

This new home, recently completed by Glenn E. Neff, Building Contractor, located at No. 6 Jo-Ellen Place, Westgate Addition, has an exterior that is fresh and inviting. A generous roof overhang, the long, low lines with the attached garage shielding the rear loggia from the street, horizontal white siding, Redwood trim, shuttered windows, and a dignified recessed doorway, all combine to give this home a welcoming look.

Charm, practicality, and comfort have been incorporated in the well-planned interior. The distinctive doorway opens the way into this livable home, and a decorative Stone planter near the door helps to form an entry hall at the end of the living room. For added convenience, there is a guest closet just around the corner. In the living room, there is a three sectional picture window which covers almost all of the front wall; the other walls are left free and uncluttered for the arrangement of furniture, affording a spacious entertaining area. The plaster walls of a Sandalwood shade are offset by an eight inch White plaster cove, and a Fan-designed White plaster ceiling. The all wool Wilton wall-to-wall carpeting is a Nutra-Beige Tone.

Traffic circulation is worked out exceptionally well, since you can reach all areas without crossing the main areas of either the living room or dining room. The entry hall opens onto a main hall which gives access to the bathroom and the three bedrooms. It has wall-to-wall carpeting, and also contains a linen closet to serve the sleeping area. The bedrooms are comfortably proportioned, the windows have been planned to give each room the best possible exposure, double closets with sliding doors are featured for space savers. A harmonious and yet diversified effect was achieved by choosing a different color scheme for each of the bedrooms: Light Green walls with White ceiling for bedroom No. 1, Medium Grey walls with Pink ceiling in No. 2, and Pink walls with a White ceiling was selected for the third bedroom. The floors are of Red Oak. The bathroom is full size with a particularly attractive vanity topped with Beige Formica. The vanity is surmounted by a large mirror, and has drawers and cabinets below for storage. There is a shower-tub enclosed by decorative Frosted Glass sliding doors, and a towel closet to supplement the linen closet in the hall. The walls are covered with Beige Plastic Tile grouted in, the floor is of Vinyl in a harmonizing shade.

The bedroom hall connects with a side hall, where there is a door opening to a small patio in the rear, a walk sheltered by the roof overhang leads from this patio to the rear loggia. A half-bath is conveniently located near the back door, walls of Pale Pink Marbelized Plastic Tile grouted in, and a Green plaster ceiling contribute to its charm, as well as a mirrored medicine cabinet above the lavatory with strip lights on either side. Vinyl floor covering is used for the half-bath and the side hall. A door also gives access to the stairs leading down to the full basement, which is equipped with a heating unit adaptable to air-conditioning and a water heater.

Entrance to the kitchen is gained from the hall. The kitchen has been efficiently designed to include lots of working space, so well arranged are its facilities that there is plenty of room for a breakfast table. The rich warmth of the Fruitwood cabinets teams well with the Vinyl floor covering, the Brown Plaza Moss countertops of Formica, and the Turquoise walls. Built-in oven and range "separates" are featured. The Bronze hood over the surface range and the Bronze hardware on the cabinets blend beautifully with the Fruitwood background. To add to the decor, a scalloped valance of Fruitwood is used on the double window above the sink. The sink is equipped with an In-sinkerator disposer.

The dining room to the left of the kitchen adjoins the living room, here further unity is established by decorating these rooms as one unit, the wall-to-wall carpeting is extended through an arch from the living room into the dining room. Sufficient light is provided by two windows with eastern exposure. A step high landing makes it easy to go from the dining room to the rear loggia. This attractive porch has many features which will add to the pleasure of living in this home. It is sheltered on two sides, the other two sides are semi-enclosed with Redwood panels, the posts supporting the roof are also Redwood. The floor is poured concrete, and a door opens into the garage making it possible to reach the house without going out into inclement weather. The loggia is an ideal spot for warm weather dining. Aluminum combination screen and stormsash are provided throughout.

So often, the combination of beauty and practicality is a difficult one to achieve, but that is certainly not the case with this lovely home.

Your inspection of this home is invited, appointments may be made by telephoning the Elm City Realty Company, No. CH. 5-8110.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Points and sons Keith and Phil, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Thomas and sons Kent and Gary, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Moore of Waverly, and Mr. and Mrs. Schonnebaum of Carlinville, returned to their homes Sunday, Aug. 16 after spending a two week vacation in the northwest portion of Minnesota.

Sally Lou Ransdell Of Franklin Bride Of Kent Frederick Mahlke In Church Rites

A candlelight ceremony at eight o'clock the evening of Saturday, August fifteen, in Annie Merner Chapel on MacMurray College campus united in marriage Miss Sally Lou Ransdell, daughter of the William K. Ransdells of Franklin and Kent Frederick Mahlke of Riverside, Illinois.

White flowers were used exclusively, with greenery and slim white tapers, at the Chapel altar. Vases contained gladioli and pompoms. An aisle cloth extended from the Chapel entrance to the altar. Family pews were marked with large ribbon bows. Vases of the same flowers were used in the vestibule at the Chapel.

Ruel Becker, friend of the bride's family, was soloist. He was accompanied by Robert Wegehoft at the organ who presented nuptials selections. Before the ceremony Mr. Becker sang "Because," "I Love Thee," and "O Perfect Love" and at the conclusion "The Lord's Prayer." The traditional processional and recessional were used.

Five Attendants

The bride was attended by a maid of honor and four bridesmaids. Miss Nancy Lee Ransdell was her sister's maid of honor. Three of her bridesmaids were sorority sisters, Miss Julie Marton and Miss Coe Klafke, both of Bloomington and Miss Sue Schrock of Lacon, Illinois. The fourth bridesmaid was Miss Janet Chance of Franklin.

The bridegroom, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Mahlke of Riverside, had as his best man Steve Randall of LaGrange, Ill. Groomsmen, who also served as ushers, were Carl Gerken and Michael Vaughn, both of Riverside; Laddie Junkunc, Oak Park and Jon Stevenson, Brookfield.

Chantilly And Tulle

The lovely bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an exquisite creation of Chantilly lace and nylon tulle with iridescent sequin trim. The snug lace bodice of the wedding gown had long fitted sleeves tapering to points over the hands and a Sabrina cut neckline embellished with iridescent sequins. The voluminous skirt, with inserts of nylon tulle, revealed multiple tiers of tulle ruffles which extended into a Chapel length train.

A dainty queen's crown of pearls with sequins held the bride's veil of silk illusion. Her cascade bouquet of white roses with stephanotis centered a fragile white orchid.

The attendants to the bride were gowned identically in ballerina length dresses of silk organza and lace in a wood violet shade. The frocks were made on princess lines. The bodices were of lace and full organza skirts draped to bows at the back.

Receive In Lounge

A reception for guests was held in the Ann Rutledge Lounge on campus immediately after the ceremony. For the wedding of her daughter and receiving guests Mrs. Ransdell chose a soft pink lace dress with which she wore a corsage of white baby orchids.

Mrs. Mahlke, mother of the bridegroom, wore pale blue peau de soie and her flowers were also white baby orchids.

Pink With Purples

Appointments for the serving table were pink with shades of purple. A four tiered bride's cake featured the pale pink covered serving table centered with a French crystal centerpiece containing pink, white and lavender flowers and slim white tapers. Those serving guests wore corsages of pink and violet carnations.

Mrs. Watson Chance of Franklin cut and served cake; Mrs. Arvel Becker, Jacksonville, presided at the punch bowl and Miss Susan Licklider, St. James, Missouri, registered guests. Also assisting was Mrs. Carl Schulster, Albuquerque, New Mexico, sister of the bride who wore a black sheath and pink Aristocrat roses.

25 ASPIRINS KILL 3-YEAR-OLD BOY

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — Randy E. Woodford, 3, of nearby Padua died Thursday night after swallowing 25 aspirin tablets. Deputy Coroner Curtis Gilberts attributed the death to the drug. The child swallowed the pills in his home Tuesday.

COOL IN THE HEAT

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Mrs. Gail Shannon has nominated Dr. J. E. Burkett as the coolest man in town. She called him on business and he answered: "May I phone you later when I can collect my thoughts and think through my schedule?" Mrs. Shannon learned later that Burkett's house was on fire and he was dodging firemen as he talked.

LUCKY AT LAST

BALTIMORE (AP) — Capt. and Mrs. Reese Layton scoured the city and its environs for canned turnip greens because the fresh variety was out of season.

None could be found. Then, on a trip through the South, they found a case of turnip greens in a South Carolina country store and snapped up the whole case.

They were canned, of course, in Baltimore.

Cable Trouble Causes Power Failure Friday

Power service in parts of the city was disrupted Friday afternoon when trouble developed in an underground cable running from the power plant to the local sub station, located behind the city hall. Sections of the city were without electrical power for about half an hour.

The situation was brought under control Friday evening as the power plant switched the load carried by the defective cable to a new aerial line running from the plant to the sub-station. The aerial line is part of a new addition to the plant facilities which was set for use in the near future. Friday's cable trouble saw the new line put into use ahead of schedule.

The underground cable will be tested to determine which section is defective and repairs will be made. This may take some time, according to word received here Friday evening, but the new cable will handle all power normally taken care of by the underground line.

Friday's failure provided an unusual spectacle as the electrical ovens at the Ideal bakery were stopped in the process of baking four to five thousand loaves of bread. While the loaves were ruined, the power shortage fortunately occurred early enough for the whole batch of bread to be made over.

Final Rites For Samuel J. Wiley

Funeral services for Samuel J. Wiley were held Friday afternoon at the Cody and Son Memorial Home. The Rev. Harvey Dibrell officiated at the 2 o'clock service.

Mrs. Gaylord Swisher was soloist, singing "In The Garden" and "The Old Rugged Cross." She was accompanied at the organ by Robert Wegehoft.

Burial was in Diamond Grove cemetery.

MRS. BISHOP DIES IN NEW JERSEY

WHITE HALL — Mrs. Elizabeth S. Bishop, wife of Gordon Bishop of Marmora, N. J., passed away Aug. 3rd. She was 61 years old.

TALKING MACHINE—A new electronic artificial larynx may help thousands of voiceless persons regain the ability to speak. The self-contained device, a substitute for vocal chords, is held against the throat. Sound produced by a modified telephone receiver is transmitted through the flesh to be formed into speech by normal movements of the vocal tract. H. L. Barney, his finger on the pitch inflection control, demonstrates Bell Telephone Co. invention.

TOOL SHED TOTAL LOSS

Firemen are putting the finishing touches on a blaze that totally destroyed a small tool shed at the home of Kenneth Lowe, 828 Henry Street, Friday at 3:45 p.m.

Firemen did not receive the alarm in time to save the building or contents. Exploding paint cans caused heavy smoke and fumes during the fire.

Firemen did not place a value on the small shed. The shed contained a lawn mower and other yard tools.

How To Be A Kitchen Pitcher All In One Easy Lesson

By BERNARD GAVZER

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — If you have ever been to a county fair, exhibition or carnival, likely you've run into a glib expert who can slice tomatoes like a machine and chop a fine mountain of cabbage in seconds.

He's one of those fast-talking sidewalk pitchmen who sell vegetable choppers and glass knives that are sharp as scalpels during demonstrations but cut like a rubber pipe in your hands.

For years I've wondered what it was like to be a kitchen pitcher, as the salesman is called in the pitchman's jargon. One day I decided to take a whirl at it.

I underwent a blitz training program at the hands of Archie Morris, 36-year-old supersalesman who has pitched gadgets in practically every big city in the United States. He operates two places on the boardwalk, near Pennsylvania Avenue.

"I am the king of the pitchmen," says Archie. "Therefore, only I can teach you to make the marks unpeel (prospects come across)."

Following the Morris precepts, I found these to be the steps to successful sidewalk salesmanship:

"Get your free souvenir" or "Watch me use the rosette knife on the pineapple." (No souvenir is given, but it has wide appeal since everyone wants something for nothing. Promising to dissect a pineapple artistically apparently has the same effect as saying you are going to walk on water—no one wants to miss it.)

"This is the item you've seen on TV for $2.98. Forget it. Now it is not just two dollars, not a dollar and a half. How much? Just one dollar." (Everyone dearly loves the notion of getting a bargain.)

"Oh, you stingy devils" or "You are a real tightwad." (The collective insult is given and taken humorously. The specific target has a two-ply effect: It makes the others feel superior and it makes the victim want to establish status by being the first to buy).

"Now I want 15 intelligent people to... etc." (This appeals strongly to crowd ego. No one wants to be thought of as unintelligent.)

Then one morning I confronted a tip (good crowd). Actually, it was composed of two girls who had stopped so one could remove something from her shoe. There was a boy who had heard something said about souvenirs and he stood there with a bright, expectant face. Finally, there was an out-of-town pitchman reporting for work for the 20-week summer season.

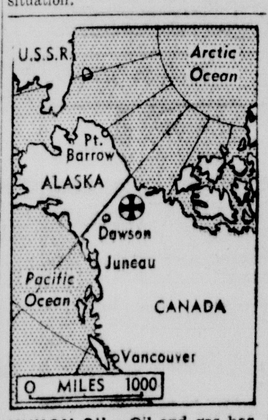
"Sounds like amateur week," said the pitchman, and he walked across the boardwalk to gaze dejectedly into the ocean.

Demonstrating the chopper, I put some onion under its blades and whacked away with huge success. Then I tried the gambit of getting someone in the crowd to demonstrate how easy it was to do. "You, sir, just whack this a few times."

The man did so, expertly. No wonder. He was Archie's cousin.

I was about to chop ice cubes—it looks good on a hot day—when my eye detected a hand reaching into one of the pans containing cut-up vegetables. At the other end of the hand was a little old lady. While everyone was watching me, she was happily stuffing herself with celery, carrots, radishes. The nonchalant nibbler threw me way off rhythm and I had to signal for a replacement who knew how to handle the situation.



YUKON OIL—Oil and gas has been discovered about 200 miles northeast of Dawson, the Yukon's gold-rush town of 1898. The strike (cross) is the first in the Territory. The government said it considers the discovery important because, if found in commercial quantities, oil could be shipped by pipeline to the Pacific, only 450 miles away, and loaded on tankers 12 months out of the year.

Miss Lela Muntz Dies Friday In White Hall

WHITE HALL—Miss Lela Mae Muntz died at the White Hall Hospital at 4:45 p.m. Friday after being a patient for two days. She was for many years a piano instructor in this city.

She was born Jan. 7, 1895, near White Hall, the daughter of Jacob and Sarah Muntz. She is survived by her mother, 93; four brothers, Roy of White Hall, Harry of Berdan, Norman of Kankakee and Harold of Peoria; one sister, Mrs. Helen Doolin of Kankakee.

The body is at the Dawdy Funeral Home. Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the First Baptist church with the Rev. H. R. Chasteen officiating. Burial will be in White Hall cemetery.

Eddy Family Funerals Held In White Hall

WHITE HALL — Funeral services for Mr. and Mrs. Gus Eddy, their son Billy and granddaughter, Rae Denise, were held Friday afternoon at the First Baptist church at 2:30 o'clock with Rev. Harry Chasteen in charge. Miss Mabel Green presided at the organ and Mrs. Kenneth Love was soloist.

Interment was in the White Hall cemetery.

Hoagland Named To Municipal Problems Board

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—State Rep. Jack E. Walker (R-Lansing) Friday was appointed to the Cities and Village Municipal Problems Commission. He is city attorney of South Holland.

All terms expire July 1, 1961.

North's two heart bid was the Jacoby transfer forcing South to bid spades and the four no-trump was Blackwood.

Since South was declarer the final six spade contract was a lay-down. He was able to discard one of dummy's hearts on his king of clubs.

With North as declarer East would probably open a heart and there would be no way to avoid the loss of two tricks.

Incidentally South can also make six no-trump if he plays skillfully. The best defense is an ace of clubs opening followed by a spade shift.

South should run all six spades and discard a club, diamond and heart. Then he should return to his hand with the king of diamonds and cash the king of clubs. West will have to discard down to one heart in order to guard the diamonds.

Next come three rounds of diamonds and East will have to go down to one heart also in order to keep the jack of clubs. South will then make two heart tricks without ever having to worry about which opponent holds the king.

Firemen Have Busy Day; Shed Is Only Major Loss

A fire which stopped in front of the station and four scattered alarms kept local firemen hopping from one side of the town to the other all day Friday. No one was hurt in the small fires and only one amounted to major damage.

Only major loss of the day came at 3:45 p.m. when a shed belonging to Kenneth Lowe, 828 Henry Street, burned to the ground destroying its contents. The structure used for storing tools and paint was declared a total loss by fire fighters who rushed to the scene.

The alarm was received too late for firemen to salvage the building. Among the tools in the shed was a power lawn mower.

Firemen got an unusual twist at 4:45 p.m. Friday when a fire came to them. A cigarette dropped on the upholstery ignited the back seat of a car driven by E. A. Lovekamp. Lovekamp promptly drove the car to the station where firemen extinguished the blaze.

A trash fire at the home of Harry Emrick, 237 Sandusky summoned the local department at 2:10 p.m. No damage was reported from the fire which was out when firemen arrived. Smoke filtering into the house had caused alarm.

A small fire above a dryer at the Coin Wash on West Morton Avenue brought the firemen to the scene at 8:10 p.m. Friday. The fire was put out with a hand pump.

Earlier in the day an alarm from the southwest part of town sent firemen to a car which had become overheated. No damage was reported.

Mark Silver Wedding Date

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Finch

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Finch have returned to their home, Jacksonville route two, after a weekend, in company with C. D. (Pat) Kenney of Franklin, at the Ernest Campbell home and Mrs. Vera Roy home in Warsaw, Illinois. The trip was in celebration of the couple's 25th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Finch is the former Ida Welsh, youngest daughter of the late Michael T. and Ida Busey Welsh and Mr. Finch is the eldest son of the late Otto and Johannah Whalen Finch. They were married August 11, 1934, in Keokuk, Iowa by Reverend Edward J. O'Hair at St. Peter's Catholic church. Mr. Kenney and Mrs. Vera Roy, the former Vera Hilst and native of Jacksonville, were the attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Finch are the parents of two sons, Charles Edward, who will enter the Air Force in September as a pilot trainee and Francis Eugene, at home.

Chandlerville Schools To Open September 1

CHANDLERVILLE—The Chandlerville Community Unit schools will open Tuesday, Sept. 1, and classes will begin at 1 p.m. A meeting of all teachers is scheduled for the morning session beginning at 8:30 a.m.

School buses will start runs at 12 noon and classes will be in session from 1 to 3:30 p.m. Textbooks will be given out during the afternoon. All students are expected to pay for their books rental at this time.

All students entering kindergarten, fifth grade and first year of high school are required to present health and dental certificates on the opening day.

The cafeteria will be open Wednesday, Sept. 2. Tickets will remain at $1.25 for the five-meal week. At the grade school all rooms have been cleaned, floors refinished, some rooms repainted and a new section added in the library. New desks have been purchased for the fourth grade room.

At the high school the upper floors have been sanded and refinished, rooms repainted, and desks in the study hall refinished by the janitors. The cafeteria has been redecorated and replaced with a knotty pine finish. New books, tools and equipment have been added under the direction of Mr. Coordees who has given his full attention to the process since July 1.

Auxiliary Meets

The Legion Auxiliary met Tuesday evening at the Legion Hall for the August meeting. Hostesses were Mrs. Clarence Marcy, Mrs. G. L. Jurgens, and Mrs. Lester Erdmann.

Traveling bingo followed the business session with prizes won by Mrs. Herschel Mibbs, Mrs. Robert Force and Mrs. Glenn Gabehart.

Refreshments of ice cream and cookies were served. Others present were Mrs. Elda Dietsch, Mrs. James Dietsch, Mrs. Otto Loeffler, Mrs. Everett Hish and Mrs. Homer Hunt.

Mrs. Dandee McDonald has returned home from a nine day vacation trip in the east.

Mrs. Cheslea Taylor and sons were Tuesday evening callers in Jacksonville.

Roland Toland and Luther Marcy were callers in Jacksonville Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Milstead and Janet were Jacksonville shoppers Tuesday.

Sooy, Kinison Attend Meeting Of Educators

WHITE HALL—Miss Margaret Kinison and Miss Lorene Sooy, of Greenfield, president and secretary, respectively, of the Greene County Educational Association recently attended the conference for educational leaders held at Illinois Eastern University. The conference was sponsored by the Illinois Education Association and was attended by more than 300 selected leaders in education throughout the state.

Major items which received attention were new school legislation, and its effect upon the public, salary schedules, their purpose, methods of preparation and effect; the rights and responsibilities of teachers and administration under the laws of tenure and contract in Illinois, and problems related to the improvement of school curricula and teacher preparation.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Walker

John E. Walker, Lander, Wyoming Girl Wed; Making Home In Jacksonville

John E. Walker and his bride, the former Sandra Danielson of Lander, Wyoming, are residing in Jacksonville until this fall when he will enroll at University of Illinois at Urbana.

Miss Sandra Danielson, daughter of the Kenneth Danielsons of Lander, and Mr. Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Walker, 7 North Crescent Drive, were married July seventh at the Baptist church in Lander. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Reverend Howard Bailey.

Garden flowers created a lovely floral setting for the ceremony. The traditional wedding march was played by Rex Beckwith at the organ. He also accompanied the bridegroom as he sang "For You Alone," before the ceremony.

The bride, escorted down the aisle by her father, was lovely in a gown of white silk organza over bridal satin. The dress was fashioned with fitted bodice of tiny pleats held in place by seed pearls. The neckline was high and the full sleeves three-quarter length.

The newlyweds spent a honeymoon in Yellowstone Park and the Black Hills.

Mrs. Walker graduated from Fremont County Vocational High School, Lander, Wyo., in 1955. She attended Cottey College until 1957 and in the spring of 1959 graduated from Denver University. Mr. Walker, also a student at Denver University, majored in music.

At Florida Convention

The international convention of Alpha Delta Kappa, teachers' honorary sorority, was held in the Deauville Hotel, Miami Beach, Fla., Aug. 9 through 13.

Mrs. Majel Siegrist was the official delegate for Illinois Omicron Chapter of Jacksonville and Mrs. Ruth Ranson was alternate. Miss Margaret Fitzpatrick and Mrs. Alvahlee McCarthy also attended.

There were over 700 Alpha Delta Kappa members attending the convention. They represented the 12,000 members in every state including Alaska, Hawaii and Canada.

Miss Mary Sneeden accompanied Mrs. Siegrist, Mrs. Ranson and Miss Fitzpatrick to Miami Beach. Many scenic spots were visited, including Silver Springs, Cypress Gardens, Key West, St. Augustine, Smoky Mountains and the Cumberland Mountains.

BAPTISTS REBUFFED

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The Southern Baptist Radio-Television Commission and the National Broadcasting Co. have been stymied in their efforts to film services at the First Baptist Church in Moscow.

The joint group planned to leave for Russia in July but were denied visas. However, commission head Paul Stevens says he has hopes visas will be issued in August or September.

COOL CHURCHES

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 8,000 American church buildings are air-conditioned, the Carrier Corp. reports.

CHURCH ON FAIR SITE

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — A committee has been formed to raise $260,000 to convert the Protestant Pavilion at the Brussels World's Fair into a permanent religious center.

STUFFED TOMATOES

Stuffed tomatoes take to various fillings for salad lunches. Try filling the hollowed-out cavities with cut cooked snap beans marinated in French dressing; or creamstyle cottage cheese mixed with finely cut radishes and cucumber; or hard - cooked egg salad with minced anchovies.

TRY IT SOMETIME

Most recipes for braising short ribs (beef) call for water as the liquid but tomato juice makes an excellent substitute.

KEEP A RECORD

Keep a record of the food you put in your freezer, then when you take out a package mark it off.

Jerseyville Will Buy Chlorinator For Water Dept.

JERSEYVILLE — The Jerseyville city council at its meeting Tuesday evening passed a resolution to take immediate action, so far as possible, to correct the public health water supply hazards to comply with the request and recommendation of the Department of Public Health, Division of Sanitary Engineers, in Springfield.

The action was in compliance with provisions set forth in a letter from the Illinois Department of Public Health, through the chief sanitary engineer, to the mayor and city council, in the interest of developing a safe source of water for the public water supply. The resolution was presented by Commissioner A. R. Major and seconded by Commissioner Henry Horn and carried.

A motion was then made and carried authorizing the Jerseyville Water Works to purchase automatic controls and an automatic chlorinator, for the water tower.

Mayor James Dolan reappointed Dr. Frank Snedeker, Joseph R. Fulkerson and Wayne V. Williams to the Jerseyville Public Library board.

A motion was presented by Commissioner Major, seconded by Commissioner Carl Gross, authorizing Bob Reese, director, to purchase two short wave transmitter receivers for the Civil Defense at a cost not to exceed $150 each.

It was moved by Commissioner Kenneth Beach, seconded by Horn, that an ordinance be drawn accepting the tractor bid by Drainer Equipment Company at a cost of $5,256.97.

METHODIST OPINION

NEW YORK (AP) — "World Outlook," a national Methodist monthly magazine, says "any appeal to or from religion must be avoided" in making decisions on presidential candidates.

Adds the magazine in its August issue:

"The responsible voter selects a candidate because of his position on issues. Religious convictions may influence these positions but, in a secular democracy, the position is the criterion and not the religious belief."

SUCCESSFUL RADIO PROGRAM

CHICAGO (AP) — The Methodist Board of Lay Activities is making plans to send its successful "Methodist Men's Hour" into its eighth broadcasting season.

"We are quite sure from the response we are now getting that the 1959-60 season will set a new record for the number of stations using the program," says director Dr. Don Calame.

Last season, the program was carried on 421 stations in 44 states.

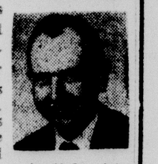
BUSY WITH BIBLES

LONDON (AP)—The United Bible Societies reports that Bible societies alone circulated more than 26,300,000 Bibles throughout the world in 1958. This was about 1½ million more than in 1957.

TV NEWS

by DON SHUMAKER

"Sam," the silken-voiced telephone girl on the CBS-TV Networks' "Richard Diamond" series, finds there are both advantages and disadvantages in her unusual status as a regular cast member whose face is never disclosed. The young actress who plays the role can only regard "Sam's" publicity potential wistfully, since she can make no capital of it. She is pledged never to reveal to anyone that she plays the part. "Sam" was born in Brooklyn on Dec. 29, 1927. At age 10 she moved with her parents to Los Angeles where she studied singing, dancing and dramatics. She had appeared in episodes of two television series in January, 1959, when she was chosen from scores of applicants to play "Sam," the provocative telephone girl on the "Diamond" show.



"Sam's" debut, in which she was seen from intriguing camera angles, purring flirtatiously over the wire to the debonaire private eye, caused mild reactions in her home. Her husband asked, "Why don't you ever talk to me like that?" Their tiny three year old son stared hard at the television screen, clearly suspicious but unable to figure how the lady with the velvety voice and his mother could be one and the same.

Frances J. Ater

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ater, Ashland route one, announce the engagement and approaching wedding of their daughter, Frances Janet, and Richard Monroe, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Monroe.

The bride-to-be is employed at Elliott State Bank in Jacksonville and Mr. Monroe is engaged in farming. They plan an October ceremony.

Club Meetings At Greenfield Start During September

GREENFIELD—The Traveler's club will resume its 1959-1960 series of meetings Friday, Sept. 25 with Mrs. John Vandaveer as hostess. The program will include reading of the constitution and by-laws and Mrs. Stanley D. McPherron will give a program on the subject, "Narration of Modern Magazine Magic." Mrs. McPherron, Mrs. Andrew Dalton and Mrs. Claude E. Linn, have been in charge of arranging the programs for the year. The 1959-1960 officers are: president, Mrs. Frank Ford; vice president, Mrs. Linn; secretary, Mrs. William R. Stringer; treasurer, Mrs. L. E. Middleton.

The Woman's club will resume regular meetings Wednesday, Sept. 9 and the programs for the year are incomplete but are scheduled to take place in the social rooms of the Baptist church annex.

The first meeting of HJ chapter PEO will be held Wednesday, Sept. 16 and the members of the chapter will be guests at the home of Mrs. Raymond Gallagher in Barry for a potluck supper.

Regular meetings of the Woman's Society of Christian Service will be resumed Wednesday, Sept. 2.

The August meeting of the Presbyterian Women's organization which was to be held Thursday, Aug. 27, at the home of Mrs. Arthur Kahl has been cancelled. The next meeting will be a joint one of the PWO and the Crescent Society for their annual Salamagundi party Thursday, Sept. 24 in the country home of Mrs. Richard L. Dalton.

RARE DOUBLE VICTORY

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eddie Arcaro, the first present day rider elected to the National Jockeys Hall of Fame at Pimlico, is the only one ever to ride two Tripple Crown winners.

Norma Jean Ward

WHITE HALL—Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ward announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Norma Jean, to Richard G. McPherson, son of Mrs. Margaret McPherson of Alsey.

The ceremony will take place Sunday, Sept. 20, at Calvary Baptist church in White Hall at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The bride-elect graduated from White Hall High School in 1958 and the prospective bridegroom from Winchester High School in 1957. He is engaged in farming.

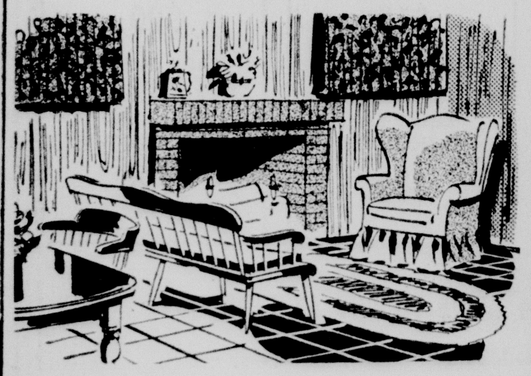
Adding CHARM to YOUR Home

by Edna C. Gustine



DIVIDED—YET UNITED

Every efficient homemaker today is looking for ways to lighten mealtime chores — to cut down serving mileage, to make short work of after-meal clean-up. A sit down table in or near the kitchen for breakfasts, hurried lunches, and after-school snacks is one of the best work-saving solutions we know of.

The kitchen eating spot should be as carefully planned as any other area in the home. Colors here should be warm and cheerful to add a note of gay conviviality to casual meals. The decor, of course, should be tied in with the kitchen in spirit, style and colors.

One corner of a large kitchen has been converted into an attractive kitchen-dining spot in the sketch above. An attractive room divider was used to give the effect of two separate rooms. It sets off the eating area yet does not use too much space and allows a free flow of traffic.

You're assured of more than just good looks when you purchase your home furnishings from us. We make sure that every piece we offer you is expertly constructed from the finest materials. We're sticklers for tasteful styling, and for unquestionable value, too. So come in today —shop with confidence.

THEY LIKE IT LIVE
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The Rev. Quentin P. German recently sat in a front pew in Christ (Lutheran) and watched himself preach the Sunday sermon.
The sermon was on television, taped a couple of weeks before for showing on the Sunday morning program "Let There Be Light," sponsored by the San Diego County Council of Churches.
The Rev. Mr. Garman used the televised sermon in his own church as an experiment. The congregation's reaction: They'd rather watch and listen to their pastor live

Katherine Levening began to weep softly, Milo Jellick to mumble protest. He even took a short step in Haskell's direction but stopped as Jim Kineen's voice struck at him from the edge of the porch.

"Stay out of it, Milo! This is a lesson for Vince Tendler—a lesson for all of us."

"Put it back!"

Through the beating thunder and deathly gray sickness of his world, Vince Tendler finally realized there was no other answer but to obey. He felt blindly around for the dodger, got hold of it. It took him three lurching tries to get to his feet and stumble to the wall of the building. Here he made an effort to spread the dodger, too blind to see that he had it upside down. Twice he hit at it with his fist, clumsily, as though he would thus nail it to the wall. Then, with a shuddering half-sigh, half-moan, he crumpled down in a senseless heap.

"He tried, friend Haskell. You won your point. He was out on his feet—but he tried!"

Slowly, tiredly, Haskell nodded.

"Yeah, I guess so. He tried."

He picked up the battered dodger, where it had fluttered from Tendler's unconscious fingers. It was torn along one edge, badly wrinkled, and stained with the blood of both men. But it still said all it had said before, and legibly. He turned to Milo Jellick.

"Seems I'll need that hammer and the tacks again."

Jellick fetched them, and Haskell, stepping around the piled up figure of Vince Tendler, replaced the Jack Breedon reward notice to its original spot on the wall. This done, he made slow survey of the silent watchers and spoke with a flat emphasis.

His direct glance settled on Katherine Levening.

"Did—did you have to treat him so?" she cried. "To make him crawl like—like a whipped dog? Did you have to do that?"

"I said he was slow to learn. The lesson was just as rough as I had to make it."

"But his pride!" she cried again. "When you trample a man's pride like that, you can kill some part of him—!"

"How about mine?" retorted Haskell. "I'm human enough to resent being ganged and kicked around by some self-appointed bucko boy and his friends. If Tendler's pride is so precious, let him show some consideration for that of others."

• • •

Back at the store, his senses returning, Vince Tendler was up on one knee. But when Milo Jellick would have offered a hand to aid him to his feet Tendler struck it aside with a violence that came near upsetting him again. His mouth hung half open and his eyes, though staring straight ahead, dull with shock, smoldered like partly covered coals. He put a spread hand against the store front and with this braced support pulled slowly upright.

He turned, dropping his shoulders against the wall, staying so on spread feet while he mopped clumsily at his mouth and face with a scrubbing forearm. Slowly the shock faded from his eyes, the fire in them burning deeper and hotter.

"Vince," Katherine Levening said, choked and hesitant.

If he heard her at all, he gave no sign, instead lurching to the porch steps then down these and along to where his horse stood tethered in front of the Canyon House. He loosed the tie of the reins, then stood for a little time as though gathering strength to mount.

When he did try, it took him two attempts before he made it into the saddle. Once up, however, he hauled his horse around with a sudden rip of reins and used the spurs so savagely the stung animal squealed its protest as it fled wildly out of town, its rider weaving from side to side.

Of those who had watched it all, Jim Kineen was the first to cross the porch and read the posted rewards. After which he came along to where Katherine Levening and Milo Jellick stood and spoke to Katherine with a grave kindliness.

• • •

She nodded, turning back through the doorway. Milo Jellick moved to have his look at the notices, along with the rest of the curious ones. Inside the store, Jim Kineen was somberly thoughtful as he got out his pipe, packed and lighted it. Katherine broke into this small interval of silence.

"I know what you're going to say; that the truth be given to Grady Haskell!"

"That's it," Kineen said.

Katherine nodded. "I know. Sandy Lee thinks the same. I—I wonder if you're right!"

"I'm sure of it," Kineen declared.

Katherine hit her hands together. "If only the responsibility wasn't all mine!" she cried softly. "If only Dad were well enough to have his own voice in the matters!"

"Now I can understand your feelings there," Kineen sympathized.

She took a small, restless turn, back and forth a few steps. "When do you think I should see him?"

"Now!" Kineen said bluntly. "Nothing's to be gained, Katie, by waiting."
